BEVERLY INSCRIPTIONS.
ANCIENT BURYING GROUND.

The acre of land comprising the ancient burying ground on Cabot street, in Beverly, was obtained by the town of John Lovett, Jr., May 8, 1672. It adjoined the lot on which stood the meeting house of that period.

The frontispiece is a view of this old burying ground as it now appears, Abbott street having been constructed through it. In the middle is the private lot of Rev. John Hale, and near it are the tombs of several of the early ministers of Beverly.

The following are all the inscriptions now to be found in the cemetery bearing dates prior to 1800.

Friendship's fair genius drops a tender tear
To see her fav'rite vot'ry sleeping here:
But gentle are the slumbers of the just
And swift the hour that reawakes the dust
To call the body from the darksome tomb
To join the soul in it's eternal home.

——

So sleep the saints & cease to groan,
When sin & death have done their Christ has a glory like his own (worst
That waits to clothe their sleeping (dust

ABORN NOTE.

James Aborn (No. 51, page 163, volume I, Antiquarian), by his wife Hannah, had the following children: Betsey, baptized Feb. 15, 1784, and Molly, baptized Feb. 11, 1787. — Marblehead church records.
THE TAILOR.

The tailor, when our land was young
And everything was new,
Upon a stick his bundle flung,
And walked the country through.

Bearing to mansion and the cot
The gossip new and rare
Obtained in every place he wrought
He had a welcome there.

His time is past, no more we meet
This journeyman of old,
Never again his presence greet,
Nor ancient form behold.

TAILOIRS IN THE OLDEN TIME.

Like many others of the workers at various handicrafts, the makers of men’s clothing were engaged in pursuing their calling here quite early. They went from house to house, and from village to village, cutting out, fitting, and making garments of all sorts, pants, vests and coats, being usually preceded by the weavers, who from the wool and cotton spun by the ladies of the family wove the material for the use of the tailor. They usually remained at a place long enough to make up a season’s or a year’s supply of clothing for the men of the household, or to make a wedding suit, or a suit for a journey, or some other special occasion. They made their home with the family until their work was completed.

We can little imagine the delight the coming of the tailor brought to the family, at least those members that revelled in gossip and newsmonging. This was one way, though it seldom occurred, by which news was disseminated before the era of newspapers. Living in the very midst of a family for a week or two, or longer, and having the opportunity, which was rarely neglected, to learn family secrets and the short-comings of its members, he could not help always having on hand a fresh supply of gossip. Moving about among the people continually he heard all the news, whether local or general, private or public.

If these early practices did not originate the term “journeyman,” it certainly gave it a meaning which it has not had in more recent times.

In large towns tailors opened their shops, as did other craftsmen, and performed their work in them instead of the houses of their customers, which was a method that benefitted both parties. The first tailor in Essex county who is known to the writer to have had such a shop was Edward Griffiths in Marblehead in 1768. He had come from London.

May 7, 1662, the general court enacted a statute making it a criminal offence for tailors to “fashion or make” clothing for children or “servants under government” of kind and quality exceeding the condition in life of their parents or employers, “contrary to the mind” of such parents or employers. For the first offence the tailor was simply admonished; but if he was convicted of a similar offence a second time he forfeited double the value of the garment or garments that he had made.

This, one of several similar ancient customs, has passed away, and with it much of the romance of the olden time.

Widow Hannah Abrahams, August, 1716.—First Church records, Salem.

Benjamin Adams (188, page 43, volume II, Antiquarian) settled in Tunbridge, Vt., and died there about 1825.

Of his family I only know that he had a daughter Sally, wife of George Hackett.

Solomon Adams (193, page 44) removed to New London, N. H., in 1782; was a Revolutionary soldier, and was living, a pensioner, in New London in 1832.

He had a son Daniel.

Jonathan Adams (197) married, first, in 1792, Phebe Brocklebank. She died Feb. 27, 1807, in Tunbridge, Vt., and he married, second, in May, 1808, Abigail Weymouth, who died Feb. 1, 1864, in West Hartford, Vt. He was a farmer in Tunbridge, and died there Feb. 2, 1842. He had seven children.

Capt. Benjamin Adams (116, page 64) removed, in 1812, to Washington, Washington co., Pa., and died there, at the house of his grandson (Charles Wheeler), Dec. 23, 1817. His widow died in 1818 at the home of her son, Dr. Samuel Adams, in Beaver Falls, Beaver co., Pa.

*This was the mother of Woodward Abrahams of Marblehead, who was born in Charlestown Aug. 28, 1727. His brother, Nathaniel Abrahams, was baptized at Marblehead Dec. 14, 1735; and his sister lived with her mother in Andover in 1778.

The Captain was a brave and fearless officer; he fought with his company at the battle of Saratoga, and was present at the surrender of Burgoyne. During the battle his company captured a piece of the enemy's artillery, which was recaptured and again taken by him and his company, all on the same day. In the same battle he had several narrow escapes, two British bullets having been shot through his hat, one through his coat and another grazed one of his eye-brows. Dr. Samuel Adams, the only son of Capt. Benjamin, studied medicine with Dr. John Manning of Ipswich, married Elizabeth Plummer, and settled in the practice of his profession at Beaver Falls, Beaver co., Pa., where he became eminent as a physician, and had a large practice. He had four sons, two of whom (Milo and Socrates) were physicians, and six daughters. His youngest son, Samuel Plummer Adams, settled in Salem, Ohio, and had eight children, among whom is Milton B., a graduate of West Point Military Academy in the class of 1861, and now Major of Engineers, U. S. A., an officer of marked ability, who has superintended the construction of several important government works.

Enoch Adams (154, page 65) removed with his family, about 1800, to Andover, Me., of which town he was the second permanent white settler, and a large land owner. His children were all born in Andover, Mass., except William, who was born in Andover, Me., and were as follows: 1. Enoch,6 b. June 23, 1779; m., March 26, 1807, Lucy Strickland; was a farmer in Andover, Me., and d. there Feb. 26, 1849. 2. John Emery,6 b. Dec. 5, 1780; m., first, Jan. 5, 1805, Sarah Moody, who d. in 1835; and, second, "Miss Jones of Me." In 1826 he settled in Cleaveland, O., and d. there Oct. 1840. He was known in Cleveland as "Col. John E. Adams," and was a farmer and lumberman. 3. Sarah,6 b. Nov. 17, 1782; m. James Withington of Peru, Me.; and d. Aug., 1830. 4. Dolly,6 b. Nov. 17, 1784; m. John Farrington of Andover,
Me.; and d. March 24, 1842. He d. March 4, 1840. 5. Joseph, b. April 14, 1788; m., March 26, 1812, Betsey Farnum; and settled in Rumford, Me. He d. Aug. 5, 1840, and she d. Nov. 29, 1865. He was a physician and itinerant preacher.

John Adams (187, page 76) was a corporal in the Revolution; married Molly Brocklebank, in Ipswich, March 4, 1777 (Dec. 12, 1776, being date of publication); lived for some time in Newbury, and subsequently in Rowley, finally removing to New London, N. H., where he died March 15, 1821.

NOTE TO “PART OF SALEM IN 1700”.

The Edward Norris house (see Antiquarian, volume II, page 172) was probably built by Robert Adams about 1638. He probably lived in it until his removal to Newbury, and owned it until he conveyed the estate to William Gerrish 18: 2: 1649, as appears by the following record:

“18 of the 2d moneth 1649
“Robt Adams of Newbery tayler hath fold vsd willm Gearifh for thirty pounds one howfe and one acre of Land, lying betwene m’. Batters & henry Cooks howses in Salem, as by his Dee & Dated the day & yeare above written apeth.”

JAMES OTIS.

When flushed with conquest and elate with pride,
Britannia's monarch Heaven's high will defied;
And bent on blood, by lust of rule inclined,
With odious chains to vex the freeborn mind;
On these young shores set up unjust command,
And spread the slaves of office round the land;
Then Otis rose, and great in patriot fame,
To listening crowds resistance dared proclaim.
From soul to soul the bright idea ran,
The fire of freedom flew from man to man:
His pen, like Sydney's, made the doctrine known,
His tongue, like Tully's, shook a tyrant's throne;
Then men grew bold—and in the public eye,
The right divine of monarchs dared to try
Light shone on all, despotic darkness fled—
And for a sentiment a nation bled.

1783.

Hon. Thomas Dawes.

JAMES OTIS.

James Otis, the eldest son of Col. James and Mary (Allyne) Otis, was born in Barnstable, Mass., Feb. 5, 1724-5. The father was an eminent lawyer, and a man of influence and mental energy.

James graduated at Harvard University in 1743; read law, and was admitted to the Plymouth bar. He practised in Plymouth two years, and then removed to Boston where he soon rose to the first rank in his profession, acquiring a large and important practice and a reputation for learning, eloquence and integrity.

In 1760, he held the office of advocate-general of the colony of Massachusetts Bay; and when the first application was made to the superior court, then sitting in Salem, for writs of assistance, by the deputy-collector, Cockle, of Salem, under orders from his superiors in Boston, the crown officers called upon Mr. Otis to appear in behalf of the petition. These writs of assistance were to be granted to revenue officers, being warrants giving them a general power to enter houses and stores where it might be suspected that contraband goods were concealed, and in violation of the dearest principles of the Magna Charta. Otis refused to appear for the crown, and resigned his office.

The merchants of Salem and Boston heard of it, and they engaged him to make their defence. The trial occurred in Boston; and Otis was between four and five hours in making his comprehensive and exhaustive argument. No cause in colonial jurisprudence had excited greater public interest, and the courthouse was crowded. Without fear or fee, he then and there declared the great postulate which became the basis of all subsequent resistance to kingly domination, that Taxation without representation is tyranny. He thrilled every heart with his powerful declamation and invective, and this maxim became the watchword of every patriot.

John Adams, who was present, in describing the scene, said that "Otis was a flame of fire; with a promptitude of classical allusions, a depth of research, a rapid summary of historical events and dates, a profusion of legal authorities, a prophetic glance of his eyes into futurity, and a rapid torrent of impetuous eloquence, he hurried away all before him. The seeds of patriots and heroes were then and there sown. Every man of an immensely crowded audience appeared to me to go away, as I did, ready to take up arms against writs of assistance. Then and there was the first scene of the first act of opposition to the arbitrary claims of Great Britain. Then and there the child Independence was born."

The people were so stirred by this initial stand in their behalf that they took more positive political position. Hitherto, Otis had attended only to his professional business, but he now instantly became the leader of the colonists and the terror and object of the vengeance of their enemies. By voice and pen he urged the rights of the people openly and fearlessly.

Sept. 5, 1769, at the British Coffee-house in Boston, by some English customs officers, Otis was injured on his head by a sharp bludgeon, and his brilliant intellect was so marred that no effort could longer be put forth for the country he loved so much. After that time, he was in public life but little, and went wholly out of practice in 1771. His mental derangement becoming more pronounced, he became easily excited, sometimes to frenzy.

He lived quietly in and near Boston, but was allowed to take no part in the final struggle with the mother country in arms. In 1780, he went to live with Isaac Osgood in Andover, and remained there, in their quiet country life, till 1782. Apparently having recovered, he returned to Boston, driving in a gig with his nephew, Hon. H. G. Otis. He undertook some professional engagements; but the excitement of a dinner with patriots at Governor Hancock's brought on his former malady.

He returned to Andover, voluntarily, April 8, 1783. The next morning he was somewhat agitated; and taking a hatchet went to a little pine grove a few yards from the house, where he spent the forenoon trimming away the lower branches of the trees. When Mr. Osgood called him to dinner he said with great earnestness: "Osgood, if I die while I am in your house, I charge you to have me buried under these trees."

At Andover, Mr. Otis never went more than a few yards from the house. He was neither violent nor restless; and lived very temperately, his food being principally bread and milk. He read much, lay in bed a great deal, and grew corpulent. He was always kind and good humored to the family, whom he delighted by his wit, his stories and knowledge.

Just six weeks from the day of his return, May 23, a thunder shower suddenly arose; and while Otis was standing by the side of an open inside door in the house, with his cane in his hand, and engaged in telling a story, a bolt of lightning killed him instantly, leaving no mark. As he fell, Mr. Osgood caught him in his arms. No one else was injured, though the house was considerably damaged and ignited.

Mr. Otis had several times expressed a wish that he might die in this manner.

The remains were taken to Boston, where the funeral was attended by great numbers of people. His age was fifty-eight.

CAPT. EDMUND GILES, who departed this life
Feb'y 20th 1786:
Aged 64 years.
The toils of life & pangs of death
are o'er,
And care, & pain, & sickness are no more.

Abbott street was cut through the old cemetery in 1868. My father—a descendant—super-interdicted the removal of the remains of Rev. John Hale and several of his family, six in all, I think, to the private lot, walled in, of (I believe) Col. Robert Hale, John's grandson. I have some of the cloth disinterred, in October, 1868, with the Rev. John's remains and saved by my father.

The desecration of 1868 was not the first the old yard suffered. The following quotation from an old letter shows when the vestry of the First Parish church was placed there: "Beverly, January 13, 1834, * * * a multitude of men are busy in our [Federal] street drawing away the Vestry to-day. It is to be placed in the old burying ground." And there it still stands, covering the grave of my great-grandfather, as I was always told. I presume others are beneath it also. My grandfather had a stone erected in his lot in the Hale street yard to commemorate the memory of his parents, Henry and Priscilla Larcom, bearing the following inscription:

"MOLL PITCHER"
"MOLL PITCHER."

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

"MOLL PITCHER," the famous fortune-teller of Lynn, has no birth record. So the place of her first appearance in life cannot be thus determined. The tenement house, known as the "Old Brig," situated at the junction of Pond and Orne streets in Marblehead, is the reputed birthplace. The records, however, fail to confirm this.

It is said that she was born in 1738; and this date was probably obtained by subtracting her alleged age from the year of her death.

Her father, Aholiab Diamond, was living in Lynn in 1735, and, as far as known, ever afterward lived there, being there in 1762. He married Lydia, daughter of Henry and Abigail (Collins) Silsbee of Lynn, being published Sept. 21, 1735. Where he first lived in Lynn is not known. Sept. 12, 1738, his wife's father, who was a husbandman, conveyed to Aholiab one hundred and forty square rods of land on the road to Marblehead, being the lot laid out to Ephraim Silsbee on the town commons, and a part of the tract known as the Wood-end rocks.*

Upon this lot of land, which measured fourteen rods on the road and ten rods in depth, Aholiab erected a dwelling house and barn, and removed thither. Whether Mary was born before or after the erection of the house cannot be determined. This road was lonely, being rough and little traveled. The house stood at the foot of High Rock in the southern part of what was afterwards known as the Rock's pasture, the whole territory being lonely and wild, with rocks outcropping and stunted red cedars growing here and there. The house occupied a position on a southern slope, fronting towards the sea. In the old days a small, uncared-for garden was in front, and broken rocks, thistles and nettles occupied the rear.

The house still stands on the northwesterly side of Essex street, nearly opposite Pearl street. It has been somewhat modernized, and the neighborhood has been built up. The accompanying engraving shows the house as it formerly appeared.

Of Mary Diamond's education nothing is known; but the good quality of her signature (shown herewith), as written in 1770, when she was about thirty-two, indicates that she was not wholly deficient.

hood days there were no public schools for girls; and, therefore, what they learned had to be acquired elsewhere and in other ways.

Mr. Diamond was a cordwainer, and probably had an apprentice named Robert Pitcher, to whom Mary was married Oct. 2, 1760. They continued to live at her father's, and had born to them one son, John, and three daughters, Rebecca, Ruth and Lydia. Their descendants are today among the respectable citizens of Lynn.

Her brothers, Samson Silsbee Diamond and Richard Diamond, were probably never married, and lived at home, working with their father.

Sept. 23, 1762, Mr. Diamond conveyed the house, barn and lot to his son Samson.*

Sept. 6, 1766, Samson conveyed the premises to his brother Richard.†

Richard Diamond died two years later, and the other brother and parents dying about this time, Mrs. Pitcher being the sole heir to the property.

When Mrs. Pitcher began her professional career is not known. Probably the practice grew from isolated instances of successful averments in reference to future events, dating back to her early womanhood. It is said that soon after her marriage she was known as a fortune-teller, having then a clientage which continued to increase in importance during the fifty years that she afterwards lived.

Her fame reached every fireside in New England, and her successful predictions, alike astounding to the vulgar and the educated, were the themes of many midnight vigils and forecastle story tellers.

