HAVERHILL INSCRIPTIONS.

PENTUCKET CEMETERY.

The first meeting house in Haverhill stood in what is now the front part of the ancient Pentucket cemetery. In November, 1660, the town voted that the land "behind the meeting house should be reserved for a burial ground;" the dead probably having been buried there previously. The following are all the inscriptions now to be found there bearing dates prior to 1800.

In Memory of Hannah the daughter of Mr. Caleb and Margret Adams who made her Exit from this to the World of Spirits April ye 12th 1780 aged 13 years 6m 3ds A moment stay as you pass by and view the place where I do lie consider that you shortly must like me Return unto the dust.

Is the next blessing to a life well spent.

THE OLD BRICK OVEN.

BY JOHN S. ADAMS.

I remember the pasture bespangled with posies,
The wide spreading field, gay with tassels of corn,
The hedge, where in childhood I sought the wild roses,
And the old-fashioned farmhouse in which I was born.
I recall the quaint dresser, the long, high-backed settle,
Whereon the whole family sat in a row;
The pot-hooks and trammels, the crane and the kettle,
And that famous brick oven we had long ago.

A certain tin plate in my memory lingers,
Kept erect on the hearth by a flatiron prop,
Containing a cake made by dexterous fingers
And skillfully spread with a well-managed flop!
'Twas constructed of meal, if I am not mistaken,
Of mixed 'rye 'n' injun they fashioned the dough;
But it didn't compare with the choice weekly baking
From that famous brick oven we had long ago.

And when round the table we gathered next morning,
No victuals appeared that were bought at the store;
But beans that crisp pork like a crown was adorning,
And luscious brown bread, flanked by pudding galore;
For those beans on the summit, so brown and inviting,
And the whey in that pudding we youngsters would go;
Oh, those glorious breakfasts of which I am writing
From that famous brick oven we had long ago.

Prate to me nevermore of your new-fangled ranges,
Each dealer in stoves in the East and the West,
On his stock is eternally ringing the changes,
And every one vows that his own is the best.
I'm weary of cities; of people mendacious,
Whose rickety bakers' carts dash to and fro,
And I sigh for the farmhouse, the fireplace spacious,
And that famous brick oven we had long ago.

The map on the opposite page represents that part of South field in Salem which is bounded by Fairfield and Holly streets, the harbor and South river. It is based on actual surveys and title deeds, and is drawn on a scale of four hundred and fifty feet to an inch. There were no houses standing upon the premises in 1700.

The dotted lines running across the western end of the map show the location of Canal street, along the western side of which is the location of the Boston and Maine Railroad. The braces marked "a," show where the present Lafayette street runs; those marked "b," where Fairfield street begins; "c," Lagrange street; "d," West lane; "e," Gardner street; "f," Hancock street; "g," Roslyn street; "h," Holly street; and "i," Leach street.

The highway shown on the map was laid out from Salem to Marblehead in 1666, and the present Lafayette street was laid out in 1800; the old road being discontinued. The old road was called the highway through the South field in 1683; ye country road, 1690; road leading to Marblehead, 1742; and the highway leading from Salem to Marblehead in 1787. The new road was called South street as early as 1806, and until the visit of Lafayette in 1824, when the name was changed to Lafayette street, by which name it has since been known.

Canal street was laid out in 1890.

That portion of Lafayette street south of the engine house was laid out in 1800; and that part north in 1805.

Lagrange street was laid out as a public way in 1858.

West lane was so laid out in 1903, though it had been a private way for several years.

Gardner street was laid out as a public way from Lafayette street to Cabot street in 1854; and to the railroad location in 1870.

Hancock street was laid out as a public way from Lafayette street to Cabot street in 1856; and to the railroad in 1870.

Roslyn street was laid out as early as 1860; being laid out as a public highway the next year.

Holly street is mentioned as early as 1854.

Leach street was there in 1806, though it was laid out as a public way in 1859.

The harbor was called the harbor in 1669; ye sea, 1690; Stage point cove or harbor, 1692; ye sea or salt water, 1695; Salem harbor, 1728; ye South river, 1734; ye South harbor, 1761; and Salem South river, 1795.

The South river was called ye mill pond from the mill that was built in 1666, and ye river yt goes up to Castle hill, 1669.

Samuel Archer Lot. This lot originally belonged to Samuel Archard, sr., and he apparently conveyed the eastern end to James Underwood and the western part to George Emery of Salem before 1662. These men apparently released it to Samuel Archer before 1692, as John Marston and John Pickering deposed, Feb. 8, 1715-6, that Samuel Archer had possessed, sowed, planted and mowed this lot since before 1692.*

John Robinson Lot. This lot originally belonged to Samuel Archard, and to George Emery of Salem Aug. 23, 1662, when he conveyed it to George Keazer of Salem, tanner.* Mr. Keazer died in 1690, and when his real estate was divided, Oct. 12, 1694, this lot became the estate of his son, John Keazer of Haverhill, tanner.† For twenty-one pounds, John Keazer conveyed it to John Robinson of Salem, tailor, April 3, 1695.‡ Mr. Robinson owned it until 1706.

Eleazer Keazer Lot. This lot originally belonged to Samuel Archard, and to George Emery of Salem Aug. 23, 1662, when he conveyed it to George Keazer of Salem, tanner.* Mr. Keazer died in 1690, and in the division of his real estate, Oct. 12, 1694, this lot became the property of his son Eleazer Keazer, who owned it in 1700.