Not only was she consulted by the poor and ignorant, but by the rich and intelligent, by the accomplished and vulgar, the timid and the brave, the simple rustic from New Hampshire and the nobleman of Europe. The predictions concerned love affairs, legacies, discovery of crime, successful lottery tickets, and the more common contingencies of life. These were the subjects of her staple productions; but her most important visitors came from those interested in various ways in the commerce of the region. The sailor before the mast, and cabin-boy, as well as the ship owner, resorted to her humble abode under High Rock, to ascertain the results of a voyage; vessels sometimes, it is asserted, failing to sail at the time set, as the effect of her predictions, either from the refusal of the crew to start, or the owner to risk his vessel upon a voyage whose end Moll predicted would be disastrous.

Treasure-seekers, who were numerous in her time, frequently sought her assistance in locating stores of hidden treasure along our coast. It is said that she had neither sympathy nor patience with them, and would reply to them sharply, "Fools, if I knew where money was buried, do you think I would part with the secret?"

It may be that many of Lord Timothy Dexter's peculiar commercial speculations were due to her shrewdness and foresight, as it is said he was wont to obtain her advice, in which he placed implicit confidence.

The table over which Mrs. Pitcher conducted her interviews with clients is in the possession of the Essex Institute, at Salem. It is a small round table, which, when the lids are raised, measures about thirty inches in diameter. A picture of it is shown herewith.

In discovering the secrets of the future, Mrs. Pitcher used tea. When steeped she turned it into a cup, unstrained. The peculiarities of the position assumed by the particles of tea in the bottom of the cup decided the fate of the inquirer.

The only house near Mrs. Pitcher's was that of Dr. Henry Burchstead, which stood directly opposite on the other side of the road. In 1755, the doctor had two great bones of a whale erected for gate posts before his house. These posts remained there all through the period of Mrs. Pitcher's professional career. Most of her clients went to her secretly, and many were the sly inquiries of those strangers who were visiting her for the first time for the place where the big whale bones were to be seen, thus learning the residence of Mrs. Pitcher without inquiring for it.

She was not the withered, decrepit and toothless drone of Spencer, or Otway's "... wrinkled hag, with age grown double, Picking dry sticks and mumbling to herself;" but a woman in all respects like other women of her time and place, a devoted wife and mother and a kind neighbor. So much was she like other people that nothing but the unequivocal testimony of a multitude of witnesses could have established the reputation she acquired as before sunrise, for meal to carry to a poor widow, who would otherwise have had no breakfast either for herself or children.

An old-fashioned bonnet that Mrs. Pitcher was wont to wear is shown herewith. She died April 9, 1813, at the age of seventy-five; and her remains were buried in the old burying-ground near the western end of the common in Lynn. Her grave remained unmarked until 1887, when Isaac O. Guild and John T. Moulton, to distinguish the spot, erected a neat gravestone bearing the following inscription:

MARY PITCHER
1738-1813

Mr. Pitcher survived her, and died May 7, 1822.

"Even she, our own weird heroine,
Sole Pythoness of ancient Lynn,
Sleeps calmly where the living laid her;
And the wide realm of sorcery,
Left, by its latest mistress, free,
Hath found no gray and skilled invader."

THE ANCESTOR'S DREAM.

I saw restored my desolated home,
And to its cradle each new tenant come. * *
Time flies—my wife lies buried by my side;
Each son has to the altar led his bride;
They, too, have passed through scenes of joy
and grief,
And from life's cares have found in death relief.
Their children's children,—a wide-spreading stream
Of human life, have come and gone,—a gleam
Flitting in vision o'er my dazzled sight,
Now less distinct, now full of life and light.

——Dr. Andrew Nichols.

Enoch Adams (No. 154, page 65*) and his wife Sarah lie side by side in the graveyard by the Rumford road, about half a mile south of Andover (Me.) Village. The inscriptions read: “Enoch Adams died Aug. 19, 1819. Ae. 67 yrs. He was the second settler in Andover.” “Sarah, wife of Enoch Adams, died July 9, 1801, Ae. 43. She was the first person buried in this yard.”

The first agreement, under order of the General Court of Massachusetts, concerning sale of the wild land which is now Andover, Me., was signed by Thomas Poor of Methuen and Enoch Adams and Ebenezer Poor, jr., of Andover, Mass., and dated Boston, May 21, 1788. The original agreement of the proprietors, fourteen in number, of whom Enoch Adams was one, was signed Sept. 1, 1788, at Andover, Mass. The second meeting was held at the house of Enoch Adams, Andover, Mass., Sept. 4, 1788. The third meeting is thus recorded: “On Ellis River met on said Township at Enoch Adams’ Camp. * * * * 3d Voted that the name of the Township be East Andover.” The town was known as East Andover, Me., until incorporated in 1804, when it took the name of Andover. The fourth meeting was held at Enoch Adams’ house, and although not definitely stated to be at Andover, Mass., the context plainly shows that to have been the fact. So that, although Enoch Adams may have had a camp at East Andover when said meeting was held, May 15, 1789, he had not permanently settled there. According to the minutes of a meeting held Aug. 10, 1791, Enoch Adams was at East Andover, and to the best of my knowledge and belief he permanently settled there about 1790-1.

ANSWERS.

51. Does the querist mean 1730 instead of 1630? I find the marriage, in the Newbury records, of Joseph Noyes and Elizabeth Woodman, both of Newbury, Nov. 10, 1726. She was daughter of Jonathan and Abigail (Atkinson) Woodman, and born in Newbury Sept. 7, 1706. Jonathan was son of Jonathan who was son of Edward Woodman.—Mrs. Ellen M. Little, Newbury.

102. Susanna Butler who married Ezekiel Cheever Dec. 6, 1770, was a daughter of William Butler, and was born in Chebacco parish, Ipswich, where she was baptized Aug. 18, 1745. Her mother was Sarah Marshall. William Butler and Sarah Marshall were married in Ipswich Aug. 26, 1740. Lt. William Butler, the father of Susanna, died in Ipswich Aug. 30, 1772. In his will he called himself “gentleman.”—Ed.

NOYES PEDIGREE. By James Atkins Noyes. Boston, 1899. This is an eleven-page pamphlet, giving one line of the descendants of Rev. William Noyes, rector of Cholderton, England, father of Rev. James Noyes of Newbury. It is a valuable compilation, pains having apparently been taken to obtain all available information concerning the line presented.

ANCESTRAL CHART. This is a chart of forty-four large pages, arranged by Eben Putnam, the genealogist. Its advantage lies in the adaptability to additions, any number of generations with the same size of spaces being readily inserted. Spaces for coats-of-arms, family portraits, pictures of heirlooms, authorities and index add to its value. See advertisement.

THE DARK DAY.

'Twas on a May-day of the far old year
Seventeen hundred eighty, that there fell
Over the bloom and sweet life of the spring,
Over the fresh earth and the heaven of noon,
A horror of great darkness, like the night
In day of which the Norland sagas tell,
The twilight of the gods.

—John G. Whittier.

DARK DAYS.

There are at least three days in the period of Essex county history that are denominated dark days if we include the "yellow day" of September 6, 1881. The first was October 21, 1716, and the second May 19, 1780.

On each of these days the smell of smoke pervaded the air, indicating large fires. This was, without doubt, the cause of the thick clouds that enveloped this region at those times. At the time of these several occurrences the ground was bare, and forest fires were raging. The most notable of the dark days, that of 1780, occurred at a time when the settlement of northern and northeastern New England was being pushed with vigor. The smoke no doubt came from the great fires made by the settlers in clearing their land for cultivation. They selected the ground to be cleared, and in the winter cut the trees half way through the trunks, breast high. When all had been so cut, one tree was felled at some adjacent point, against the trees standing near, causing them to also fall. By this means the whole tract of great primeval trees, with a grand and terrific crash, became, in a few minutes, a huge pile of combustibles forty feet in height and covering acres of ground. The snow melted and the resinous boughs became dry early in May. Then fire was placed under the immense pile, and for a week or more the great bonfire continued to consume the logs and stumps, amid which in the soil mixed with the ashes, the corn and other crops were subsequently planted.

The dark day of October 21, 1716, occurred on Sunday, between eleven and twelve o'clock in the forenoon when most of the people were attending religious services. At about eleven the outlines of objects could not be seen distinctly, and no one could see to read a word in the psalm book. Some ministers sent to the houses of the people that lived near for candles, others sat down and waited for the sky to clear, or the coming of the Lord to be announced. After a half hour of anxious suspense, light slowly returned, and the customary life went on.

Friday, May 19, 1780, will go down in history as "the dark day." In the morning the sun rose clear, but was soon overcast. The clouds became lowery, and from them, black and ominous, as they soon appeared, lightning flashed, thunder rolled and a little rain fell. Towards nine o'clock, the clouds became thinner, and assumed a brassy or coppery appearance, and earth, rocks, trees, buildings, water and persons were changed by this strange unearthly light. A few minutes later a heavy black cloud spread over the entire sky except a narrow rim at the horizon, and it was as dark as it usually is at nine o'clock on a summer evening. Some ladies in Ipswich were busy weaving that morning, and at this stage of the darkness were compelled to relinquish their labor.

Fear, anxiety and awe gradually filled the minds of the people. Women stood at the door looking out upon the dark landscape; men returned from their labor in the fields; the carpenter left his tools, the blacksmith his forge, the tradesman his counter. Schools were dismissed, and tremblingly the children fled homeward. Travellers put up at the nearest farm-house. "What is coming?" queried every lip and heart. It seemed as if a hurricane was about to dash across the land, or as if it was the day of the consummation of all things.

Candles were used, and hearth-fires shone as brightly as on a moonless evening in autumn. At Haverhill, a person twenty rods away could not be seen, and one person could not be distinguished from another in a room having three large windows.

Fowls retired to their roosts and went to sleep, cattle gathered at the pasture bars and lowed, frogs peeped, birds sang their evening songs and bats flew about. But the human knew that night had not come.

"Men prayed and women wept; all ears grew sharp to hear the doom-blast of the trumpet shatter
The black sky, that the dreadful face of Christ Might look from the rent clouds, not as he looked
A loving guest at Bethany, but stern
As Justice and inexorable Law."

In some places, excited persons ran about the streets shouting, "The day of judgment is at hand!" People asked forgiveness of each other for wrongs done to them. Others prayed for the first and last time. A number of sailors, with bravado, went noisily along the streets in Salem, crying out to the ladies they met, "Now you may off your rolls and high caps."

Dr. Nathaniel Whittaker, pastor of the Tabernacle church in Salem, held religious services in the meeting house, and preached a sermon in which he maintained that the darkness was supernatural. Congregations came together in many other places. The texts for the extemporaneous sermons were invariably those that seemed to indicate that the darkness was consonant with scriptural prophecy.* Devout fathers gathered their families around them in their homes and conducted religious services; and for a few hours Christians were stirred to activity, and non-professors earnestly sought for salvation, expecting

"To hear the thunder of the wrath of God Break from the hollow trumpet of the cloud."

The darkness was most intense shortly after eleven o'clock. The afternoon was somewhat lighter, the brassy appearance of the morning returning just before sunset. The clouds then returned, and the evening was the darkest, probably, that the people of New England have ever experienced, though the moon was full and rose at nine. With the night the gloom and fear passed, and the sunlight of another day was never more welcomed.

Though the darkness extended over the central portions of New England, it was most dense in Essex county, this being the centre, probably, of the mass of clouds that retained the smoke in so uncommon a manner.

ANCIENT PERKINS PAPERS.

John Baker eldest son of mr [John] Baker of Ipswich in New England, May 13, 1667, with consent of parents on both sides took to wife Katherine my second daughter, the first which the merciful Providence of God, gave me opportunity to be disposed of in marriage. This marriage was accompanied with a daughter, dead born 15 months after their marriage, and with the birth of a second daughter named Elizabeth born the last of March or beginning of April Anno 1670, I being in England, and with a son named John, I being in England after their marriage.

William my second son married Elizabeth Clarke daughter to Daniel Clarke of Topsfield, October 24, 1669, with consent of parents on both sides and before my return from England, was blest with a daughter named Elizabeth and, before my return the second time after their marriage with a daughter Mary and a son William at two births.

Elizabeth my eldest and first daughter was by Major Hathorn of and at Salem the last day of May 1671, married to John Ramsdell of Lynn, with consent of parents on both sides, and had her marriage blest while I was in England with her first daughter named Elizabeth, and after my second return from thence with a daughter named Mary and a son William at two births.

Mr Oliver Purchis, September 17, anno 1672 married Mary Perkins my third daughter, the Lord in mercy favour it with his blessing.

Mr John Bradstreet, June 11, 1677 married Sarah Perkins my fourth daughter with the free consent and appointment of his father Symond Bradstreet Esq. by the ministry of his uncle Major General Dennison.

Thomas Fiske, son to Capt. Fiske of Wenham, married Rebeckah Perkins, my fifth and youngest daughter the 3rd of November 1678 The Lord bless it to us all.
Tobijah Perkins, my second son took to wife Sarah Dennison, the 4th of November 1680, with the consent of both their parents at Major General Dennison's house. The Lord build them up and provide for the two younger sons also.

Topsfield, Dec. 25, 1833.

The foregoing is a true copy of an ancient manuscript that appears to be in the handwriting of the Rev. William Perkins, who died at Topsfield May 21, 1682.

WILL OF JANE GAINES.
The nuncupative will of widow Jane Gaines of Lynn cannot be found. It was proved 10: 5 mo: 1645; and the reference to it in the Salem quarterly court records, 2 mo: 1649, in connection with the division of her estate is all that has been learned as to its contents. She left three children, John, Daniel and Samuel, and an estate of £37 11s. 10d. John, the eldest son, aged about thirteen years, is to have £19 12s. 8d. in possession of Mr. Thomas Leighton and Nathaniel Handforth who are to improve it for him; and he is apprenticed to Francis Dowse of Boston, shoemaker, for seven years, to learn the shoemaker's trade. Daniel, the second son, aged about eleven years, is to have £9 16s. 4d. in the hands of said Leighton and Handforth; and he is apprenticed to Luke Potter of Concord for eight years from 1:6 mo: last, to learn the trade of a tailor, etc. Samuel, the youngest son, aged six or seven years, is to have £9 16s. 4d.; and he is apprenticed, until he is twenty-one years old, to Nathaniel Handforth, who is to educate him, etc. If either die, the others are to have his share. If Samuel dies within four years, a part of his share is to go to Mr. Handforth.

208. I have an old chart mentioning as the head of the Quimby or Quinby family one Goodman Quymbye about 1610. Was this the emigrant from London or Farnhau, or was it Robert who came over from England with one Scudder? What of their children? Good man Quinby probably landed in Saler about 1630 or 1635, as his son William or Robert left Wethersfield, Conn., in 1639 and settled in Stratford, Conn. I would like any early information about the Quimbys or Quinbys. I. Q. C.

ANSWERS.

108. Ruth Whittier, born July 31, 1701, was daughter of Joseph and Mary (Peaslee) Whittier; and Joseph Whittier, born May 8, 1669, was son of Thomas and Ruth (Green) Whittier. Mrs. Ruth (Whittier) Greeley died Dec. 4, 1745.—Mrs. Ellen M. Little, Newbury.

195. The ancestor of the Blaney family in America was John, of Lynn. He was first in Salem in 1659, aged twenty-nine. He married Hannah, daughter of Daniel King, of Lynn, July 11, 1660. Another John Blaney was in Charlestown, but I think the male line of that John has died out. The records of the Lynn family can be found in Lynn, Marblehead, Salem, and Malden, Mass. Part of the family went to Roxbury and from there to Bristol, Me.—Mrs. George Parkinson, Cincinnati, Ohio.
The frontispiece is a map of that section of Salem which is bounded by Washington, Essex, Summer and Norman streets. It is based on actual surveys and title deeds, and is drawn on a scale of two hundred feet to an inch. It shows the location of all the houses that were standing in 1700. The braces marked “a” show where Barton square now runs, and those marked “b” where Crombie street runs. Barton square was laid out by Samuel Barton in 1797, and Crombie street, as a court from Essex street about three-fourths of its present length, by Benjamin Crombie in 1805, being cut through to Norman street a score of years later.

Washington street in 1659 ran down to the Corwin land, where the Corwin land then being bounded easterly on the river. It was called a street in 1659, 1691 and 1714, and a country road in 1681. It was first called Street from town house to southfields in 1759; Street from court house to southfields in 1762; Street leading from town house to Marblehead in 1768; Highway from court house to Marblehead in 1773; Street leading to Marblehead in 1782; and Washington street in 1792.

Essex street was called a lane in 1659, and a country road in 1681. It was first called Main, or the main street in 1699; Queen’s highway in 1711; Paved street in 1790; and Essex street in 1802. In 1711 the western end was widened twelve feet on the southern side.*

Summer street was called a highway in 1659, and Street to southfields in 1699. It was first called Street, highway or road leading to Marblehead in 1711; Street to ye almshouse in 1746; Highway to the mills in 1755; Street from Main street to workhouse in 1762; Street from town pump to Marblehead in 1791; and Summer street in 1800.

Norman street was opened in 165— as a lane obstructed by bars. It was known in 1711 as the Highway that goes by John Norman’s, and was first called Norman’s lane that year. In 1768 it was called Street leading from town house to Marblehead; and Road from court house to Marblehead in 1792. It was first called Norman street in 1792.

In the sketches which follow, after 1700, titles and deeds referred to pertain to the houses and the land under and immediately adjacent thereto, and not always to the whole lot, the design being, after 1700, to give the history of the houses principally.

Elizabeth Tawley House. The house and lot of Mrs. Elizabeth Tawley was originally the estate of Dr. George Emery, an early chirurgeon of Salem. He was living in Salem in 1637, owned this land in 1652, and lived in this house as early as 1657.

May 1, 1677, in consideration of good will, he conveyed the house and lot to his kinswoman Elizabeth Tawley and her husband John Tawley, a mariner, the conveyance being made upon the condition that they maintain him during the remainder of his life.*

John Tawley died in 1690, and his widow Elizabeth and only child Elizabeth continued to live there. The daughter married Samuel Ruck before 1700, and they lived in this house, the widow Tawley boarding with them after 1703. A bedroom and pantry were added in the rear of the house when this change in the family occurred.

April 21, 1708, Samuel Ruck conveyed his wife's half interest in the premises to Mrs. Tawley*; and, Oct. 31, 1709, Mrs. Tawley conveyed the same interest to James Ruck, for £200.† This interest of James Ruck probably ultimately came into the ownership of Samuel Ruck, Mrs. Tawley's son-in-law, who, June 6, 1728, conveyed it to his children, Samuel Ruck, Jr., of Salem, shipwright, John Daniels of Boston, ropemaker, and his wife Elizabeth, and Abigail Ruck of Salem, spinster, the mother of the children being dead, and, also, probably, the daughter Ruth, who is not mentioned in this deed.§

Jan. 26, 1711, Mrs. Tawley conveyed her other half interest in the land and buildings to her daughter's four children, Elizabeth, Ruth, Samuel, and Abigail Ruck.|| Mrs. Tawley died in the winter of 1713-4, having, in her will, confirmed the conveyance to her grandchildren.

The granddaughters, Elizabeth Daniels and Abigail Ruck, released the house and land under and adjoining the same to their brother Samuel, who was a carpenter, March 30, 1730.† On the same day Samuel and Elizabeth released to Abigail the barn and land under and adjoining it.¶

Thus the whole title to the house and eastern end of the lot came into the ownership of Samuel Ruck.

On Christmas day, 1760, Mr. Ruck conveyed the southern half of the house and that portion of the lot to Jonathan Mansfield of Salem, blacksmith, the division line running through the front door and chimney, and the front door to be used in common, etc., "as long as said house shall be habitable." This expression indicates that the house was then old. In this deed, the leanto on the back side of the house was reserved, with liberty to remove it within six months. Mr. Ruck called it "my mansion house." The part of the house conveyed was the original house of Dr. Emery.

The northern part of this "double house" remained the property of Mr. Ruck until his death, in the spring of 1769. His administrator conveyed it to Henry Rust, cabinet-maker, Jan. 22, 1771; and the next day he conveyed it to Joseph Blaney, esq., of Salem, who, in turn, sold it to widow Sarah Collins of Salem April 22, 1777. Toward the end of the century it belonged to the estate of Hannah Taylor, deceased. Polly Collins, probably an heir of Sarah Collins, or Hannah Taylor, or both, married Nathaniel Cummings of Salem, blacksmith, Oct. 18, 1792. She and her husband conveyed their one-fourth interest in this part of the house and land to Joel Bowker of Salem, blacksmith, Sept. 12, 1797, the tenement being then occupied by the widow Williamson. Mr. Bowker sold this interest to George Smith of Salem, trader, Feb. 14, 1816; and Mr. Smith conveyed it to his son-in-law Thomas Frye Nov. 1, 1826. Mr. Frye sold it to Daniel B. Gardner, trader, and Joseph Gardner, 3d, innholder, both of Salem, Oct. 2, 1847.

After his purchase of the ancient house, as already mentioned, to the westward of this house, and upon the higher ground, Mr. Mansfield erected a residence for himself. This is the house in the old colonial style, that is now standing. It was built between 1760 and 1768.

To the west side of the original house, Mr. Mansfield erected a building in which were constructed two tenements; and after that time this end of the old house, with the addition, was called "the long house."

Mr. Mansfield died in the spring of 1791, having devised the long house to his.

four sons, Benjamin Bream, Ellis, Henry and Benjamin Mansfield.

Benjamin Bream Mansfield, cabinet-maker, conveyed his interest in the premises to his brother Ellis Mansfield Dec. 18, 1792;* and, on the next day, Ellis conveyed the interest he had bought and also his own to Samuel Putnam, † who was administrator of their father's estate.

The western end, or tenement, of the long house was conveyed by Ellis and Benjamin Mansfield to Henry Mansfield April 13, 1793; and Henry Mansfield conveyed it to George Smith Feb. 3, 1800. his daughter Mary, wife of Thomas Frye Dec. 13, 1830, and they sold it to the Gardners, already mentioned, Oct. 2, 1847.

In 1769, Mr. Mansfield's end of the original house was occupied by his sons Jonathan and Amos Mansfield and Josiah Howard; in 1793 and 1796 by Joseph Ayers and Ezekiel Goldthwait; and in 1797 by the widow Ayers and Ezekiel Goldthwait.

Aug. 8, 1793, the administrator of the estate of Mr. Mansfield conveyed this part of the house to John Norris.* Mr. Norris, who was a merchant of Salem, conveyed †Essex Registry of Deeds, book 155, leaf 147.

Mr. Smith died in 184-, having devised the tenement to his wife Dorcas, who survived him and conveyed it to the Gardners, already mentioned, Oct. 11, 1847.

The middle tenement of the long house was occupied in 1793 and 1796 by Joseph Mansfield, and conveyed by the administrator of the estate of Jonathan Mansfield to Thomas Bancroft, esq., of Salem, Aug. 25, 1796. On the same day Mr. Bancroft conveyed the tenement to Samuel Putnam, who sold it to George Smith Jan. 12, 1801. Mr. Smith conveyed it to James Fuller and Joel Bowker, both of Salem, blacksmiths, Dec. 22, 1796.† Oct. 12, 1797, Mr. Fuller released his interest in the premises to Mr. Bowker.§ For five hundred dollars the latter sold the tenement to George Smith Feb. 14, 1816.|| Nov. 1, 1826, Mr. Smith conveyed it to his son-in-law Thomas Frye, † who sold it to the Gardners, already mentioned, Oct. 2, 1847.*

When the railroad was extended in 1847, it was found necessary to cut off a part of the ancient house; and at that time the Gardners purchased the entire estate, raising the corner portion of the building, probably at that time, and constructing the first story of brick.

In the accompanying engraving the ancient house is that part of the structure which is on the corner, comprising the present second and third stories, and extending on either street as far as the projections in the building. The upper part has been burned away, and is now different from what it was years ago.

Upon the purchase of the premises, which was then known as "The Frye estate," the Gardners immediately transformed it into a hotel, which the proprietors called the "Railroad House," and put it in charge of Edward Stearns, who had come from Lowell. It was opened to the public on Monday, Jan. 31, 1848. It contained a considerable number of rooms for guests; though the principal object of the proprietors was to accommodate railroad travellers with meals. In speaking of the new place the week before it was opened, a local paper said, "Their saloon and sitting room, on the lower floor, are very spacious and elegant, with marble-topped tables and counters, French landscape paper hangings, splendid mirrors, &c." Liquors were dispensed freely, and the room devoted to gambling, being the corner room in the third story, was in constant use. The place became notorious throughout the region. The estate is still owned by the heirs of the Gardners, few of the rooms being occupied. Here P. S. Gilmore, as the leader of the Salem brass band, began his famous career, the band room remaining as it was when he occupied it some thirty years ago.

Estate of George Corwin House, and Estate of George Corwin and Jonathan Corwin Lots. These three lots contained four acres, and were a pasture belonging to Rev. Hugh Peter, the pastor of the First church in Salem, and subsequently a regicide, early in the settlement, probably having been granted to him by the town. After his return to England, he conveyed this pasture, by his attorney, Charles Gott of Wenham, to Capt. George Corwin of Salem, merchant, July 1, 1659.*

Captain Corwin died Jan. 3, 1684-5, aged seventy-four. This pasture was divided between his son Jonathan and the heirs of his son John, who had died July 25, 1683, the former taking the western end of the pasture to the division line shown on the map, which he owned until his decease June 9, 1718. Jonathan was the judge who lived in the "witch house," having succeeded his father there, and who sat upon the bench during the witchcraft trials. The heirs of John had the portion east of the division line. He was the older son, and probably at the time of his marriage, about 1660, his father erected for him the ancient house that stood where the Washington House is now located on Washington street. Apparently the title to the house and land remained in the father until his decease.

By agreement of the heirs of George Corwin, March 31, 1685, the northern portion of the premises was assigned to John's widow Margaret, and the southern half with the house to her elder son George, who spent the remainder of his life in it.† Margaret probably died in 1691-2, and the northern part was in the possession of her son Samuel Corwin for several years, and in the occupation of Capt. Walter Price Sept. 13, 1709, when it was conveyed by Elizabeth Corwin, gentlewoman, Lucy Elliston, widow, both of Boston, Peter Thacher of Weymouth, clerk, and wife Hannah, Thomas Smith of Boston, brazier, and his wife Mary, and Margaret Corwin of Boston, gentlewoman, to Joseph Flint of Salem.§

Captain George Corwin was the sheriff of the county, and but twenty-six years old when he hung the witches, being but thirty when he died in 1696. Even then the feeling against him was so strong that his friends were for a long time afraid to deposit his remains in the family tomb, a few rods in the rear of the house, and they were buried in the house cellar until the excitement had subsided.

Capt. Corwin married two daughters of Hon. Bartholomew Gedney, and by a declaration made March 17, 1691-2, a few months after he had acquired the title to the premises he conveyed the house and lot, after his decease, to his children.* His widow died Dec. 23, 1700; and the estate came into the hands of his son Bartholomew Corwin.

Bartholomew removed to Westerly, R. I., and, as soon as he became of age, conveyed the estate, for one hundred and sixty pounds, to Col. Samuel Browne of Salem July 5, 1714.†

Colonel Browne was wealthy, and resided in what is now Derby square, dying possessed of this house and lot June 21, 1731, and having devised the same to his son Benjamin, a boy of sixteen. Benjamin died, unmarried, Aug. 12, 1737, at the age of twenty-two. His heirs were his brothers, Cols. Samuel and William Browne. Samuel died Nov. 26, 1742, leaving two children, Hon. William Browne, a judge, and subsequently governor of Bermuda, and Abigail, who was afterward the wife of Joseph Blaney.

April 9, 1759, Benjamin's brother William, of Beverly, esq. (father of William Burnet Browne), released his half interest in the lot to his brother Samuel's children William and Abigail;§ and the last named William, of Salem, for two hundred and sixty-six pounds, conveyed his interest in the land, which he called two-thirds, to his sister Abigail's husband, Joseph Blaney, of Salem, gentleman, Oct. 5, 1762.‖

Mrs. Blaney died Dec. 24, 1776, and her husband conveyed the premises, including the house, warehouse and land to Joshua Ward of Salem Aug. 11, 1781.¶ Mr. Ward removed the old house, and built a large and fine brick residence upon the same site before 1789. When Washington visited Salem in his tour east, in 1789, this was the house in which he spent the night he stopped in Salem, October 29.

Jeremiah Rogers House. This lot was probably granted to Rev. Hugh Peter when he was settled as pastor of the church here in 1635. He probably lived in the house that was early erected on this lot. After the close of his ministry here he returned to England; and, 8: 12mo: 1659, by his attorney Charles Gott of Wenham, for twelve pounds, he conveyed the house and lot to Benjamin Felton of Salem;† and about a year later was executed as a regicide upon the accession to the throne of Charles II. Mr. Felton conveyed the house and lot to Jeremiah Rogers of Salem, for sixty pounds, Nov. 29, 1681.§ Mr. Rogers was a wheelwright, and lived in this house for many years. Here was probably born his son, Rev. John Rogers, who became the second minister of Boxford, and to whom his father conveyed the premises, for one hundred and fifty pounds, May I, 1717.¶ Rev. Mr. Rogers never lived here after he acquired the title, but let the house until March 26, 1750, when, for eighteen hundred pounds, he conveyed the estate to David Britton of Salem, gentleman, who then lived in the house.¶ The house was burned in the great fire, Oct. 6, 1774; and Captain Britton sold the lot, for four hundred and eighty pounds, to Henry Rust of Salem, merchant.¶ Mr. Rust came from Ipswich to Salem when a boy, and learned the carpenter's trade of Jonathan Gavet. He became a merchant, and upon this lot erected a brick residence, in one room of which was Dabney's bookstore of a century ago.

John Hathorne House. This lot and all the lots between this and Summer street, north of the Corwin land, belonged to Ralph Fogg in 1659, the tract containing about two acres. Mr. Fogg returned to England, and established himself as a furrier, first in Plymouth, and subsequently in London. He died in England about March 15, 1673-4, leaving the real estate to his widow Susanna and his three sons, John, David and Ezekiel. At the request of the widow, the brothers being together in Boston May 28, 1674, David and Ezekiel released the real estate to John, who then resided in Barnstable, Devonshire, England.*

John Fogg released to his brother Ezekiel, who was a merchant of London, but at that time in New England, a small portion of this lot, being that part within the four dashes, for thirty pounds, Jan. 2, 1674-5, the strip being then occupied by Hilliard Veren; and Ezekiel conveyed it, still being occupied by Mr. Veren, for ten pounds, to John Marston, jr., of Salem, carpenter.. Aug. 25, 1685, Deacon Marston conveyed the land and house to Colonel Hathorne.† On the south side of this lot was about a square rod of land without the travelled way which the town had permitted Thomas Tuck, the blacksmith, to use in connection with his shop. This is the triangular-shaped lot marked on the map. The town granted this lot to Colonel Hathorne March 31, 1684, and it was laid out to him by the selectmen twelve days later.

Upon the large lot that had belonged to the Foggs Colonel Hathorne erected his mansion house (where it is shown on the map), probably soon after his purchase, about 1675. He removed the house that he had bought of Deacon Marston in 1670, and probably allowed to become a part of the street again the lots that had been granted to West and himself.

Colonel Hathorne died in 1717, at the age of seventy-six. The house and lot were then valued at three hundred pounds. He devised his real estate to his sons Ebenezer, Joseph and Benjamin. Benjamin Hathorne lived in Salem, being a mariner, and he conveyed his interest in his father’s real estate in Salem to his brother Joseph July 13, 1726; and Ebenezer, who resided in London, England, being a mariner, conveyed his interest to Joseph, while in Virginia, July 10, 1732. Joseph Hathorne resided in this house, and was a mariner. He conveyed the estate to John Higginson of Salem, gentleman, for eight hundred and twenty-five pounds, Aug. 3, 1726;† and on the next day Mr. Higginson reconveyed it to Mr. Hathorne, who is then called a mariner.§ Mr. Hathorne died possessed of the house and lot in 1762, having devised his real estate to his wife Sarah for her life, with remainder to his sons William and Daniel and daughters Ruth, wife of David Ropes, and Sarah, wife of Daniel Cheever, equally. A partition was made Nov. 9, 1763, the sons taking the Hathorne farm and the daughters this house and lot.¶ April 6, 1764, the daughters divided the premises, Mrs. Ropes taking the house and eastern part of the lot, and Mrs. Cheever the western part of the lot.† There were upon this lot below the house, in 1772, three shops occupied by Samuel Archer, Samuel Blyth and Ebenezer Swan, respectively. The house was burned down in the great fire, Oct. 6, 1774, the shops escaping the flames.