John Robinson Lot. Richard Prince, sr., of Salem, owned this lot in 1662, and died possessed of it in 1675, having devised it to his son Richard Prince of Salem, who conveyed it to John Robinson of Salem, tailor, March 28, 1688.§ Mr. Robinson owned it until 1706.

Stephen Daniel Lot. Richard Prince, sr., of Salem, owned this lot in 1662, and died possessed of it, in 1675, having devised it to his son Jonathan Prince of Salem, cordwainer, who conveyed it to Thomas Maule of Salem, shopkeeper, July 30, 1681.¶ Mr. Maule conveyed it to John Lambert, sr., of Salem, mariner, Oct. 14, 1690.§ For fifteen pounds, Mr. Lambert conveyed it to his son-in-law Daniel Bacon, jr., of Salem, shipwright, March 2, 1695-6;‖ and Mr. Bacon owned it until 1733.

John Pickering Lot. This lot originally belonged to William Lord, sr., of Salem, cutler, who conveyed it to Richard Prince of Salem April 14, 1668.‖ Mr. Prince died in 1675, having devised it to his son Joseph Prince. The latter died in 1678, having devised it to his brother Jonathan Prince and the two children of his brother Stephen Daniel, Stephen Daniel and Mary Dean. In the inventory of the estate of Joseph Prince this lot was appraised at twenty pounds. Apparently, Jonathan Prince released his interest in the lot to the other two owners before 1685, when he died; and the latter were apparently its owners in 1700.

Daniel Bacon Lot. This lot originally belonged to William Lord, sr., of Salem, cutler, who conveyed it to Richard Prince of Salem April 14, 1668.‖ Mr. Prince died in 1675, having devised it to his son Jonathan Prince of Salem, cordwainer, who conveyed it to Thomas Maule of Salem, shopkeeper, July 30, 1681.¶ Mr. Maule conveyed it to John Lambert, sr., of Salem, mariner, Oct. 14, 1690.§ For fifteen pounds, Mr. Lambert conveyed it to his son-in-law Daniel Bacon, jr., of Salem, shipwright, March 2, 1695-6;‖ and Mr. Bacon owned it until 1733.

John Pickering Lot. This lot originally belonged to William Lord, sr., of Salem, cutler, who conveyed it to Richard Prince of Salem April 14, 1668.‖ Mr. Prince died in 1675, having devised it to his son Joseph Prince of Salem, tailor. when he conveyed it to John Robinson of Salem, tanner. Mr. Robinson died in 1682-3. Mr. Cromwell died possessed of the lot in 1700. It was then appraised at sixteen pounds, and is described in the inventory as being near Capt. Gardner's land.

Samuel Robinson Lot. This lot belonged to Joseph Hardy as early as 1668. He died in 1688, having devised it to his son William Hardy, who, with his mother Martha Hardy conveyed the lot, for seven pounds and ten shillings, to Samuel Robinson, jr., of Salem, laborer, Dec. 14, 1695. Mr. Robinson owned it in 1700.

Alice Pickering Lot. This lot early belonged to William Allen of Manchester, carpenter, and, 9:4 mo: 1652, he conveyed it to John Bridgeman of Salem. Mr. Bridgeman died in 1655, when he devised his estate to Mr. Curwin, in satisfaction of his claim, and what remained to the deceased's daughter Mary, who subsequently married a Smith. William Flint of Salem owned the lot when he died in 1673, it being appraised at six pounds. Mr. Flint's widow, Alice Flint, who had a life estate therein, conveyed the lot to her daughter Alice Pickering, “for her great trouble, cost & charge in keeping & maintaining me,” Aug. 22, 1696: Mrs. Pickering owned it in 1700.

Paul Mansfield Lot. This lot may have belonged to Hugh Laskin very early, and later to Timothy Laskin. It belonged to Paul Mansfield of Salem at the time of his death, in the summer of 1696. He devised it to his son Paul Mansfield. There was some marsh at the western end of the lot. Paul Mansfield, jr., was a mariner, and lived in Salem. He owned the lot until Dec. 9, 1701.

The Deacons Marsh. Evidence relative to the Deacons Marsh is rather vague. It was apparently laid out to the deacons of the church here in their official capacity for their benefit, perhaps for the support of the communion table. It was so called as early as 1668 and as late as 1812. No record of its sale by any one has been found as yet.

Sarah Williams Lot. This quarter-acre of salt marsh belonged to Thomas Browning quite early. He died in the spring of 1671, having devised his real estate to his daughters, Sarah, wife of Joseph Williams, and Deborah, wife of Isaac Meachum. By an agreement of division between these sisters and their husbands, dated 17: 2: 1675, this lot of marsh was assigned to Sarah Williams. She owned it as late as 1719.

The will of Mrs. Mary Miller of Newbury was proved in the court held at Ipswich March 29, 1664. The following is a verbatim copy of the original instrument on file in the probate office in Salem.

SPINNING BEE.

Linbrook, August 17, 1769.

On Tuesday the 15th Instant, thirteen young Ladies, belonging to this Parish, met at the House of the Rev. Mr. George Lefslie, on the Design of a Spinning Match. Several of the Ladies bro’t their Materials with them: Part whereof was their own Bounty, or that of the Families to which they belonged; and Part, the Bounty of other generously disposed Persons in the Neighbourhood.