Nathaniel Hathorne Lot. This was a part of Colonel Hathorne's field, and was conveyed by him, for ninety pounds, to his son Nathaniel Hathorne, a mariner, May 19, 1699.¶ Mr. Hathorne conveyed the western part of the lot to Joseph Flint Sept. 28, 1702; and the middle section to Mr. Flint June 26, 1704;†† Mr. Hathorne removed to Gosport, Southton county, Great Britain, and died there before 1712. His widow, Sarah, married, secondly, Nathaniel Satell of Gosport, mariner, and she conveyed, as executrix, the remaining part of the lot to Capt. William Bowditch of Salem, mariner, Jan. 7, 1712. §§

John Higginson Lot. Col. John Hathorne conveyed this lot to John Higginson, 3d, May 18, 1699.¶ Mr. Higginson erected a house upon this lot, probably after 1700, and died possessed of it.

Benjamin Marston Lot. Col. John Hathorne conveyed this lot to Benjamin Marston May 19, 1699.† He probably erected a house on this lot about 1708.

John Harvey Lot. Col. John Hathorne conveyed this lot to John Harvey of Salem, house carpenter, May 19, 1699.† Oct. 5, 1708, Mr. Harvey conveyed the eastern half to John Cabot of Salem, shopkeeper,¶ and the western half to John Ward of Salem, currier.

Henry West Lot. Col. John Hathorne conveyed this lot to Henry West of Salem May 19, 1699.†† Mr. West died possessed of the lot in 1703, having devised it to his son Samuel West in his will, which, though well and strong, he made, "considering the many sudden deaths that are of late," Feb. 3, 1700-1. The son Samuel built the house that subsequently occupied the site.

THE DAYS OF OLD.
Pleasant were those times, I trow,
Half a century ago,—
When our country newly free,
Sober in her liberty,
Well content with rural cheer,
Had not doffed her homespun gear,—
Did not ask on steam to fly,
With a whistle and a cry,—
Nor the lightning-flash employ
As her tireless errand-boy.
But she had a peaceful smile,
Full of heart and free from guile,
And at hearth-stone taught the while Truths to rear a healthful throng,
Love that made republics strong,—
And we bless the ancient strain
That restores her thus again.

"OLD FOLKS'" CONCERTS.

Among the incidents that gave real enjoyment to our fathers few were more desired than the "Old folks' concerts;" and their hearts would quicken at the remembrance of the evenings spent in singing over again the ancient songs.

Held in the old meeting-house, time-worn and weather-stained, with square pews, the singers were fitly ranged in the gallery. Girls and young men, middle-aged and gray-headed men and women, the veterans in song, were all there, to sing solo, duet or chorus; and the rich, full chords of the quaint old tunes rolled down the aisles in swelling tides of harmony.

In the earlier days the voice of some negro slave lent variety to the concert. The full, sweet, rich tones of the negro voice is ever beautiful. A writer testifies to its effect with exquisite language:—

"Loud he sang the psalm of David!
He, a negro, and enslaved,
Sang of Israel's victory,
Sang of Zion, bright and free.

"And the voice of his devotion
Filled the soul with strange emotion,
For its tones by turn were sad,
Sweetly solemn, wildly glad."

No piano or organ led the singers in the tune, though some villages could boast of a bass viol. They depended upon themselves, assisted only by the pitchpipe and baton of the leader, who,

"Glancing round his well-trained band,
Gave the key-tone loud and true,
Beating time with ardor due.

"On his brow with fixed intent
Every loyal eye is bent,
For his ear, as quick as thought,
Each incipient discord caught;
Scarcely the reverend man who stood
'Neath his sounding-board of wood,
Or a king in sceptred state
To that choir might seem so great.

"Foremost in the tuneful race,
By their privilege of place,
Breathed the tenor bold and clear—
Bass and treble follow near;
While the counter shrill and keen Filled the intervals between.
Thus, with perfect movement led,
Words of praise distinctly said,
Semibreves accented strong,
Flowed the surging tide of song.

"Ever new, and ever young,
Thus Old Hundred grandly rung,
Or St. Martin's sweetly swells,—
Bath, and Winchester, and Wells,— Mear and Aylesbury's tones of love,
With their full adagio move,
Jordan, and St. Helen's flow,
Dulce or fortissimo,— Denmark with its chorus high,
Hotham's tender harmony,—
And a host of equal claim,
Time would fail me here to name.

"Though, perchance, the modern school,
Nurtured 'neath Italian skies,
View with scorn the simply rule
Of those quaint old melodies;
Yet devotion deep and grave
Kindled at their earnest stave.
Pious ancestors were there,
Blooming cheeks,—and temples grey,— Saintly fathers,—where are they?
Find they not a Better Land?
Swell they not the seraph-band?"

ANGIER NOTE.
Jonathan Angier was of Salem in 1668. —Savage.
SABBATH DAY REMINISCENCES.

Our morning sacrifice we made, then to the house of God,
How solemnly, and silently, and cheerfully we trod!
I see e'en now its ancient roof, its aisles that stretched away,
And our old pastor's time-worn face, and hair of silver gray.
How well do I remember the hush throughout the air
While he led our spirits up to God, in heartfelt, melting prayer;
To grace his action or his voice, no studied charm was lent—
Pure, fervent, glowing from the heart, so to the heart it went.
Then came the sermon, long and quaint, but full of Gospel truth;
Ah me! I was no judge of that, for I was then a youth;
But I have heard my father say—and well my father knew—
In it was meat for full-grown men, and milk for children, too.

REV. ISAAC BRAMAN.

Rev. Isaac Braman was born in Norton, Mass., July 5, 1770. His father died when Isaac was but twelve years of age. He had an early and great desire for a liberal education, but his guardian would not accede to his wishes; and Isaac was near his nineteenth year when, having overcome the obstacles in his way, he began preparation for college. He graduated from Harvard University in 1794, at the age of twenty-four, his social standing and scholarship while in college having high rank.

He chose the ministry for a profession, and studied theology with several clergymen. He was ordained over the Congregational church in the West parish of Rowley (which was incorporated as the town of Georgetown in 1838) June 7, 1797. At that time the church was divided in doctrine between Hopkinsianism and Calvinism, and Mr. Braman was the sixty-fourth candidate. But he braved the "sea of troubles," as he called it, for sixty-one years, held the people together, and lived harmoniously with three colleagues, the last being Rev. Charles Beecher (half-brother of Rev. Henry Ward Beecher), who became his successor.

Mr. Braman died in office Dec. 26, 1858, at the age of eighty-eight. His remains lie in the old burial ground in Georgetown, and over them was erected, by his parishioners and friends, a marble monument, representing a desk with an open Bible thereon.

Mr. Braman was a man of strong mind, sound judgment, integrity, discretion and moral courage; was possessed of real piety and great amiability; and was well versed in theology, being a firm believer in the entire inspiration of the Scriptures, and an able and strong supporter of primitive Congregationalism. He was beloved by his people, and he gave to them his strong and sincere affection. Although a man of considerable presence, his clear blue eyes had a tender gleam that moderated his dignified bearing.

Mr. Braman was a conservative man, and could hardly be drawn into discussion, which he always disliked.

As a preacher he presented truth with clearness, and an application to the conscience. He wrote two sermons each week, composing them very carefully, and in their delivery was closely confined to the manuscript, which he read rapidly but distinctly.

His sensitive temperament made him somewhat shy and reticent, and this probably was the cause of his brevity at wedding and funeral services. Yet beneath his manner was humor, and a keen, fine sarcasm which caused him to be known in college as "Razor."

On a farm of forty acres and a salary of three hundred and fifty dollars, Mr. Braman maintained his family, and gave his children the best education of the period. His son Milton P. Braman was an able divine, being settled in Danvers; and another son, Isaac G. Braman, became eminent as a physician.

Mr. Braman married twice, each time securing a pastor's true helper. His first wife was Hannah Palmer of Norton. She died in 1835; and he married, secondly,
Miss Sarah Balch of Newburyport, who survived him, and died in Georgetown in 1893, at the age of one hundred and two.

"MARBLEHEAD, November 7. "Friday last, in the Afternoon, an unruly Horfe being let loose in the Street, kicked a Boy of about 5 Years old, and wounded him on the Breast, in such a Manner, as that he died the next Morning. Query. What is to be done with the Horfe?

"About 7 o’Clock the same Evening, Mr. Pritchett, a credible Inhabitant of this Town, left a Neighbour’s Houfe, in Order to go Home, with two Earthen Plates which he had bought there; the Woman lighted him out, and begged him to be careful of the WELL; he answered, that he knew well enough where the WELL was:
He had gone but two or three steps in the dark, before (as is supposed) he stumbled over a large stone, near the well, and he being lame, could not recover himself, but fell head-foremost into the well, and was found next morning, with his head in the mud, at the bottom of the well, and his feet just out of water. This, 'tis said, is the second person that has perished in the same well! A loud call to the selectmen of the town, that they take care that this and all other wells in the town, lying in the same unguarded and dangerous condition, be properly secured, or fill'd up."—Essex Gazette, Nov. 1-8, 1768.

Answers

121. Mary Tyler married James Manning, both of Salem, July 2, 1745. I do not find on record the marriage of Mary Tyler to John H. Reed in that year. Is the querist mistaken as to the name of the husband? Mary Tyler was probably the Mary Tyler who was baptized in the first church in Salem Jan. 21, 1727-8. Her parents were Joshua and Margaret (Lambard) Tyler, who were married in Salem Nov. 13, 1712. Mr. Tyler was a mariner, and administration was granted on his estate in 1735, his wife Margaret being appointed administratrix.—Ed.

203. Elizabeth Clement, born March 6, 1716-7, married Joseph Haynes. She was probably daughter of Nathaniel Clement (born June, 1689) and Sarah Merrill (died July 10, 1748). He was son of John Clement (born Sept. 16, 1653; died May 16, 1692) and Elizabeth Ayers (or Ayer), who were married Feb. 22, 1676. He was son of Robert Clement and Elizabeth Fawne (or Fane) (died March 27, 1715), who were married Dec. 8, 1652. He was son of Robert Clement of Haverhill, who was born about 1590, and died Sept. 29, 1658. See Savage; History of Haverhill by Chase; and Old Families of Salisbury and Amesbury by Hoyt.—T. T. DROWNING ACCIDENT.

SALEM, November 15.

On Monday Evening, last Week, two Men, one named Young Flynt, belonging to Chelsea, and the other John Welman, of Lynn, went from Mr. Martin's Tavern, in that Place, and got into a canoe to return home; the Canoe accidentally over- let, when both of them held to it, and cried for Help; which was heard from the Shore, where great Numbers of Persons assembled. Mr. Wellman soon gave out, and sunk; but Mr. Flynt held to the Canoe near two Hours, and was carried in this Condition near a Mile by the Tide: Among the People on the Shore, were Wife and Children, who tried to persuade him to leave the Boat, and swim ashore (as they knew he could swim well) but he seemed possessed with an Opinion that he was at a great Distance from the Shore, notwithstanding he was so near as to be talking with his Wife, and the other People about her, and could not be farther off than a Stone's Throw, tho' it was so dark they could not be seen by each other. A Number of People went off in a Boat to relieve him, but could hear nor fee nothing of him after they left the Shore: So that after holding till his Strength failed him, funk and was drowned. Both the Bodies of these unfortunate Men were found the next Day, and have been since interred. Mr. Flynt has left a Widow and five Children: Mr. Wellman was a Batchellor.—Essex Gazette, Nov. 8-15, 1768.

ESSEX COUNTY IN 1643.

The frontispiece of this number of the Antiquarian is a map of the county of Essex as it was established in 1643, except that portion of Lynn which was incorporated as Reading the following year. It was formed of the eight towns that appear upon the map, and these towns, with the exception of Wenham, have been since sub-divided.

From Andover, was set off the southeastern corner to form a part of Middleton in 1728, the northwestern corner to form a part of Lawrence in 1847, and North Andover was set off in 1855.

From Newbury, was set off Newburyport in 1764, and, in 1819, Parsons (the name being changed to West Newbury the next year).

From Rowley, was set off, in 1675, Bradford (from which Groveland was set off in 1850), in 1685, Boxford (from which the southwestern corner was taken to form a part of Middleton in 1728), and Georgetown in 1838.

From Ipswich, was set off, in 1650, the western end to form a part of Topsfield, and Essex in 1819.

From Gloucester, was set off Rockport in 1840.
From Salem, was set off Manchester in 1645, Marblehead in 1649, in 1650 the northern portion to form a part of Topsfield (the western end being set off in 1728 to form a part of Middleton), Beverly in 1668, the northwestern portion to form a part of Middleton in 1728, and, in 1757, Danvers (the southern portion being set off, in 1855, as South Danvers, the name being changed to Peabody in 1868).

From Lynn, was set off Lynnfield in 1814, Swampscott in 1852, and Nahant in 1853.

Danvers was established as a "district" in 1752, and Lynnfield in 1782.

Numerous changes in town lines have occurred, but none, other than those above mentioned, are material.

THE GRAVES OF A HOUSEHOLD.

O Love!—so hallowing every soil
That gives Thy sweet flower room,
Wherever, nursed by ease or toil,
The human heart takes bloom!—

Plant of lost Eden, from the sod
Of sinful earth unripened,
White blossom of the trees of God
Dropped down to us from heaven!—

This tangled waste of mound and stone
Is holy for thy sake;
A sweetness which is all thy own
Breathes out from fern and brake.

John G. Whitteier.

DODGE’S ROW BURYING GROUND.

This burying ground is in North Beverly near the Wenham line. Richard Dodge, of Beverly, the owner of the land, buried some members of his family here, having set apart the lot for that purpose at the close of the seventeenth century. Ever since that time the lot has been used as a burying place by Mr. Dodge’s descendants and others. Additions were made to the lot in 1812,* and the entrance from the street was bought in 1815,† The following are all the inscriptions now to be found on the stones in this yard that bear dates prior to 1800.

ANSWERS.

125. Miriam Haskins (not Hoskins), who married Jonathan Cole of Beverly in 1722, was daughter of John and Sarah (Gale?) Stone of Beverly, where she was born April 9, 1695. Her father was born about 1658. She married, first, Samuel Haskins of Beverly, ferryman (published Feb. 19, 1716). He died Nov. 11, 1717, at the age of twenty-six; and she married, secondly, Jonathan Cole of Beverly, tailor, as stated in the query.—Ed.

166. By the deed of Samuel Perley of Ipswich, dated in 1714, and recorded in Essex county Deeds, book 29, leaf 47, it appears that Sarah, wife of Joseph Andrews of Salem Village, was daughter of said Samuel Perley, and not of his brother John Perley. She was the eldest child of Samuel Perley and Ruth Trumbull, who were married in 1664. Ruth Trumbull was daughter of John and Ellen Trumbull, and was born in Rowley April 23, 1645.—Ed.

ALLEN NOTES.

Mary Allen (No. 2, page 7) married Dr. Roger Toothaker of Billerica June 9, 1665; and was killed by the Indians Aug. 5, 1695.

Hannah Allen (3) died Sept. 30, 1698.
Sarah Allen (4) was born about 1646, married Samuel Holt probably about 1669, and died, his widow, April 3, 1716.

Martha Allen (6) married Thomas Carrier May 7, 1674.

Andrew Allen (No 10, page 8) was born Dec. 20, 1685.

The ancient Allen homestead in Andover, was, I think, on the hill near Sunset rock. The family was, perhaps, of Scotch descent.

THE OLD HOME.

O little house lost in the heart of the cedars,
What would I not give to behold you once more!
To inhale once again the sweet breath of your roses,
And the starry clematis that climbed round your door.
My sweet pink pea-clusters! My rare honeysuckle!
My prim polyanthuses all of a row!
In a garden of dreams I still pass and caress you,
But your beautiful selves are forever laid low—
For your walls, little house, long ago have been levelled;
Alien feet your smooth borders, O garden, have trod;
And those whom I loved are at rest from their labors,
Reposing in peace on the bosom of God.

WELLMAN HOUSE, LYNNFIELD.

BY THOMAS B. WELLMAN.