One of these young Ladies carded the whole of the Day; and of the other twelve, some carded and spun, and others only spun. When the Produce of their Industry came to be computed at Night, it amounted to 28 Run and 8 Knots; all which they generously presented, as a Gift, to the Family where they were assembled. Two of these Ladies spun 70 Knots each, one carded and spun 38 Knots: Upon an Average, the Amount of their Industry was between 47 and 48 Knots to each Person. The Yarn is all excellent good, strong and even spun; fit in every Respect to answer the purposes for which it was designed. One young Lady, who was detained at home by the foulness of the Weather, has since presented the Fruit of her Industry, which makes the whole to amount to upwards of 30 Run. After the Labours of the Day were finished, the Rev’d Mr. Lefslie entertained the Spinners, and a Number of others of both sexes, who met at his House upon that Occasion, with a Discourse on the Duty of referring all our Actions, in the common Business of Life as well as in the Duties of Religion, to the Glory of God, from Proverbs, iii. Ch. 6 v. In all thy Ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy Paths.

OLD POOR TAVERN, NEWBURY.

This old homestead of the Poors was situated on Newbury Neck, on the original main thoroughfare from Boston to Portsmouth, and about a quarter of a mile from the southerly end of Parker River bridge.

The house originally consisted of one square room on the ground floor and a chamber above it, the chimney being on the eastern end. The inside of the house remained in an unfinished condition. It was built by John Poor, the immigrant, about 1650, and he lived here until he was frozen to death, while lost in the forest, in November, 1684.

The next occupant of the homestead was his son John Poor, who died Feb. 15, 1700-1.

It was next owned and occupied by the latter’s son Jonathan Poor, who built on the eastern end an addition as large as the original house, the new part being that end nearest the front of the picture, which is the frontispiece of this number of The Antiquarian. Subsequently, he added the leanto; and died June 30, 1742.

The next occupant was Jonathan Poor's son John Poor, who kept the ferry over Parker River where the bridge now stands, and continued as ferryman until 1758, when the bridge was built. He added the ell to the house, probably for the ferry office. John Poor died here Sept. 15, 1783.

The homestead was next owned and occupied by John Poor's son Capt. Jonathan Poor, who conducted a tavern here, probably having in the ell his sample room, where "whistles" could be wet or warmed. The old swinging tavern sign is in the possession of the Newburyport Marine Society.

This was the half-way house between Rowley and Newburyport; and Captain Poor continued the business of an innkeeper until 1806, when the opening of the Boston and Newburyport Turnpike drew the through travel to the new route. Captain Poor died March 19, 1807.

The next occupant was Captain Poor's son Samuel Poor; and he died July 17, 1849.

The house was then occupied by the latter's son Samuel Poor, esq., who died June 6, 1878; and he was succeeded by his son Alfred Poor.

The old house was taken down in the spring of 1890; and a new house was built upon the same site. This is one of the rare instances where a homestead remained in the same family for eight generations.

NOTES.

Edward Renouf of Marblehead advertised that he intended to sail for Jersey by the first of September.

Newbury-Port, August 9, 1769.

Yesterday the Reverend Mr. JOHN MURRAY, left this Town, accompanied by a Number of Gentlemen, to Haverhill; and from thence intends for Boston, in order to return to the Eastern Country. He has preached every Day for ten Days past, to vast Numbers of People, from Five to Ten Thousand at a time, and once was obliged to preach in the open Field, at Mr. Lefley's Parish, the Concourfe of People being fo great: his last Discourse was delivered at the Rev. Mr. Marsh's Meeting House. A considerable Number of the Clergy attended his Preaching; and perhaps no one was ever more universally approved of in this Country. Prejudice, Bigotry, and Uncharitablenefs seem'd to be wholly laid aside. As to any Reports being propagated, that this Gentleman forces himself into other Mens Labours, it is far otherwise; he rather has a happy Talent in healing than making Divisions.

On page 170 of volume XI of The Antiquarian, it ought to have been stated that the firm of "George Peabody & Co., of Warfords Court, City," was located in London, England.—Ed.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

This is a seventeen-page pamphlet, being a paper read at the banquet of the St. Mary's School Alumni Association, Salem, Mass., Oct. 15, 1907. It contains a good deal of information, and is interesting.

MARQUIS DE LA FAYETTE. Newburyport, Mass., 1907.

The Towle Manufacturing Company of Newburyport have prepared and issued a sixth number of their colonial series of pamphlets, illustrating their styles of silver ware. This is an account of the life of Marie Joseph Paul Yves Roch Gilbert Dumotier Marquis de La Fayette, major-general in the service of America and the noblest patriot of the French Revolution.

It contains fifty large pages of text, and many interesting engravings of things and scenes connected with La Fayette, with several portraits.

This number will be sent for fifteen cents in postage to any address by the Towle Manufacturing Company, Newburyport, Mass.

This volume is another of the valuable publications of The Topsfield Historical Society, and the entire series is an illustration of what can be done by a society of limited means in printing historical information and records. It contains one hundred and fifty-two octavo pages; and its principal article is a copy of the register of baptisms, marriages and burials at St. Margaret's, in the parish of Topsfield, England, transcribed by Rev. H. B. Barnes, rector of the church.

At the end of this volume is a subject index to the entire ten volumes.

This pamphlet of thirty-five octavo pages, comprising sketches of Soldiers of the Revolution, was compiled from the court records by Lucien Thompson of Durham, N. H., and reprinted for private distribution by William Lincoln Palmer of Cambridge, Mass., from the Granite State Magazine.

These declarations were found on file in the office of the clerk of the superior court, in the Strafford county court house at Dover. They were not indexed, and no court official was aware of their exist-
The declarations give the service of each soldier.

This volume of the diary of Doctor Bentley covers the period from January, 1793, to December, 1802. The first volume was issued by the Essex Institute in 1905; and this one is in the same style and size as that. This volume of Doctor Bentley's important journal is as interesting as the first is, and as rich in detail and acuteness of observation.

The price of this volume, bound in cloth, is $3.50. Address The Essex Institute, Salem, Mass.

The Old Farmer and His Almanack. By George Lyman Kittredge. Boston, 1904.

This volume will delight many readers, especially those who turn over the leaves of old almanacs, expecting something interesting to turn up. This book contains the pith of the Robert Bailey Thomas almanacs since he published the first, for 1793. Mr. Thomas was of Welsh descent, and born at Grafton, Mass., April 24, 1766. He died in West Boylston May 19, 1846, at the age of four-score. Two portraits of him are given in this volume.

The principal chapters are devoted to a sketch of Mr. Thomas, the man of the signs, artistic embellishment, wit and wisdom of the farmer's calendar, etc. The engravings are quite numerous, being several title-pages of almanacs, cuts at the head of the calendar pages, Father Time, reproductions of miscellaneous illustrations of the almanacs, specimen pages, etc.

This volume contains four hundred and three octavo pages, bound, and finely gotten up. It is published by William Ware & Co., Boston, the publishers of the almanacs.

Mattapoisett and Old Rochester, Massachusetts. New York, 1907.

This is a volume of four hundred and twenty-four small octavo pages, bound in cloth. It contains the history of the towns of Mattapoisett and Old Rochester and also, in part, of Marion and a portion of Wareham; having been prepared under the direction of a committee of the town of Mattapoisett. From ancient Rochester, Marion was set-off in 1852 and Mattapoisett in 1857. In this book, is given a very complete history of Rochester down to 1857 and since that date the history of Mattapoisett.

The writers of the book are Mary Hall Leonard, Lemuel LeBaron Dexter, James S. Burbank, Lester W. Jenney, Mary Frances Briggs and the late Hon. Lemuel LeBaron Holmes. Many extracts from the records of the towns and of the churches are given, to the great assistance and delight of the genealogist and historian.

Mattapoisett was long a thriving fishing and shipbuilding village, and as a town it flourished in its farming and marine interests; but it is to-day a summer resort, the sound of the shipbuilder's hammer having ceased.

Many engravings, most of them fine half-tones, add to the interest and value of the volume. They consist of maps, historic places, scenery, the harbor, villages, houses, meeting-houses, the common, streets, town house academy, portrait of Rev. Thomas Robbins, ship Niger, bark Sunbeam, schoolhouses, old engine house, etc.

The volume is interestingly written, and its mechanical execution is fine. It is published by The Grafton Press, 70 Fifth Avenue, New York City, and the price is two dollars net. If it is to be sent by mail fifteen cents must be added for postage.
Riding in Olden Times.

In the earliest years of this colony, travel by land was on foot. Various records give details of travelling in this way. In 1631, Governor Winthrop, Captain Underhill and other officers, went on foot from Boston to Saugus, and the next day to Salem. In 1635, Roger Williams undoubtedly walked to what is now Rhode Island. In 1637, Governor Winthrop, with a large escort, passed through Salem on foot, on his way to and from Ipswich.

The first settlements being along the water front, on bays or rivers, the earliest means of conveyance was the boat,—the dugout or canoe. The water was as prepared for travel then as it is now, whereas in the surrounding forest paths fit for horseback riding were not in existence, even though horses had been at hand. The boat has always been a favorite means of travelling for both pleasure and business.

Horses were soon introduced, and bridle paths through the woods had to be prepared by the thinning out of trees and removal of rocks and underbrush along a selected course. Men rode astride, but women and children usually sat upon a pillion behind the men. Thus a family proceeded to church or market or went on a visit.

The first vehicles used for riding were probably heavy sleds, drawn by horses or oxen. These were very advantageous in getting about during the long winters, when snow deeply covered the ground. The first sleighs made and used here were really small sleds with a top, high-backed, containing a seat. The back and seat combined had the appearance of a small settle which was used before the hearth.

The chair, or chaise, as it was later exclusively called, came into use here just prior to the Revolution. Some of these carriages were made, subsequently, so that the top could be tipped back. The frontispiece of this number of the Antiquarian represents a fine specimen of the old-fashioned "shay," or chaise. It is a photograph of the chaise in the museum of the Essex Institute at Salem. It is in excellent condition, and might well have been the subject of the poem by Oliver Wendell Holmes, entitled "The Deacon's Masterpiece," or "The One-Horse Shay:"

"He would build one shay to beat the taown 'n the kcountry 'n all the kentry raoun';
It should be so built that it couldn' break daown:
—"Fur," said the Deacon, "'t's mighty plain Thut the weakes' place mus' stan' the strain;
'n' the way t' fix it, uz I maintain, is only jest
T' make that place uz strong uz the rest.'"
So the Deacon inquired of the village folk
Where he could find the strongest oak,
That could n't be split nor bent nor broke,—
That was for spokes and floor and sills;
He sent for lance wood to make the thills;
The crossbars were ash, from the straightest trees,
The panels of white-wood, that cuts like cheese,
But lasts like iron for things like these;
The hubs of logs from the "Settler's ellum,"—
Last of its timber,—they couldn't sell 'em,
Never an axe had seen their chips,
And the wedges flew from between their lips,

AN OLD-FASHIONED TEAM.
Their blunt ends frizzled like celery-tips;
Step and prop-iron, bolt and screw,
Spring, tire, axle, and linch-pin too,
Steel of the finest, bright and blue;
Thoroughbrace bison-skin, thick and wide;
Boot, top, dasher from tough old hide
Found in the pit when the tanner died.
That was the way he "put her through,"—
"There!" said the Deacon, "naow she'll dew!"