Leaving the Lynnfield Centre railroad station by the way of Summer street, about a mile distant, near the junction of Summer and Walnut streets, stood the ancient Wellman house, which, with the farm of one hundred and eighty acres, was one of the old New England homes which have contributed so much toward making our country what it is.

The house that originally stood upon this spot was owned by John Smith. It was rude and small. About 1650, Mr. Smith conveyed the estate to Thomas Wellman. In 1653, another house had been built, although the pioneer served for generations afterward.

The second house stood on the western slope of the hill near the elms, and was the home of Thomas Wellman and his descendants of the name, for about one hundred and seventy-five years.

Traces of the foundations of the old house are still plainly seen, and the site is still visited by descendants of the early families that resided there, who carry away a brick or a stone, a stick or a plant.

The country around is beautiful, being wood, field and meadow, dotted with farm houses.

The site of the house, although near the street, is hidden by the towering pine, the arching elm, the spiral cedar, and the savin.

The bounds of the ancient structure can be plainly seen, and it appears as if additions to the house had been made at different times. The stairs leading to the cellars, which were separately constructed, were of stone; and at the front lies the doorstone on which feet stepped for two hundred years.

One night a little fellow was found upon the doorstep. He was taken in and reared to manhood. He married one of the relatives of the family, had a large number of children, and was at the battle of Lexington.

Not far from the house was the old well and the ancient flower garden. Still farther away is an excellent spring of water, which was named after Robert Bates, one of the early settlers, and a remarkably worthy man.

Thomas Wellman died Oct. 10, 1672, leaving three sons and four daughters. The mother's name was Elizabeth. Isaac, one of the sons, was a soldier in the war with the Indians, being impressed by the king into Captain Gardner's regiment Feb. 29, 1675-6. A grandson, Abraham Wellman, jr., died in the expedition which captured Louisburg in 1745. Several descendants served and suffered by wounds and privations in the Revolution, as well as in the Mexican war and the Rebellion. Drs. John and Jedediah Wellman were also among the descendants of the first Thomas, the latter being born here. Rev. James Wellman, D. D., was born in this house in 1744. His grandson, Rev. Joshua W. Wellman, resides in Malden, as does also the latter's son, Hon. Arthur H. Wellman.

One of the relics of this family is a cup which belonged to the first Thomas. There is, also, a razor hone of sea wood; a panelled chest brought over in 1640; and a child's chair, an elaborate piece of work made from the native hard wood.
BEVERLY INSCRIPTIONS.
ANCIENT NORTH BEVERLY CEMETERY.

This burial ground was laid out and first used in 1715, when the church was established in this parish. The earliest intelligible inscription there bears the date of 1717. The following are all the decipherable inscriptions, bearing dates prior to 1800, that are now to be found there.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THE PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT OF NE-BRASKA TERRITORY AND THE JOURNALS OF WILLIAM WALKER, PROVISIONAL GOVERNOR OF NEBRASKA TERRITORY. Lincoln, Neb., 1899. This valuable volume is issued by the Nebraska State Historical Society in commendable shape. It is edited by William E. Connelley; contains eleven portraits on plates and a Map of the Wyandott Purchase, 423 pages, and a good index. The journals of Governor Walker cover the period between 1845 and 1854; and those together with the remainder of the volume constitute one of the most important western historical works yet issued.
Many notes, illustrative and explanatory,
add greatly to its interest and value.

SARGENT RECORD: William Sargent ofIpswich, Newbury, Hampton, Salisbury and Amesbury, and his descendants, and other Branches of the Sargent Family, By Edwin E. Sargent. St. Johnsbury, Vt., 1899. This is a closely printed genealogy of the Sargent family of 331 pages; being well indexed, and illustrated with two wood cuts and thirty-nine small half-tone cuts of portraits included in the text, and four portraits on plates. The work is appartently complete, and shows the immense amount of labor involved in its compilation. The volume is well printed, and substantially and neatly bound in cloth.
But for the author's compact method of presenting the facts, the book would have contained five hundred pages. The volume will be sent postpaid, by the publishers, The Caledonian Co., St. Johnsbury, Vt., for $2.20.
Oft earth, let my example shine

COOPERS IN SALEM.

By Henry C. Gauss.

The most important class of artisans during the period of Salem's foreign commerce was that of the coopers. Besides making the packages in which many kinds of commodities were shipped abroad, they conducted the packing of the more perishable, as well as the liquids, and divided the imports of wines and liquors received from abroad for shipment to domestic points.

The cooper of a mercantile establishment occupied a position of much dignity, and was an individual to be considered. Certain well understood perquisites, in the way of a contribution from each lot of goods shipped, were awarded to him; and the ability of shipments to endure long voyages and rough handling depended upon his care.

Of the cooperage of Salem there is not a remnant left, except the abandoned shops and the few surviving craftsmen. Yet at one time a very considerable portion of the men of "down-town" were employed in the cooper shops and along the wharves in the pursuit of hand cooper ing, which was no slight mystery.

Previous to the civil war the principal products of the cooper shops of "down-town" were hogsheads for rum, molasses and fish. The rum hogsheads were delivered at the distilleries which stood in the vicinity of Charter street, and the molasses hogsheads were "shook down" and shipped in their component sections to the West Indian islands. Numbers of Salem coopers went to Cienfuegos and Trinidad to reset the molasses hogsheads and to complete their cooper ing.

The fish hogsheads were filled in the warehouses on the wharves, the fish being packed with the aid of a primitive screw and lever, the last one of which was still in use in the Fabens warehouse at the head of Derby street within twenty years.

Making hogsheads was heavy, laborious work. The material was oak of the most obdurate kind and a hard day's work at hogshead making was a more exhausting task than is set any artisan of today.

The pleasanter part of the cooper's duties was in work on the wharf packing fish, or in the bake house packing ship bread, or in drawing from the pipes of wine or brandy smaller quantities for the supply of interior points. Of the former he carried home the cooper's portion at the close of his day's work, and disposed of his portion of the latter from time to time as he went along through the day.

Many of the Salem coopers went to sea as coopers of whaling barks on two, three or more years' cruises. The cooper afloat was not less important a personage than ashore, and his "lay" was next in order to that of the officers.

As the foreign commerce of Salem decreased, kegs for lead became the principal output, and Rowell's shop on Webb's wharf, Getchell's at the head of Phillips wharf, and Florence's on Cedar street in South Salem, practically supplied the lead kegs and buckets of the country for some years.

The last remaining of the hogshead shops were those of John Battis on Derby street opposite Charter, Phippen & Felt's on White's wharf, and the shop on Derby wharf last occupied by "Tom" Brady. The work in these shops was all hand labor with the adze, the shaver and the jointer, and the principal feature of the shop was the immense fireplace whose chimney looked out on perpetual starlight, and in which the great hoghead was set over a fire of shavings and chips to char the inner side of the staves to prevent absorption.

The use of machinery in preparing staves and setting up barrels together with the migration of the seat of demand from Salem utterly extinguished cooperage here and with it the thriving trade in "cooper's chips," one of the main sources of spending money of the boys of "down-town."

DESCENDANTS OF DANIEL ANDREW OF SALEM.

SAMPLERS.

A century ago every little girl in well regulated families wrought a sampler, that is, a particular specimen of her skill in ornamental needle-work known by that name, the word coming from the Latin exemplar, meaning a specimen.

Samplers were generally about fifteen inches square, though of different shapes and sizes, being worked with many colors of silk on loose coarse canvas. They nearly always contained the alphabet, either capitals or lower-case letters, sometimes both, and in print or script styles. A precept or verse of poetry was frequently added, together with the name and age of the maker, and the date of its being wrought. It was ornamented with various artistic borders and fancy designs, and sometimes pictures, generally more or less crude, were worked, showing in some instances much artistic taste, and always patience and perseverance worthy of emulation.

The frontispiece of this number of the Antiquarian is one of the best representative specimens of a sampler. It is shown in its frame as it is suspended from the wall. It was wrought by Sally Butman of Marblehead in 1801, when she was ten years of age. Following the customary alphabet is the verse,

"On Earth let my example shine,
And when I leave this State
May heaven receive this Soul of mine
To bliss divinely great."

With her name the maker states her age and the date, and fills the remaining space with a garden scene. In the foreground four sheep stand in a row. The lady has a fan in her hand, and the gentleman is offering her a sunshade. A little dog is reaching up its fore-paws to the lady; and on the central shrub is a peacock, while on the bush at the left rests a smaller bird. The border is elaborate and artistic. The whole of the sampler is nicely wrought; and the figures of the persons show the styles of dress prevailing at the beginning of the century. It is the property of the maker's grand-niece, Miss Martha O. Howes of Salem.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

NOTES ON THE FAMILIES OF TERRY, WHITE AND WOODBURY. By Justin P. Kellogg. Geneva, Switzerland, 1899. This is a pamphlet of forty-five octavo pages that the author has published, for private circulation only, as a supplement to his Notes on Joseph Kellogg of Hadley, which he issued last year. He gives some of the early generations of the families of which he treats on both sides of the water.

THE PEASLEES AND OTHERS OF HAVERTOWN AND VICINITY. By E. A. Kimball. Haverhill, 1899. In a little book of seventy-two octavo pages Mrs. Kimball has given much genealogical material and family history relative to the old families of the eastern part of Haverhill. It is well indexed, and contains five beautiful plates, showing ancient homesteads and the old Rocks bridge. It may be obtained of the author, Mrs. E. A. Kimball, East Haverhill, Mass., in paper at $1.00, in cloth at $1.50.

THE MAYFLOWER DESCENDANT: A QUARTERLY MAGAZINE OF PILGRIM GENEALOGY AND HISTORY. Boston, 1899. The Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants have begun a quarterly magazine with the above title. The first number was issued in January of the current year, and contains sixty-four octavo pages, being well printed. The price is two dollars per year. The design of the magazine is to collect and preserve all records pertaining to the Pilgrims, their ancestors and descendants. The initial number is attractive, the matter being illustrated and varied.
REV. JONATHAN PARSONS.

Rev. Jonathan Parsons was son of Dea. Ebenezer and Margaret (Marshfield) Parsons, and was born in West Springfield, Mass., Nov. 30, 1705. He was early apprenticed to a mechanical trade, but his great desire for an education being promoted by encouragement given to him by Rev. Jonathan Edwards of Northampton, he began preparation for college by himself while working at his trade. He entered Yale college at the age of twenty, graduating in 1729.

Apparently he had no design as to his future occupation when he entered college. He was not religious until he was half through his college course, when, while prostrated by a fever at his father’s house, his mind was directed to eternal things by the danger he was in, and he became, as he said, very serious, concluding that it was his duty to join the church, which he did. At this juncture he decided to enter the ministry.

Before his departure from college Mr. Parsons began the study of theology under the direction of Rev. Elisha Williams, the college president, and also with Rev. Mr. Edwards, who had encouraged him in his studies at the beginning.

Although his ideas savored of Arminianism, he was licensed to preach and ordained over the Congregational church at Lyme, Conn., in March, 1731.

Some years passed successfully before Mr. Parsons became convinced that he was not a believer in Christ as the Saviour in grace, but rather had faith in his own righteousness. After a terrible mental struggle he was ready to receive the truth, which ever afterward gave him perfect peace and great success in all his subsequent efforts.

Soon after this time the New Light movement began, and Mr. Parsons drank deeply from the spiritual spring, having been so lately a recipient of the fulness of blessing which the new movement so strongly emphasized. The great English evangelist, Rev. George Whitfield, and Rev. Gilbert Tennent, who were at that time arousing the entire country to a new and lively sense of eternal things, were often at Lyme, and always stayed with Mr. Parsons when they could. With them he labored in all the surrounding region.

In his early ministry Mr. Parsons paid much attention to his manner of writing and delivery. He was possessed of a logical mind, and was noted for his correct, clear, and even elegant style. But after he better understood the truths of the gospel, and salvation of human souls became the principal object of his efforts, his manner and diction were less polished and his style less flowery. But his sermons were enhanced in feeling and force, and his eloquence increased, as, under his new light, he discoursed upon the momentous subjects that filled his mind, being solicitous only that he be clearly understood. His rich and lively imagination made him remarkable as an extemporaneous speaker. One who often heard him preach wrote:—

“Oh! with what astonishing terror have I heard him represent the torments of hell, and the imminent, amazing danger of the impenitent sinner! With what glowing colors and sweetly surprising language would he paint the glories of heaven and describe the holy and elevated joys of immortality! In what melting strains would he represent the sufferings of Christ and his dying love to sinners! So lively were his descriptions of the great Redeemer's excruciating sufferings, that the solemn scenes of Gethsemane and Calvary would seem to open afresh to the view, and revive anew to the imagination of his auditors, so that Christ might be said to be set forth crucified before their eyes, in his animated descriptions. With what alluring persuasions would he pray and entreat sinners, in Christ's stead, to be reconciled to God. Such was the apparent fervor of his spirit, and the tender emotions of his compassionate heart, that he would sometimes appear as a flame of fire, and then all dissolved in tears."

After the change in his religious con-vincions and faith had occurred, it is said that he actually burned the sermons he had previously written, as unworthy of preservation.

Mr. Parsons was of medium height, and had light complexion, blue eyes, and a prominent chin. His voice was clear and commanding, and his countenance indicated strength of character. His manners were easy and polished, though sometimes marred by his hasty temper, which will, education and divine influence had done much to soften, but had not wholly controlled.

He was well versed in Latin and Greek, and a well-read historian. Early in his ministry he became proficient in medicine, and practised it in connection with his ministerial labors for some time.

Difficulties between himself and his church necessarily arose after his religious belief had changed. He was probably settled as one having Arminian proclivities at least, and for several years preached the doctrine of works rather than of grace; and when he frankly confessed his error and came out boldly and strongly for salvation in Christ alone, several of his people became his enemies, giving erroneous reports of the doctrines he preached, and making his position there so uncomfortable that he asked to be dismissed, in October, 1745, which request was duly granted.

As a result of Mr. Whitfield's preaching in Newbury, in 1740, a number of the members of the Third church organized a new society, erecting a meeting-house on High street in 1742. They were called the New Lights. Joseph Adams of By-field, a Harvard graduate, preached to them, and the society gained in numbers.

At the time of Mr. Parsons' dismissal from the church in Lyme, this new society in Newbury had become considerable in size, and, at the desire of Mr. Whitfield, Mr. Parsons was invited to visit Newbury.
He accordingly left Lyme Oct. 28, 1745,
and arrived in Newbury a few days later.
"I found," he said, "a number of serious Christians in the congregation which I came to visit, who appeared to be understanding, solid, and in some measure established in the main points of Christian document. But many others appeared of an Antinomian turn, full of vain confidence, self-conceit, false affections, etc., and some that were the greatest Christians in their esteem appeared to be worldly and covetous."

In January, 1746, the society invited
Mr. Parsons to become their pastor.
After much importunity he consented.
Attempts were made by the enemies of the new society to prevent the formal establishment of a church and the settlement of a regular pastor. The installation therefore did not occur until March 19, 1746, when Mr. Parsons preached from 1 Peter, v. 9, "Steadfast in the faith." Without calling a council the church proceeded to install the new pastor. The exercises were very simple.
The pastor-elect stood with uplifted hand and said, "In the presence of God and these witnesses I take this people to be my people;" and the clerk of the society, in behalf of the church and congregation, then arose and said, "In the presence of God and these witnesses we take this man to be our minister." They deemed it expedient to take the Presbyterian form of church government; and it is the same to-day, being known as the First Presbyterian church of Newburyport.

Mr. Parsons resided on High street until 1765, when he built a house on School street. In 1756 a new meeting-house was built on the corner of Federal and School streets;* and it is still standing, having been the place of worship of this flourishing society ever since that early date.

In 1770 Mr. Whitfield made his last visit to New England, and Mr. Parsons' house was his home here, as it had been at Lyme. At this time the famous evangelist, having been in Maine, came to Newburyport on a Saturday night to preach for his friend on the following day. But at six o'clock on that morning, in Mr. Parsons' chamber, he died from exhaustion caused by over-exertion. A few hours later, at the service when Whitfield was expected to preach, Mr. Parsons delivered to an immense audience a sermon from Phil. i. 21, "To die is gain."

The remains of the evangelist were placed in a vault beneath the pulpit of Mr. Parsons' meeting-house, such having been the wish of the deceased.

Mr. Parsons survived his friend but a few years. His constitution broke down, and at the conclusion of a long and painful illness he joyously died, July 19, 1776, at the age of seventy. His remains were placed by the side of those of the evangelist. Fifteen years later those of Rev. Joseph Prince, the blind preacher, were also deposited there. And there to-day may be seen the actual remains of these distinguished divines, who in those early days were the subjects of the deepest hate as well as the sincerest love and reverence.