The sulky, which was then very light and held only one person, was also in use prior to the Revolution.
The curricle, also in use here at that time, was an open two-wheeled carriage, drawn by a span of horses. This kind of vehicle had been used probably for many years, as, in 1771, John Adams, afterward president of the United States, wrote in his diary, that when riding the circuit of the courts, on the way from Malden to Lynn, he "Overtook Judge Cushing in his old curricle with lean horses, and Dick, his negro, at his right hand, driving the curricle." Some of these carriages were made so that the top could fall back.
The first coach that the writer has found mentioned was one owned by the Hon. William Browne, of Salem, who built the great mansion on Folly hill.
This was a close four-wheeled carriage with seats at both ends.
The first public conveyance in Essex county was a "large stage," drawn by two horses, and carrying four persons and lately improved by John Noble. He sets out from Boston every Friday morning and from Portsmouth on Tuesday morning following. The above conveyance has been found very useful, and now more so, as there is another curricle improved by J. S. Hart, who sets off from Portsmouth the same day this does from Boston, by which opportunity offers twice a week for travellers to either place." In 1774, Maj. Ezra Lunt began running a weekly stage between Boston and Newburyport.
About 1796, Benjamin Hale of New-buryport, the proprietor of a stage, improved the springs of stages, and invented the trunk rack. Chaises were built in Newburyport in 1776 by Moses Brown; and stage coaches were subsequently made in Salem.

Stage companies were formed, and turnpikes, to facilitate through travel, came into existence in 1803 and 1804. These corporations, both of stage lines and turnpikes, went out of being when steam railroads came into use about 1840.

The departure of the old stage led one to write of their disappearance many years ago, as follows:

"Never again shall we gather at the cottage gate, as the clatter of wheels and the cloud of dust approach, to welcome the aged parent,—the coming guest,—the daughter home from school. Never again shall we linger in the open doorway of a New England homestead, in tender parting with the young son setting out for sea, or on some distant westward venture,—to speed the lovers starting together on the life-long journey,—never again cast longing glances after that receding freight of dear ones, until at last the winding road and over-hanging elm trees part us, and we sit sadly down to listen,

"While faint from farther distance borne Are heard the clanging hoof and horn!"

Never again will the midnight watcher by the silent bedside hear the mail-stage arrive and go, leaving its messages of love and sorrow for the sleeping townsfolk and sing, with Hannah Gould,

"The rattling of that reckless wheel
That brings the bright or boding seal
To crown thy hopes or end thy fears,
To light thy smiles or draw thy tears,
As line on line is read."

"Famous levelers were these old stage coaches and masters in etiquette also! What chance-medley of social elements they brought about! What infinite attrition of human particles,—what jostling of ribs and elbows,—what contact inconvenient, nose to nose! What consequent rounding and smoothing of angles and corners,—what a test of good-nature,—what a tax on forbearance,—what a school of mutual consideration! For how else could a dozen passengers consent to be boxed up and shaken together for a day, but upon condition that each was to exhibit the best side of his nature and that only?

"To the next generation the old stage coach will be as shadowy and unreal a thing as were those which appeared, musty and shattered, to the uncle of the one-eyed Bagman in Pickwick, while he dozed at midnight in the Edinboro' court-yard."

SALEM IN 1700. NO. 31.

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

The map opposite represents that part of Salem lying between the harbor on the east and the creek and marsh on the west, and between Leach street on the north to a point a few rods south of Clifton avenue. It is based on actual surveys and title deeds, and is drawn on a scale of four hundred and fifty feet to an inch. No houses were standing on this territory in 1700.

The highway through this section, as shown on the map, was laid out in 1666, as stated in preceding articles, from Salem to Marblehead. It was called the highway very early; the highway that leads toward Marblehead, 1723; the highway that goes through the south field, 1728; and Lafayette street in 1824.

The dotted lines show the location of many of the present streets. The brace marked "a" represents the beginning of Laurel street; "b," Willow avenue; "c," Ocean avenue; and those marked "d," Lafayette street.

Cliff street was laid out and accepted in 1900.

Clifton avenue was originally a narrow path leading from the main highway to the water at Forest River park; and was laid out as a public highway from Lafayette street to Summit avenue in 1885, being extended easterly in 1890.

Eden street was laid out in 1870.

Forest avenue was laid out from Lafayette street to Park avenue in 1880.

Glendale street was laid out in 1887.

Green street was laid out from Leach to Eden street in 1870, and extended to Messervy street in 1888.

Hazel street was laid out in 1869.

Holly street was accepted in 1875.

Laurel street was laid out in 1871.

Linden street was laid out from Holly to Laurel street in 1864, and subsequently extended.

Meadow avenue was laid out in 1871.

Messervy street was laid out in 1871.

Ocean avenue was laid out from Lafayette street to Park avenue in 1870, and extended to the railroad in 1872.

Summit avenue was laid out from Leach street to Ocean avenue in 1870, and extended to Clifton avenue in 1886.

Willow avenue was laid out in 1871.

Wisteria street was laid out in 1897.

The water on the east was called ye harbor in 1658; the South harbor, 1666; ye water or harbor, 1669; Salem harbor, 1686; and ye harbor or salt water in 1696.

Samuel Robinson and Caleb Buffum Lot. This lot was owned by Richard Reed of Marblehead, shoreman, and William Charles. The latter died, having devised his half part to his grandchildren, James Dennis, jr., Amos Dennis, and Agnes, wife of Thomas Trefry, all of Marblehead. These grandchildren conveyed their half interest in the lot to Samuel Robinson of Salem, carman or carter, Sept. 30, 1695.* Mr. Robinson conveyed his half part of this lot to his father, Samuel Robinson, sr., of Salem June 2, 1696.†

The other half interest, owned by Richard Reed in 1695, was conveyed by him to Caleb Buffum of Salem, yeoman, June 27, 1698‡; and Mr. Reed's eldest son and heir, Samuel Reed of Marblehead, released the interest to Mr. Buffum on the same day.

Mr. Robinson and Mr. Buffum owned the lot together in 1700.

Estate of John Pickering Lot. Joshua Rea may have owned this lot very early. Samuel Archer of Salem owned it about the same time and died possessed of it in 1667. The lot was then valued at twelve pounds. It came into the possession of Mr. Archer's son Samuel Archer of Salem, carpenter, who, for thirty-two pounds, conveyed the lot to Lt. John Pickering of Salem, yeoman, Nov. 9, 1680. Mr. Pickering died in May, 1694, having devised this lot to his wife for her life, and at her decease to his son William Pickering. Both the widow and son William Pickering owned the lot for some years after 1700. There was a little strip of salt marsh at the western end of the lot.

John Robinson Lot. This was a part of John Orne's lot in 1679, and he probably owned it for many years. He apparently conveyed it, between Oct. 8, 1679, and Oct. 30, 1683, to his sons Joseph Horne, cordwainer, and Benjamin Horne, tailor, both of Salem, who, for fifteen pounds and ten shillings, conveyed it to John Robinson of Salem, tailor, on the latter date. Mr. Robinson owned it for many years.

John Orne Lot. John Orne of Salem, house carpenter, owned this lot Nov. 4, 1684, when, upon his death bed probably, he conveyed it, for love, to his son John Orne of Salem, cordwainer. In the father's will, dated Oct. 8, 1679, and proved Nov. 25, 1684, the lot was also devised to him. John Orne, the son, owned it until 1709.

Thomas Flint Lot. This lot early belonged to Richard Raymond of Salem, mariner, who had moved to Saybrooke, Conn. By attorneys, he conveyed it to his son-in-law Oliver Manning of Salem, seaman, Oct. 13, 1662. Mr. Manning removed to New London, Conn., and, for fourteen pounds, conveyed the lot to William Flint of Salem, yeoman, April 30, 1667. Mr. Flint died April 2, 1673, possessed of the lot, having devised it to his son Thomas Flint. It was then appraised at thirteen pounds. Quartermas-

Miles Ward Lot. This lot was early owned by a Mr. Gott, and by Samuel Cutler in 1662. Capt. James Smith of Marblehead, mariner, owned it in 1667, and conveyed it to William Flint of Salem, husbandman, Sept. 13, 1669. Mr. Flint died April 2, 1673, having devised this lot to his grandson Joshua Ward. It was then valued at eighteen pounds. Joshua Ward died in 1680, at the age of eleven; and the lot came into the hands or his brother Miles Ward, who owned it for many years after 1700.

Jonathan Ager Lot. This lot early belonged to "old goodman Ager" (or, Augur). This was William Ager of Salem, who died in the spring of 1654, having devised the lot to his son Jonathan Ager. Jonathan Ager owned the lot for many years after 1700.

William Browne Lot. This lot belonged to Samuel Archer very early. He died in December, 1667, possessed of it, and his administrator conveyed it, without the marsh, to William Browne, sr., of Salem, merchant, before Jan. 31, 1669-70, when the latter conveyed it to his son William Browne, jr., of Salem, merchant. But no deed was passed from the administrator until Sept. 27, 1687, when Samuel Archard of Salem, house carpenter, eldest son of the deceased, gave a deed to William Browne. Mr. Browne owned the lot and apparently the marsh at the southwestern end in 1700.

Estate of John Archer Lot. This lot belonged to Samuel Archer, sr., very early. He died in December, 1667, possessed of it, and it descended to his son John Archer of Salem, who died in the winter of 1693-4, possessed of the premises. His estate owned it until 1703.

William Browne Lot. This lot belonged to Nathaniel Pickman as early as 1669. He died in the autumn of 1684.
possessed of this lot, which was then valued at thirty pounds. The administrator of his estate conveyed it to William Browne, jr., of Salem, merchant, April 3, 1686.* Mr. Browne owned it until his death, which occurred in 1716. He had also come into the possession of the marsh at the western end of the lot.

Hilliard Veren Cler:

THE OLD FARM-HOUSE.