Mr. Parsons was a faithful and vigilant pastor, ever setting up the Bible as the only and infallible standard of divine truth and unerring rule of practice. He had great success in the ministry, both at Lyme and Newbury.

Many of his efforts were printed: Letters in the Christian History, 1741; Sermon at the Boston Lecture, 1742; Letters on Justification, 1748; Good News from a Far Country, seven discourses, 1756; Rejoinder to R. Abercrombie's remarks on a fair narrative of the proceedings of the Presbytery of Boston against himself, 1758; Sermon on connection between true godliness, etc., 1759; Manna gathered in morning, 1761; Infant Baptism from Heaven; two sermons, 1770; Sermon on the death of Mr. Whitfield, 1770; Controversial Letters to Smith on Baptism; Freedom from Civil and Ecclesiastical Tyranny, 1774; and Sixty Sermons, two octavo volumes, 1780, the last being posthumous.

Mr. Parsons married, first, Phebe, daughter of John Griswold, esq., of Lyme, Dec. —, 1731. She died Dec. 26, 1770; and the next year he married Lydia, widow of Andrew Clarkson, esq., of Portsmouth, N. H. She survived him. He had seven children: Marshfield lived in Lyme; Jonathan lived in Newburyport, being a sea-captain; Samuel Holden graduated at Harvard college in 1756, studied law, became a major-general in the revolution and an Aid to Washington, who subsequently appointed him governor of the North-West Territory; Thomas lived at Newburyport and was a sea-captain; Phebe married Capt. Ebenezer Lane of Boston; Lucia married Capt. Joseph Toppan of Newburyport; and Lydia married Capt. Moses Greenleaf.

SNOW BOUND.

All night long the storm roared on;
The morning broke without a sun;
In tiny spherule traced with lines
Of Nature's geometric signs,
In stary flake and pellicle,
All day the hoary meteor fell;
And, when the second morning shone,
We looked upon a world unknown,
On nothing we could call our own.

The wild animals of the forest became desperate with hunger. Succulent shrubs were buried beneath the snow, and deer found sustenance scarce; the bears and wolves, both being then numerous in our forests, also became ravenous and killed, it is said, ninety-five out of every hundred deer. This caused such a scarcity of deer that the general court passed an act compelling towns to choose deer-reeves, whose duty it was, as far as possible, to protect the deer. These officers were anually elected until the country had become so populated that the animals had entirely disappeared.

Fierce with hunger, bears, wolves and foxes nightly visited the very sheep pens of the farmers.

Multitudes of sparrows came into the settlements for food. Marine animal life was also affected.

Apple trees were greatly injured by the snow becoming encrusted about the boughs, breaking them down. Also, the crust was so strong that cattle walked upon it, browsing the twigs.

The "post boys," the carriers of the mail from town to town, were delayed for weeks after the storm was over. As late as March 25, they were travelling on snow shoes, the carrier between Salem, Mass., and Portsmouth, N. H., being nine days in going to Portsmouth and eight days in returning, a distance of forty miles. In the woods, he said that he found snow five feet deep and in places from six to fourteen feet.

Some small houses were completely buried in the snow; and everywhere paths were shovelled under the snow between house and barn, and also from house to house among near neighbors.

Snow shoes were in common use throughout the winter.

Coffin, in his history of Newbury, tells of Abraham Adams leaving through a chamber window of his house and going on snow shoes over the snow-packed valley and among the hills three miles away to visit his lady-love. He entered her house also by a chamber window, and he

THE WINTER OF 1716-17.

This was a mild winter so far as temperature went, but since that time probably an equal amount of snow has not fallen in any other season. Cotton Mather said that the country was overwhelmed with it.

Snow began to fall early in the winter months, and it was five feet deep in December. Travelling was almost impossible except on snowshoes.

By February snow lay in great drifts, in some places twenty five feet in depth. In the woods it was more than a yard deep.

The greatest storm of the season began on February 18th and continued till the 23d, beginning again on the 24th so violently that all communication between neighbors ceased. The storm left the snow from ten to fifteen feet deep on the level, and in places for long distances twenty feet. The oldest Indians had never heard of a storm that was its equal.

On the day the second storm began,
Sunday, the 24th, no religious meetings were held throughout New England.

The winter was very disastrous to animal life. Many cattle were buried in the snow and starved or smothered to death, some being found dead after the snow had melted standing and apparently still living.

Others near the sea, being blinded by the snow wandered into the water and were drowned. Many sheep and some swine and even poultry were lost by being buried under the drifts.
was the first person the family had seen for a week. The young lady was Abigail Pierce. This must have been the first severe storm of the season as the couple were married on December 6th.

CAPT. NICHOLAS ANDREWS² lived in Marblehead, and was a master mariner. In 1704 he was captain of the ketch Repair, which the French privateers chased on shore in Barbadoes. From the wreck he saved the goods, shipping them to Salem, to Philip English, the merchant, by the ship Pleasure, Capt. Francis Ellis; himself returning in the ketch Susanna, of Salem, belonging to English. In 1706 he commanded a brigantine called The Beginning. After 1722 Captain Andrews was an innholder in Marblehead, and continued in that employment as long as he lived. He married Mary Fairfield of Wenham, in Lynn, June 27, 1695. Administration on his estate was granted
June 2, 1730. His wife survived him,

Andrew Eliot of the New North Church, Boston. Their stones are in the Granary burying-ground. She died Sept. 26, 1760. Could she have been the daughter of Samuel Symonds and Elizabeth Andrews mentioned in the August Antiquarian? If so, who were Samuel’s ancestors? E. E. Nonquitt.

233. Thomas Newhall of Malden married about 1700, Mary ———. Can any one give me her parentage?

Croton on Hudson, N. Y. C. T. R. M.

235. Who was Benoni Cilley (or Silley) of Salisbury, about 1700? C. M. A. Grand Rapids, Mich.

236. Who has and will sell a copy of volume 1, number 1, of The Antiquarian? C. M. A.

238. Where did Timothy Dustin, youngest son of Hannah Dustin, settle? Dryden, N. Y. E. A. M.

ANSWERS.

140. Hannah Haseltine, wife of Benjamin Cushing, was daughter of Nathaniel and Abigail (Tenney) Haseltine, and was born in Haverhill Dec. 12, 1732. Her father was son of Nathaniel and Deliverance (Robie) Haseltine, and was born in Haverhill April 15, 1683; and his grandfather was John Haseltine (freeman, 1640) of Bradford and Haverhill, who died Dec. 23, 1690. John Haseltine's wife Joan Anter, died July 17, 1698. Nathaniel Haseltine sr., was born 20: 7: 1656; and married, Dec. 28, 1680, to Deliverance Robie, who died Dec. 20, 1686. Nathaniel Haseltine, sr., died Jan. 14, 1723-4. Hannah (Haseltine) Cushing's mother was a daughter of Elder Samuel and Abigail (Bailey) Tenney, who lived in Bradford (in that part now Groveland), where their daughter Abigail was born Nov. 22, 1689.—Ed.

226. The descent of Priscilla Bartlett, on the Bartlett side, is as follows: Richard¹, Richard², Richard³, Samuel⁴, and Joshua⁵. Samuel⁴, son of Richard, married Abigail Wells,—not Samuel⁵, son of Samuel⁴, as D. W. Hoyt gives it in his "Early Settlers of Salisbury and Amesbury;" see wills of Samuel, sr., and jr., which prove this. Joshua⁵ married Priscilla ———. He was a joiner of Amesbury in 1757, and of Kingston, N. H., in 1771 and 1791. The Moulton family genealogy is incorrect in saying William Moulton’s daughter Abigail married Samuel Bartlett. His will, Essex probate, volume 319, page 495, says plainly she is wife of Daniel Bartlett.—Benjamin P. Holbrook, Boston.

EDITORIAL.

The nuncupative will of George Abbott of Rowley, proved in the Salem quarterly court 28: 10: 1647 (having been sent to the general court), has not been found. The court ordered that after paying the legacies to the children the remainder should remain in the hands of Mark Simons of Ipswich, according to the will, to be disposed of to the children. The will of Mrs. Isabel Redberne of Ipswich, proved in the Salem court 27: 4: 1650, has not been found. So, of a similar writing of Miles Ward proved in Salem court 17: 7: 1650.

The wills of Frances Lambert of Rowley, proved in Ipswich court 28: 1: 1648, of John Jarrett of Rowley, proved in Ipswich court 26: 7: 1648, of Robert Johnson of Rowley, proved in Ipswich court 26: 1: 1650, and of Mr. William Bellingham of Rowley, proved in Ipswich court 24: 7: 1650, have not been found.

The editor wishes copies of the above instruments for publication.

PART OF HAVERHILL IN 1700.
BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

Water street was first called Highway next Merrimack (or ye) river, 1665; Country highway to ye ferry over Merrimack river, 1713; Road from Judge Saltonstall's to ye meeting-house, 1748; Main road, 1775; and Water street, 1809.

Main street was first called Ye saw mill way in 1690; Highway to Thomas Dustin's mill, 1701; Highway that leadeth from Haverhill meeting-house to Thomas Dustin's, 1706; Highway to the meeting-house, 1717; and Main street, 1732.

Winter street was first called Highway leading toward ye meeting-house in 1719; Highway leading to West bridge, 1726; Highway from old meeting-house to ye West bridge, 1732; Road from meeting-house to Hale's mill, 1815; and Winter street, 1845.

Arlington street was first called Way from Smith's corner to Stephen Dow's house in 1689; Bartholomew's path, 1700; Way from Samuel Dow's to the meeting-house, 1732; Dow, or Dow's lane, 1795; Dow street, 1852; and Arlington street, 1874.

White street was first called Bartle's way in 1690; Bartholomew's lane, 1700; and Bartholomew Heath's highway that leads to the West bridge, 1701.

In the sketches that follow, after 1700, titles and deeds referred to pertain to houses and the land under and immediately adjacent thereto, and not always to the whole lot, the design being, after 1700, to give the history of the houses principally.

Estate of Richard Littlehale Lot. Richard Littlehale, the first "clerk of the writs to make records" in Haverhill, owned and lived in the house that early stood on this lot. He died Feb. 18, 1663-4, and the estate passed to his son Richard. The house was probably gone before Mr. Littlehale's decease in 1692. The lot belonged to his estate in 1702, and in 1730 to Ebenezer Eastman.

_Burying Ground, etc._ At the lower end of this lot religious services were held originally, according to tradition, under a large tree in pleasant weather, and the rear part of the lot was used as a burying ground. In 1648, the town voted to build a meeting-house on the lower knoll at the lower end of the mill lot." It was erected midway of the burial lot the same year, and was 26 x 20 feet, facing the river. In 1660, the town ordered that the land "behind the meeting-house should be reserved for a burying ground." The first school house, built in 1670, stood near the meeting-house; and in the eastern corner of the lot was the pound built in 1664, and removed in 1676. The meeting-house was abandoned as a place of worship in 1700, and the building was gone two years later.

_Simon Wainwright House and Lot and Mill._ The southeastern corner of this lot lying between Mill brook and the burying ground was early laid out to William Simons. Feb. 25, 1660, the town "voted & granted yt william Simons should have liberty to improve yt spot of ground whch was formerly laid out to him on ye east side of ye mill brooke, not taking in any of the graves, he is to injoy it, During his life & his wives, & after to returne to ye towne." This was bought of the town by Daniel Ela before 1687.

A lot of forty rods off the southwestern portion of the lot, between the highway and the brook was granted by the town to Job Clements. Mr. Clements was a tanner, and had his tannery by the brook. He sold the lot and buildings to Daniel Ela, who was a tanner, Feb. 21, 1658.* Mr. Ela continued the business.

The northern portion of the lot was early owned by Michael Emerson, who conveyed it to Mr. Ela before 1678.

The middle section of the lot was the mill lot granted to Robert Clement, a cooper. He erected the corn mill and house thereon, and conveyed the house and lot, but not the mill and land adjoining, to Mr. Ela Feb. 14, 1669.†

Thus, Mr. Ela became the owner of the entire lot. For a short time he conducted an ordinary here. He conveyed to Simon Wainwright of Haverhill, merchant, the entire lot with the buildings, except the mill, Aug. 10, 1687.§

Captain Wainwright conveyed the house and lot to Richard Saltonstall of Haverhill, gentleman ("who is to marry my daughter Mehitable"), Nov. 21, 1702.‖

Mr. Saltonstall conveyed the house and lot to his brother Nathaniel Saltonstall of Boston, gentleman, Jan. 20, 1730.‡

Mr. Nathaniel Saltonstall, jr., of Boston, conveyed the house and lot to James Pearson of Lynn, gentleman, May 10, 1732.¶

Captain Pearson lived in Haverhill, and died in 1744, and his children conveyed the house and lot to John Pearson of Andover, currier, March 7, 1744-5.

Mr. Pearson, still of Andover, conveyed the house to Jonathan Buck of Haverhill, laborer, April 5, 1748.†† There was a house on the site of the old one in 1846, but whether or not it was the old one is not known to the writer.

The grist mill and land adjoining passed into the hands of Andrew Greely of Haverhill, miller, before 1690; and near the mill was a house in which Mr. Greely lived in 1691, and which had been occupied by his son Benjamin until the latter's decease, probably having been erected by the father. Mr. Greely, the father, conveyed the mill, house and land to Simon Wainwright Feb. 2, 1690-1.*

Captain Wainwright conveyed the mill and land (the house having been burned down) to Lt. John White of Haverhill March 16, 1704-5.†

Mr. White conveyed the mill and land to Samuel White July 19, 1727,§ and the mill remained in the White family for a century longer.

John White (Brumage) House. This lot was probably granted to Stephen Kent, who undoubtedly erected the house upon it and sold the house and lot to Abraham Tyler. Here Mr. Tyler lived until his decease May 6, 1673. In his will, he devised the house and lot to his wife Hannah, who survived him, and married, secondly, Edward Brumage (or Brumidge, or Bromage) of Haverhill, husbandman. She, with Mr. Brumage, conveyed the house and lot to Ens. John White, esq., of Haverhill Sept. 28, 1695.† Mr. White gave the house (then occupied by David Whiting) to his son Samuel White of Haverhill, husbandman, July 19, 1727.¶ The house was probably gone soon after.

John White House. The larger part of this lot was owned by John White in 1670, and by William White in 1695. Lt. John White owned it in 1700 and 1709. The section of the lot on which the old house stood was early owned by Samuel Dalton, and sold by him, with the house, to John White, esq. Mr. White conveyed the estate to his son John Oct. 4, 1727.¶ From him it descended to Samuel White who died in or before 1801 possessed of the old house, which, in the division of his estate was assigned to his son Samuel. The old house was gone soon after.

Fawne Clement House. Four acres of the northeastern portion of this lot, with a house and barn thereon, belonged to Hugh Sherrat, who lived and kept tavern in this house. April 27, 1665, he conveyed the house and lot to Elizabeth Sherrat of Haverhill.† Mr. Sherrat conveyed the same house and lot to Robert Clement of Haverhill Oct. 9, 1670.¶ The Sherrat house was probably gone before 1692.

In or before 1692, Mr. Clement conveyed to his son Jonathan Clement an acre in the northeastern corner of the lot he had bought of Sherrat; and Jonathan, "some time of Haverhill," cooper, conveyed it to his brothers Abraham and Fawne Clement Aug. 15, 1693.

Stephen Dow Lot. Bartholomew Heath owned this lot in 1665; and before 1670 it came into the possession of John Todd of Rowley. Mr. Todd conveyed it to Stephen Dow of Haverhill March 7, 1670.* Mr. Dow died possessed of the lot July 3, 1717.

The remainder of this lot, with the Robert Clement lot and other land, was in the possession of Joseph Jewett of Newbury in 1659, and he died owning this the next year. His son-in-law John Carleton lived in the house that stood on the lot until Nov. 14, 1665, when the executors of Mr. Jewett conveyed the estate to George Heathcock (or Heathcoke) of Barbadoes.*

In 1692, Robert Clement, sr., of Haverhill, cooper, was the owner of this house, barn and lot; and March 24, of the same year, he conveyed the estate to his sons Abraham and Fawne Clement of Salisbury.†

Abraham Clement does not appear as owner of this and the adjoining lots after the next year, and he probably released the estate to his brother Fawne soon after.