In a little grove of shade trees
Stands a farm-house, brown and old,
With a wealth of vines around it,
Gemmed with flowers of red and gold;
By the path that makes a circle
Of white sand around the lawn,
Grow sweet Timothy and clover,
Rosy as a June-day dawn.

Around its door pale morning-glories,
Jump-up-Johnies, dahlias, pinks,
Cluster—concentrated beauties,
Married by a thousand links;
Links of love, the works of nature's Mystery of handicraft; Links of glory, through which Argosies of perfume waft.

And the gate that swings before it,
And the fence as white as snow,
Stand on variegated cushions,
Which the sun-fire sets aglow;
Crowning them with many colors—
Yellow, purple, green and blue,
As if rainbows there had fallen,
Melted into rarest dew.

On its roof the greenest mosses
Catch the shadows from the trees;
On its sides red honeysuckles
Make their curtesies to the breeze;
And the ever-nervous willows
Standing near the garden's bound,
Throw a web of shade fantastic
On the clover-mantled ground.

O'er the well an arch of grape-vines,
Formed with heaven's directed care,
Chains the shadows to the water,
Making cool the summer air;
And a tiny church, its steeple
Piercing through a bower of leaves,
Is a sure and sacred refuge
Where the wren her carol weaves.

A HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES AND ITS PEOPLE from their Earliest Records to the Present Time. By Elroy McKendree Avery. Volume IV. Cleveland, O., 1908.

In this volume of Dr. Avery's fine History of the United States is told how the shackles of tyranny were beginning to be broken in pre-revolutionary struggles and the colonists were prepared for the hastening grapple. The first chapter treats of events which occurred subsequent to the taking of Louisburg in 1745. Then follows the account of the French and Indian war,—the Braddock Expedition, the campaigns at Crown Point and Niagara, the removal of the Acadians, the campaigns of Oswego and Fort William Henry, the capture of Louisburg, the campaign at Ticonderoga and Fort Frontenac, the fall of Fort Duquesne, the campaigns on lakes Champlain and Ontario, the campaign at Quebec and the battle of the Plains of Abraham, the fall of New France, and the peace that followed. It also contains the history of the Cherokee War, 1759-1763, and of the Pontiac War in 1763 and 1764.

This volume contains the usual index and bibliography of the historical sources of the period covered, and this addition is one of the best features of the work, as it enables the reader or the student to continue his reading or investigations on any of the subjects covered by the respective volumes without searching here and there for proper sources of information.

This is in keeping with the plan of the previous volumes in binding, paper, type and illustration. The typographical execution of the work is unexcelled, and the number of engravings is greater than in the volumes previously issued. The beauty of the cuts, many of them being in several colors, is fully equal to those previously presented. The frontispiece is a portrait of Benjamin Franklin. Other portraits given are of Rev. Thomas Prince, Gov. Benning Wentworth, James Edward Oglethorpe, Gov. Robert Dinwiddie, Lawrence Washington, Sir Peter Halket, William Johnson, Robert Monckton, Gen. John Winslow, Thomas Pownall, Robert Rogers, William Pitt, Sir Jeffrey Amherst, Admiral Edward Boscawen, Henry Bouquet, Gen. James Wolfe, Sir Charles Sanders, Gen. George Townshend, George III., etc. There are many autographs, and photographic copies of letters, title pages, bills of currency, coat armor, seals, buildings, newspaper headings, views of places and forts, monuments, soldiers' uniforms in colors, vessels, medals, and many maps, reproduced in their original colors.

There are three hundred and seventy-six pages, all of which consist of valuable historical matter logically and interestingly presented. The publishers are The Burrows Brothers Company, Cleveland, O.

SALEM IN 1700. NO. 32.
BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

The map on page 114 represents that part of Salem lying south of the junction of Lafayette street and Clifton avenue to a point just south of the State Normal School building, and between the harbor and the marsh lying westerly of Broadway. It is based on actual surveys and title deeds, and is drawn on a scale of four hundred and fifty feet to an inch. There were no houses standing on this territory in 1700.

The brace marked "a" shows where West avenue runs, and that marked "b" where the new road to Marblehead was laid out in 1737. It was located by the court of general sessions Nov. 15, 1736, and the laying out was confirmed by the court July 26, 1737. The road was occasioned, primarily, by the building of the mill at Forest river two years previously. At this section it was located substantially within the present limits of Lafayette street.

It was called the new road to Marblehead in 1755; Fayette street in 1840; and Lafayette street since 1849.

Loring avenue, which is shown on the map as "Highway to Marblehead," was the old way to Marblehead, having been laid out in 1666, as described in No. 29. It was called the highway as it goes toward Marblehead in 1676; highway to Marblehead, 1713; ye country road leading to Marblehead, 1719; ye road leading through South field to Marblehead, 1734; the old road so called to Marblehead, 1773; the road leading to Forest river bridge so called and Salem hospital, 1777; and Loring avenue since 1881, the name having then been changed from Lynn road, which it had been called for many years.

That part of the water lying easterly of the premises was called ye harbor in 1658; the South harbor, 1665; ye water or harbor, 1669; Salem harbor, 1686; ye harbor or salt water, 1696; and has been known since that time generally as Salem harbor. That part of the water lying southerly of the territory was called Forest river as early as 1666; ye water or harbor, 1669; the river, 1692; ye sea or salt water, 1708; Salem harbor, 1812; and the harbor, 1829.