The remainder of the premises, twelve acres and the house, was conveyed by Fawne Clement, who lived in Newbury, being a ship-carpenter, to Job Clement of Haverhill, cooper, April 12, 1701.§ Job Clement conveyed the house and lot and the shop I built to James Ford of Haverhill May 25, 1703.|| James Ford conveyed the same estate, for £207, to Samuel Swaine of Haverhill April 1, 1706; and Mr. Swaine conveyed the house and land to Joshua Purington Sept. 5, 1706.|| Joshua Purington of Hampton, N. H., conveyed the house and lot to Elisha Davis of Haverhill Oct. 31, 1709; and the house was probably gone before 1732, when the land continued to belong to Mr. Davis.

Robert Clement House. This lot and parts of the lots of John Page and Fawne Clement were the property of Joseph Jewett of Newbury in 1659; and this lot was owned by him at the time of his death the next year. His executors conveyed this section to George Heathcock of Barbadoes Nov. 14, 1665.* The lot came into the ownership of Robert Clement of Haverhill, cooper, before April 8, 1678, when, for good will, he conveyed to Mr. Thomas Wasse, “my country man,” “late school master in Haverhill,” the southeastern corner of the lot.† A short time afterward Mr. Clement gave the same corner to his son Nathaniel Clement, who built a house upon it. Nathaniel died in Saco in 1689, unmarried, having, in his will, devised the house and lot to his brother Robert. Nov. 21, 1690, their father conveyed to Robert sufficient land in the rear of the house to make his lot measure one acre.§

Robert Clement, the father, conveyed the remainder of the lot to his sons Abraham and Fawne Clement of Salisbury March 24, 1692.‖ Abraham does not appear as owner of the lot after 1693, and he probably released his interest in it to his brother soon afterward.

Robert Clement, jr., was a cooper, and lived in the house his brother Nathaniel had built until Feb. 24, 1713-14, when he sold the house, shop and lot to his brother Fawne Clement.†

The house and lot were in the possession of John Hutchins Oct. 15, 1725, when he conveyed them to his brother Richard

Mr. Cogswell added to the house on the eastern end before Oct. 3, 1755, when he conveyed the old end of the house and land adjoining to his son, John Cogswell, jr., of Haverhill, trader.§ John Cogswell, jr., died in the winter of 1801-2, having devised his half of the house and lot to his sons James B. and Robert; and the first released his interest in the estate Aug. 3, 1830.‖ Robert Cogswell conveyed his part of the house and lot to Samuel Chase Oct. 1, 1830.‡ Mr. Chase conveyed the land and buildings to Benjamin F. Leighton of Haverhill in 1868;¶ and Mr. Leighton conveyed the same to Jackson B. Swett of Haverhill Dec. 1, 1869, in whose estate it remains.

John Page House. The western portion of this lot, called, in 1659, five acres, then belonged to Thomas Davis who conveyed it, with the house and barn thereon, to John Williams, jr., of Haverhill April 8, 1659.†† Mr. Williams conveyed the five acres, with the house and hovel thereon, to Stephen Webster of Haverhill March 2, 1665.§§ Mr. Webster was a tailor, and he conveyed to John Light of the Isles of Shoals, Dover county, and Portsmouth, woolen draper, the house, barn and thirteen acres of land Oct. 20, 1675.¶¶ Mr. Webster owned in 1665 the eastern part of this lot which he had probably bought of Joseph Jewett's estate. Mr. Light died in or before 1690, and his widow and executrix, Dorothy Light of Portsmouth, by order of court, conveyed the house and land he purchased of Mr. Webster to John Page of Haverhill Sept. 18, 1695.‡‡ Her son John Light of Exeter confirmed this sale by deed June 18, 1707.* Mr. Page died June 7, 1714, leaving one child, Sarah, wife of John Hutchins. She died before 1739, and this lot, found on measurement to contain sixteen acres, was divided among her eight children in the latter year. The lots ran from the street back being very long and narrow, and the lot containing the house was assigned to James McHard in right of the son James Hutchins.† Nathaniel Cogswell owned it from 1741 to 1748. How much longer the old house stood the writer does not know; but it was probably gone soon after.

John Johnson Houses. The small triangular lot on the south side of the Peter Patie lot and west of the two dashes was a part of the "six-acre" lot owned before 1659 by Matthias Button, who in or before that year sold it to Robert Swan of Haverhill. Mr. Swan conveyed it to John Johnson April 21, 1659;§ and Mr. Johnson died possessed of it in 1708. The remainder of the homestead of John Johnson was purchased in four lots, running from the highway by the river back, and their dividing lines being shown on the map by dashes and the brook.

The western lot of "three" acres belonged to Theophilus Satchwell before 1659, when he sold it to William Simons of Haverhill. Mr. Simons conveyed it to John Johnson April 21, 1659;§ and Mr. Johnson was possessed of it when he died in 1708.

The next lot of "four" acres, with the house thereon, was the estate of John Robinson, the town blacksmith, who had his shop on the river bank a little below his house. He removed to Exeter, N. H., in 1657, and the next year Haverhill engaged John Johnson of Charlestown, also a blacksmith, to settle here and carry on his trade, which he did. Daniel Ladd, sr., of Haverhill had become possessed of this place; and, of him, Mr. Johnson bought it July 17, 1669.* Here Lt. Johnson lived until Aug. 29, 1708, when he and his wife were massacred and the house burned.

The next lot, containing “three and one-half” acres, with the house thereon, belonged, before 1661, to Thomas Perrie, who sold the estate to Robert Clement of Haverhill, cooper. Mr. Clement conveyed it to John Johnson March 12, 1661-2; and in the deed John Carleton joins to warrant the title against Jeremie Jewett and Philip Nelson. The estate remained in the possession of Lt. Johnson until his massacre in 1708, when it was probably burned.

The next lot of “eight” acres, with the house thereon, belonged to John Williams in 1659. In his will dated Dec. 9, 1670, he devised to his son Joseph “my now dwelling house and lot,” and, in 1673, he deeded the estate to the same son.† John Williams died Feb. 10, 1673. His widow, Jane Williams, and Joseph and Mary Williams, all of Haverhill, conveyed the house and lot to John Page, jr., of Haverhill July 3, 1678.‡ They subsequently came into the possession of Lt. Johnson, who owned them at the time of his death in 1708, when the house was probably burned by the Indians.

Samuel Emerson House and Peter Patie Lot. These two lots and the triangular lot on the south side mentioned above was a part of the “six-acre” lot owned before 1659 by Matthias Button, who in or before that year sold it to Robert Swan of Haverhill; and Mr. Swan conveyed it to John Johnson April 21, 1659.¶ Joseph Johnson owned this house and lots of Emerson and Patie, containing “seven” acres before Sept. 24, 1678, when he sold the premises to Thomas Hartshorn, who conveyed the estate to Samuel Emerson of Haverhill Feb. 9, 1686.* Mr. Emerson sold the southern end of his lot to Peter Patie (being the Patie lot shown on the map) Nov. 5, 1689; † and subsequently removed to Oyster River, N. H. Mr. Patie conveyed his lot to Jonathan Hartshorn. The deed was “providentially by ye firing of ye enemy lost;” and, April 20, 1711, when Mr. Hartshorn, who then lived in Norwich, conveyed the lot to Mrs. Mary Wainwright, Mr. Patie (there spelled Patre) joined in the deed because the deed he had given to Mr. Hartshorn was destroyed, being unrecorded.§

For fifty pounds in silver, Mr. Emerson conveyed his house, barn and land to Rev. Benjamin Rolfe, the minister of the town, Oct. 18, 1700.¶ Here, Mr. Rolfe lived until Aug. 29, 1708, when he and his wife and youngest child, Mehitable, were massacred by the Indians. Mr. Rolfe's administrator conveyed the house, barn and lot to the town Dec. 21, 1709.‡ Thenceforward the house was the parsonage, and the home of the minister of the town and First parish. In 1711, the house was voted to be “fortified,” and in 1731 the parish gave to Rev. John Brown, who then occupied the house, “ye timber of the forte yt is about his house, to dispouse of it as he pleaseth.” This construction had been made as a defence against the Indians. After Rev. Mr. Rolfe's death the house was occupied by Rev. Joshua Gardner from 1711 to 1715, when he died at the age of twenty-eight; by Rev. John Brown from 1719 to 1742, and by Rev. Edward Barnard from 1743 until it was taken down in 1773. A new parsonage house was then built on nearly the same site as the old, some of the material of the old being used in the new house. It is said that some boards on the attic floor still contain blood stains of 1708. In 1831, the house and lot were conveyed by the parish to Dr. Moses Nichols, in whose family they have since remained.

Samuel Smith Cellar Lot. John Johnson owned this lot in 1665. Nathaniel Smith, a wheelwright, was, in 1636, owning and living upon it, in the house which he had built about twenty years before, being then on common land. He conveyed the house and lot, containing three acres, to Simon Wainwright, the merchant, Aug. 23, 1690.* The house was subsequently destroyed by fire, and Mr. Wainwright conveyed the lot to Samuel Smith (son of Nathaniel), who had hired the place for some time, March 27, 1700.† Mr. Smith, then twenty-nine years old, built a house and subsequently lived here.

Kent and Sherrat Lot. This lot was originally laid out to the rights of Stephen Kent and Hugh Sherrat. Six acres of it eventually came into the hands of Daniel Little, a yeoman, who, with his wife Abiah, conveyed it to James Mackhard of Haverhill, a trader, July 18, 1732.§

John and Nathaniel Hazletine Lot. This corner was early the estate of John Wolcott, and from him the title passed to Lt. John and Serg. Nathaniel Hazletine, both of Haverhill. They conveyed it to Rev. Benjamin Rolfe Jan. 13, 1700-1.|| After Mr. Rolfe's massacre, Aug. 29, 1708, his administrator conveyed it to the town Dec. 21, 1709.‡ It remained the property of the town and First parish, being known as the Parsonage pasture, until the parish sold it to Daniel Appleton Aug. 18, 1827.¶

Samuel Smith Lot. The northern portion of this lot was probably granted to Nathaniel Smith, the wheelwright of Haverhill. He was its owner in 1673, and, Aug. 23, 1690, conveyed it to Simon Wainwright of Haverhill, the merchant.* Mr. Smith died Nov. 1, 1692, and Mr. Wainwright conveyed it to Samuel Smith, son of the deceased, March 27, 1700.* Samuel erected his barn upon this portion of the lot, which he owned several years.

The southern portion of the lot was probably granted to John Williams, sr., of Haverhill, and he conveyed it to Nathaniel Smith March 24, 1673.† Mr. Smith conveyed it to Lt. Johnson and Robert Swan, sr., before 1690. It soon after came into the hands of Samuel Smith, who sold it to John Kezar, a cordwainer, of Haverhill, Nov. 5, 1700.§

Common. The common was always public land, belonging to the town and First parish respectively. The second meeting-house in the town (which was at first steepleless) was erected here by vote of the town in 1698 (see cut). Here also stood the third meeting-house. The next one was erected on the corner lot north of the common, and the parish, having no further need of the common as a site for its meeting-house, conveyed it to the town for a common June 6, 1837.|| In the early days the militia trained here, and it was called the training field as late as 1792.

John Wainwright House. The town conveyed to William Sterling, a ship-carrier.

penter, this lot of about twelve acres before 1683. He sold to Francis Wainwright eleven acres of it (that part above the house) April 24, 1683,* and it soon after came into the hands of Capt. John Wainwright. Mr. Sterling conveyed the rest of the lot and the house to Captain Wainwright, and removed to Lyme, Conn.

Cornet James Pecker of Haverhill was an innholder, and had kept a public house in town for several years. He bought this estate of Captain Wainwright May 16, 1717.† Mr. Pecker apparently erected a brick dwelling house just south of the old house soon after his purchase, and removed to it. Some years later he turned over to his son John the business of a public house, and resumed his original occupation of farming. He conveyed this estate, with the houses and barns, to John Feb. 14, 1729-30.§

John Pecker conveyed the old house and a small lot to Grant Webster of Haverhill, a trader, March 26, 1748,|| and just four years later to a day Mr. Webster sold them to Benjamin Harrod of Boston, brazier.‡ Mr. Harrod died about 1781, and his son Joseph came into possession of the property, and for many years conducted therein the inn known in its time as the “Mason’s Arms,” its sign board consisting of a painting representing the Freemason’s arms. Here Washington stayed on his visit east in 1789. Mr. Harrod died, and his heirs conveyed the premises to Phineas Foster, a merchant, of Boston, Jan. 13, 1830.¶ Mr. Foster died soon after, and, Dec. 31, 1836, his heirs sold them to James H. Duncan. Mr. Duncan conveyed the house and middle of the lot to the town May 8, 1847.†† The house was demolished and the town house built upon the site the same year.

John Pecker lived in the brick house and died possessed of it in 1757. A part of the house was assigned to the widow as dower, and the rest was occupied by Matthew Soley as a tavern in 1763. This house was situated on Main street about a hundred feet southeast of the city hall. Subsequently passing through many vicissitudes,—of conveyances, inheritances, mortgages, and Sheriff’s levies,—the title finally came into the hands of John White just before the great fire of Sunday, April 16, 1775, in which the house was destroyed.

Parsonage Lot. The parsonage lot of eight acres, probably purchased by the town, in 1684, of William Sterling, was devoted to the use of the ministry. In 1744, it was divided into lots, of about four rods in width, running from the river northward, and a road, now Merrimack street, laid out through the same two and a half rods wide.

THE BRIDE'S HOME-COMING.

"Oh my husband! I am too young, too young To dwell where such death-damp lingers."

"Darling, all chambers of life are hung
With tapestry wrought by dead fingers.

"We tread in the path of by gone years,
'Mid ghosts of the dead generations;
Life is sweet with their songs and salt with their Tears,
And rich with their souls' libations.

"But love, sweetest wife, is evermore new;
A child to the Greeks, 'mid immortals,
A child is he still and forever. With you
He enters today through these portals.

"He enters today, and he goes out no more Till we, through the gloom
Pass on to the realms of the 'gone before',
And tell our own sweet story."

ANNABLE FAMILY.

GREEN FAMILY BURYING GROUND.

The burial place upon the farm of John Green at Rial Side was probably used as such for several years before 23 : 3 : 1684, when the following vote was passed by the town: "Att . . . Towne meeting Iohn Green of Ryall Side Did Desire of the inhabitants then mett that he might have a Liberty to bury thence forward his dead in Beverly burial place and it was put unto the vote & Graunted provided he Did beare his proportion in any necessarie Charges about the said buriall place which said Green did engage to Doe."

Mr. Green died six years later, and his remains were interred in this burial place, which has ever since continued to be used as such. The following are all the inscriptions remaining here that bear dates prior to 1800.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

MARRIAGES AND BAPTISMS AT SOUTH HAMPTON, N. H., 1743-1801. Boston, 1899. These records have been published by Mr. George A. Gordon from a manuscript copy of the church records of South Hampton; and form a pamphlet of twenty-six printed pages.

AN INQUIRY INTO THE AUTHENTICITY OF THE SO-CALLED FIRST MEETING HOUSE PRESERVED BY THE ESSEX INSTITUTE AT SALEM, MASS. By Eben Putnam. Danvers, 1899. This is an interesting pamphlet of seventeen pages, throwing new light upon the subject with which it deals. It will be read with interest by all, whether they accept or reject the building as containing the frame of the original meeting house in Salem.
Our forefathers in Essex county did not choose the pleasantest part of the land for the village burying ground, perhaps because of the intense plainness of everything sacred of the earliest settlers. Neither did they erect inscribed memorial stones to mark the resting place of their early dead. It is said that the earliest stone here still intelligible is at North Andover, and bears date of 1668. Doubtless a few stones were erected earlier, which are now gone. Gravestones are not as permanent as they are commonly considered, and probably but a small proportion of those erected before 1725, are in existence.

Most of the stones now standing, that were erected prior to 1705, were made of an unctuous slate, that was probably a product of the Welsh quarries. They were undoubtedly ordered of the stone cutters in England, the entire labor in preparing the stone for its office, even to the inscription, being performed in the mother-land. The engraving is very much superior to anything later until recent times, the ornamentation being in relief.

The frontispiece shows the finest and only perfect example of this class of ancient gravestones known to exist in the county. It is that of Mrs. Mary Cromwell in Salem, and is dated 1683. The best type of the American production of the first half of the eighteenth century is shown in the plate opposite page 192. It is that of Mrs. Martha Hale, who died in 1723, and it is found in the Groveland cemetery.

Other and cheaper varieties of foreign slate were introduced into this country, subsequently to the importation of the fine Wales slate, for many years in slabs, and cut as ordered. Early in the eighteenth century, American slate began to be used. Sandstone, freestone and sienite from our own hills were also employed to a limited extent. Marble began to be used about 1810, but was not common until after 1840.

Who made the many crude stones that are found in every ancient burial ground here? This question is often asked, but has never been answered. The first gravestone maker that the writer has discovered in this county is Robert Mullikin of Bradford, the Scotchman. He was producing them in 1723, being paid that year thirty shillings for the gravestone of Dr. Daniel Bradstreet of Amesbury.

Records show that he subsequently, for many years, carried on the business, many specimens of his work being still seen in Bradford, Boxford, Newbury and other places on either side of the Merrimac. Large numbers of the small stones erected to the memory of children that died of the fatal throat distemper of 1735-7, were from his shop.

John Holliman was paid for gravestones by the estate of Samuel Robinson of Salem in 1724. Whether or not he was an Essex county stone cutter the writer has not learned.

Richard Lighton (probably of Rowley) was paid for gravestones by the estate of Moses Bradstreet in 1738.

James Ford was paid for gravestones from the estate of Elizabeth, daughter of Dr. John Aborn of Lynnfield, in 1771.

Paul Noyes, a stone cutter of Newburyport, made many gravestones after the Revolution. The volume entitled Sketches of Old Newbury, at page 460, gives a fine specimen of his work in engraving early in his career. He died in 1810, and in his inventory are mentioned thirty-two gravestones appraised at $172, pieces of marble $2.50, rough stones $6.50, 1770 feet of free stones $480, and stone cutting tools and foils $4.

Joseph Marble, probably successor of Mullikin near the old burying ground at Bradford, made gravestones as early as 1789 for Newbury people. The gravestone of Dr. William L. Abbot in the Greenwood cemetery at East Haverhill is the work of his hands. Its date is 1798.

John Homer (or, Horner) was paid for gravestones by the estate of Abigail Brown of Salem in 1791.

Thomas Park was paid for gravestones and setting of them by the estate of John Appleton of Ipswich in 1794.

William Park was paid for gravestones by the estate of Nathaniel Appleton in 1798.

William Brown engraved and sold gravestones in Rowley and Bradford in 1814.

The ordinary ancient gravestone is about twenty inches wide and about thirty high above the ground. The shape varies, the following being the principal forms, the first predominating. The second is very old and comparatively rare. The others are much later. The rectangular shaped stone was sometimes used, but generally in case of children.

The thickness was ordinarily two inches, but frequently more.

Footstones, generally rectangular shaped, and sometimes peaked at the top, as in the cut, were erected, being much smaller than the headstones, and bearing the initials of the name of the deceased, frequently with the year of death and a picture of a coffin or hourglass.

In the inscription capital letters were used almost exclusively until the middle of the eighteenth century, when lowercase letters were introduced, being mixed with the capitals without rule or reason.

The following cut shows the prevailing style of letters and figures during the first three-quarters of that century.

The inscriptions on the older stones generally began, “Here lies the body of,” or, “Here lieth the body of.” This form was discontinued in the Revolutionary period. “Here lies buried” was sometimes used in the early inscriptions, but was common only from about 1735 to 1755. About 1745, “Here lies interred” began to be used, but it is rarely found after 1767. “In Memory of” came into general use just prior to the Revolution, and remained popular until recent times.

Epitaphs were rare until the Revolution and the introduction of Watts’ hymns. Then stanzas from his pen were often added to the ordinary data. The only epitaphs, with rare exceptions, used prior to the Revolution were the couplets,

“As you are so were we,
As we are you shall be;”

and,

“As I am now so you must be,
Prepare for death and follow me.”

From an early period, occasionally, but more frequently toward the close of the eighteenth century, at the head of the stone, generally on the curve above the head of the angel, and in very small italic letters, was inscribed the Latin phrase, Memento mori.

Perhaps the most interesting feature of ancient gravestones, and one that is generally little regarded, is the ornamental, which had in view not only the fancy but the mimic art.

On either side of the inscription were perpendicular borders, generally about three inches in width. The following cuts show the more ordinary forms, and give an excellent idea of what may be found in old burial grounds in the way of art. The following are from the grave-stones of the persons named, respectively, who died at the dates given. Numbering from the left hand: 1. Jonathan Harriman, Georgetown, 1741; 2. Mrs. Rebecca Picket, Newburyport, 1804; 3. Mrs. Lydia Holland, Marblehead, 1801; 4. Mrs. Margaret Townsend, Salem, 1792; 5. Capt. John Felt, Salem, 1796; 6. Mrs. Esther West, Salem, 1743.

Six more specimens of similar borders follow: 1. Mrs. Lucy Spofford, Georgetown, 1766; 2. Thomas Merrill, Georgetown, 1771; 3. Mrs. Elizabeth Mighill, Georgetown, 1781.

On the upper corners were ornaments, circular in form, and about three inches in diameter. The following are sixteen specimens, some of which are crude and simple and others pretty and artistic. Commencing at the left of each row successively, they were taken from the grave-stones of the following named persons,

Angels, represented by grotesque heads and wings, generally occupied the semi-circular part of the stone above the inscription. The following is that seen on the gravestone of Abel Gardner, in Salem, in 1739:

That on the gravestone of Mrs. Lucy Spofford, in Georgetown, in 1766, is as follows:

!Gravestone

That on the gravestone of Mrs. Elizabeth Pingrey, in Georgetown, in 1781, is as follows:

!Gravestone

A common form shows the head only, as on the gravestone of John Perley, at Boxford, in 1729, which is as follows:

!Gravestone

Angels lost their popularity before the Revolution. About 1750 the weeping willow, with an urn beneath its branches, began to be used, and soon became a favorite ornament, remaining popular for half a century. The following is an example of the earlier form. It is found on the gravestone of Mrs. Lydia Holland, in Marblehead, who died in 1801. The later and more elaborate form is also given. This is copied from the gravestone of Mrs. Sarah Noyes, in Newbury, in 1808.
The urn without the willow, and the willow without the urn, were soon used. The following is such an urn found on the gravestone of Mrs. Margaret Townsend, in Salem, in 1792.

The following is one copied from the gravestone of Mrs. Anna Rose, in Salem, in 1796.

The following can be seen on the gravestone of Mrs. Sarah Williams, in Salem, in 1814.

Before the close of the Revolution even other suggestive forms of ornaments came into use, and in the course of fifty years they became numerous.

The following, representing a flower broken off its stem, is copied from the gravestone of Mrs. Elizabeth Perkins, in Newburyport, in 1781.

The following, showing the opening bud, is on the gravestone of Clarissa Perkins, in Newburyport, in 1793. She was aged one year.

The rising sun is uncommon and used for both young and old. The gravestone of Mrs. Mary Pickering, in Salem, in 1784, shows it as follows:

From this brief sketch it will be seen how interesting old burying places may become to the observing visitor. The engravings shown herewith were obtained casually, and give only a hint of what might be found on an exhaustive search.

Liberty Tea.

"Extract of a letter from a Gentleman in Falmouth, to his Friend in Cambridge. . . . "Inclos'd is some BOHEA TEA, which grew at Pearfontown, about 20 Miles from this.---The Shrub they say, very much resembles that which grows in the East Indies. How plenty it is, I can't at present inform you; but I believe in the Seaon of it, large Quantities may be gathered."---(The Specimen of the TEA abovementioned, was received at Newbury-Port the Day the Rev. Mr. Marsh was ordained. In the Afternoon a Dith of it was made and served round to a Circle of Gentlemen and Ladies, who pronounced it, under all the Disadvantages of want of Cultivation, imperfect Cure, and being wrapped a considerable Time in Paper, to have all the distinguishing Characteristics of genuine BOHEA TEA. So important a Discovery claims, especially at this Crisis, the Attention of every Friend to America. If we have the Plant, nothing is wanting but the Process of curing it, to have TEA of our own Manufacture. If a Receipt cannot be obtained, Gentlemen of Curiosity and Chymical Skill would render their Country eminent Service, if by Experiments they would investigate the best Method of preparing it for Use.)

The following are the only inscriptions bearing dates before 1800 now to be found in the cemetery at the North Beverly meeting house:

In Memory of

Mrs. Judith Francis, who died June. 23rd 1792 in the 43 year of her age. She was the comfort of Col. Ebenezer Francis, who fell in defence of American liberty in the action with the Britifh army at Hubbardston July 4th 1777, in the 34 year of his age. Discretion which mark’d her steps, and friendships to human nature, with every social virtue were the qualities of her mind.

In Memory of

Mrs. Rachel Francis, who died April 25th 1791, in the 81st year of her age. She was the comfort of Mr. Ebenezer Francis, of Medford. Virtuous, generous & useful were the characteristics of this amiable Woman.

*Rev. James Allen was born in New Haven, Conn., June 24, 1657, and was son of Dea. Roger and Mary (Nash) Allen of New Haven.
THE POOR ATTORNEY.

Morn and evening, in an easy chair
Sits an attorney sadly musing;
Morn, noon and evening, sitting there,
Blackstone, Coke, and Littleton perusing,
With an air
Of anxious waiting, in his easy chair.

Morn, and noon, and evening, "Well-a-day!"
It is strange that modest merit never Did succeed, as all old people say
It never did; though so very clever,
He for aye
Must wait till every dog has had his day.

JOSEPH HOVEY, ESQ.

BY SAMUEL L. KNAPP.*

Joseph Hovey was born in Boxford Oct. 31, 1776, being son of Joseph and Mary (Porter) Hovey. The father was a respectable yeoman, but not affluent; he had a large family to support, and he brought them up in competency and respectability. Several of the sons were instructed in good mechanical trades. Joseph was taught the trade of a clock and watch maker, but as he was from his boyish days very fond of reading, he acquired a taste for classical knowledge, and the first use that he made of his freedom from parental authority, at the age of twenty-one, was to set about devising some means to obtain a liberal education. His reputation for good habits and intelligence induced several who knew him to favor his plan of going to college. After pursuing his studies for some time with Rev. Peter Eaton, his pastor, he went to the Andover Phillips' Academy, of which Mark Newman, esq., was then principal. This instructor was friendly to this adult student, and treated him with great delicacy, neglecting nothing to make his situation as pleasant as possible. Though Mr. Hovey suffered on account of his age, he quietly persevered, and made fair progress. He entered Harvard university in 1800, and while there won the respect and confidence of the few that really knew him, being retiring and modest, and easily confused by severity and impudence. He graduated in 1804.

After leaving college he taught a school for a year or more, and then entered the office of John Abbott, esq., a lawyer in Westford, but soon removed to Haverhill, pursuing his legal studies there with Hon. John Varnum until his admission to the Essex bar in 1808. He opened an office in Haverhill, and began his professional life. Mr. Varnum was his friend, furnishing him with means of subsistence in such a delicate and kindly manner that it could not be refused nor noticed. The society of the town was social, intelligent and refined, and in it Mr. Hovey was as happy as his nature, disposition and habits permitted.

He had a very good classical education, and excelled in mathematics and metaphysics, having a fondness for books that required mental exercise. His chief delight was in works of eloquence, poetry and able essays, quoting from them readily. But the more he read and the better he understood them the less he seemed qualified to speak himself. The sight of an audience withered all his faculties and dried his brain, being spellbound before a small number of hearers even.

Sometimes he produced verses of merit, always chaste and delicate, but wanting in force and passion. He played the flute with some skill, and found consolation in its music; when fretful and moody, his flute and a little harpsichord were successfully used "to charm away the fiends."

In his religious belief he became an Episcopalian. Although many of his views of society were wrong, yet his observations on characters were generally shrewd, learned and novel, frequently a little tinctured with the corrosive and sickly impressions incident to chafed spirits. If his remarks were sometimes bitter, he had no permanent malice in his nature. His sarcasms were only the feverish breath of the moment, and passed away like the vapors of the morning.

He had read law with diligence, and was very well acquainted with first principles, but he had no readiness in practice, hesitating, reflecting and doubting, until his client lost all confidence in his knowledge; yet he was a safe counsellor. Had he acted as well as he reasoned he would have had much to do.

Morbidity conjured for him evils that in reality he did not have to bear; he was a friend and admirer of the gentler sex, but fear of rivalry caused him to withhold advances, and in every amusement or entertainment a death’s head rose before him.

In person he was tall, thin and pale, and was singularly abstemious, fearing that he should be plethoric by indulgence, while he was wasting away in a settled consumption.

In the summer of 1815 he was scarcely able to walk; but he was not in the slightest degree disturbed by the approach of death, and his nature seemed to wholly change. All soreness left him, all wounds of pride were healed. The diseases of his disposition and fancy passed away. A pure serenity of soul—a high and holy feeling, full of philanthropy and devotion, beamed from his sunken eye, and spoke in every aspiration. All his enmities were forgotten, and injuries forgiven. His friendships glowed with new life. As the hand of death pressed harder upon his brow, hope and joy beamed brighter in his countenance, free from all doubt or fear. He died May 6, 1816, and lies buried in his native town.

ANSWERS.

141. James Robbins lived in Boston, and was a mariner. He married Deborah, daughter of Joseph and Mary (Osgood) Balch, July 4, 1740. She was born in Boston Sept. 8, 1719. He died about 1749, his widow Deborah being appointed administratrix of his estate Dec. 30, 1749. Mrs. Robbins' parents were married by Cotton Mather Oct. 23, 1712, and were both deceased in 1753, having resided on Prince street, in the northerly part of Boston. After 1801 Mrs. Robbins removed to Bradford, probably living with her daughter, Mrs. Deborah Day, and died there Dec. 23, 1810, aged ninety-one, having been a widow sixty-one years.—Ed.

238. Timothy Dustin, youngest son of Hannah Dustin, settled in his native town of Haverhill, Mass.—Ed.

There have been published during the year the wills proved in Essex county from 1647 to 1650; the gravestone inscriptions in the city of Beverly before 1800; the genealogies of families from Allen to Annis; the record of the Essex county Revolutionary soldiers and sailors from Averell to Babb; abstracts of the old Norfolk county records from 1659 to 1663; and the Salem quarter court records and files from 1636 to 1641.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

DANVERS, MASSACHUSETTS. A Resume of Her Past History and Progress together with a condensed Summary of Her Industrial Advantages and Development. Biographies of Prominent Danvers Men and a Series of Comprehensive Sketches of Her Representative Manufacturing and Commercial Enterprises. Danvers, 1899. This is a souvenir book. It contains 202 pages, and is illustrated by nearly as many beautiful engravings. An historical sketch of the town by Dr. A. P. Putnam occupies a considerable portion, and the remainder of the book is devoted to the churches and schools, notices of industries, sketches of prominent men of the town, etc. Published by Frank E. Moynahan, Danvers, in paper covers at 50 cts. and 10 cts. postage, in cloth at $1.00 and 15 cts. postage.

GOLDTHWAITE GENEALOGY: DESCENDANTS OF THOMAS GOLDTHWAITE, AN EARLY SETTLER OF SALEM, MASS. By Charlotte Goldthwaite. Hartford, 1899. This volume treats of Thomas Goldthwaite, the ancestor of all of this family name in America; and also contains an account of the Goldthwaite family in England.

The work bears evidence of careful and thorough compilation, and is arranged with taste and under a desirable system. It is also well indexed.

The book contains four hundred and eleven octavo pages, in substantial binding. It is printed in clear type, and on good paper. About 2,600 named descendants are given. The illustrations consist of places in England connected with the family, and of reproductions of portraits of some of its early members, among them those of Ezekiel Goldthwaite, town clerk of Boston and register of deeds for Suffolk county, 1740 to 1776, Col. Thomas Goldthwaite, commandant of Fort Pownal, Me., 1763-1765, Maj. Joseph Goldthwaite, lieutenant-colonel in the French and Indian War, and commissary of the British troops in Boston, 1768-1776; and Elizabeth Goldthwaite, wife of Rev. Alexander Cummings and Rev. John Bacon, respectively, ministers of the Old South church, Boston, between 1763 and 1776.

Only 250 (numbered) copies have been printed. Price, $5.20, by mail; $5, by express. Address Miss Charlotte Goldthwaite, Hartford, Conn.