Sarah Williams Lot. Thomas Browning of Salem owned this lot as early as 1658, and died, possessed of it, in the spring of 1671, having devised it to his daughters Sarah, wife of Joseph Williams, and Deborah, wife of Isaac Meachum. A division of the real estate of the deceased was made 17:2:1675, and this lot was released to Mrs. Williams.* She owned the lot until after 1700.

John Pickering Lot. This lot belonged to John Talby before 1653 and to Richard More of Salem, mariner, in that year. For six pounds, Mr. More conveyed it to William Flint of Salem, husbandman, 21:7:1658.† Mr. Flint conveyed the lot to Lt. John Pickering of Salem, yeoman, Dec. 1, 1671.† Mr. Pickering died in May, 1694, having devised the lot to his son Benjamin, who was a shipwright and resident of Salem. For twenty pounds, he conveyed the lot to John Pickering of Salem, yeoman, April 18, 1698;‡ and John Pickering owned it in 1700.

Edward Flint Lot. The northerly half of this lot, above the dashes, early belonged to John Browne, and he conveyed it to Henry Harwood of Salem before 1658.

The southerly half of the lot was in the possession of Henry Harwood ("Har-

THE OLD-TIME GROCERY STORE.

The world may prize its concerts, its theatres and balls, Its vaudeville amusements in Keith's palatial halls, I remember with affection a place that is no more, That place of evening jollity, the old-time grocery store.

I buy my modest provender of a grocer slim and spry, And the only folks who're welcome are the folks who come to buy. The stove that was the focus when the evenings had grown chill, Is junk, and where it used to stand they've got a coffee mill.

The checker board is laid away and dust is on its top, A sign upon the wall remarks "No Loafing in this Shop!" There's a ring of friendly faces that will never circle more, And the glory has departed of the old-time grocery store.

How memory still recalls them, those good old social days, When the regulars had all gathered about that friendly blaze, And the elders led the conclave from that sacred inner row, With their venerable whiskers waving dignified and slow.
In boyhood's bright ambition, there was formed a vision fair
Of the time when, as an elder, I should take an inner chair,
And be profound in argument, and scathing in debate,
And skilful in anathema, and in prophecy have weight.

HON. SAMUEL PHILLIPS.

Hon. Samuel Phillips was son of Samuel and Elizabeth (Barnard) Phillips of Andover, where he was born Feb. 5, 1752, the youngest but one of seven children, and the only one that lived to adult age. His father was a merchant, conducting a country store at the house in which Samuel was born, and to which the family removed, only two or three weeks before Samuel's birth, from their old house. The new home had just been completed.

Amid rural scenes, quiet, industry and thrift the boyhood of young Phillips was passed. He was gentle, amiable and active. He was fond of books, and it was early decided to give him a liberal education. When he became twelve years of age he was the only surviving child in the family. Without playmates and companions of his own age, he grew sedate, orderly and studious, and his real boy life was soon over. Otherwise, he might have been more robust and his life more joyous.

At the age of thirteen, in the spring of 1765, he entered Dummer academy, at Byfield, where he fitted for college. Here he was proficient in his studies, manly, sober and systematic in all things. His health, however, was not good.

At the age of fifteen, he entered Harvard college; and graduated in 1771. He was diligent in his studies, though slow to learn, and had a good memory.

He married Miss Phebe Foxcroft in 1773, she being nine years his senior, and took up his residence in his native town.
In that spring he was chosen town clerk and treasurer, in place of his father, who had filled both offices for the previous fourteen years.

Early in 1774, he was appointed by the town chairman of a committee to draft a series of resolutions on the public affairs of the time; and subsequently served on other similar committees. At the age of twenty-three, in 1775, he was the And-dover representative to the provincial congress. He became one of its best speakers, clear, concise, logical, direct and nervous, but never light, fanciful or rhetorical; and served on many of the committees, with such men as Samuel Adams and John Hancock. He served on several committees appointed to confer with General Washington in reference to the war; to countersign the colony notes issued by the continental congress and the notes of the receiver-general, to direct the mustering and paying militia companies, to superintend the delivery of powder to the several towns and to the commissary-general, to view the defences of Boston harbor, report their condition, etc.

While a member of the provincial congress in the winter of 1775-6, he erected at great expense, a powder mill for the aid of the colonies, with their cooperation, and in May began to deliver considerable quantities of the necessary powder from week to week. This was, at the time, the leading manufactory of powder in the province.

He was one of the four delegates chosen by the town of Andover to the constitutional convention of 1779-1780;
and was one of the committee to frame it.
He was chosen the first state senator from his district; and the next year (1781) was appointed to the bench of the court of common pleas for Essex county, though he was only twenty-nine years of age. He began his judicial service at Newburyport
Sept. 25, 1781; and ended it in April, 1798. Doctor Tappan, in his funeral sermon on the death of Judge Phillips, said that "his wisdom, justice, and patriotism, were for a long time exercised in one of our judiciary departments; in which his ability and integrity, his patient, candid, and diligent attention, were universally
I was continuously elected to the senate after his first election in 1780. He became its president in 1785; and continued to be elected president, unanimously, for fifteen years, being regarded as the father of the senate.

At the state election in April, 1801, Judge Phillips was chosen lieutenant-governor as the nominee of the Federalists; and held that office at the time of his death.

In 1777, Mr. Phillips had moved to the South parish of Andover; and there erected a fine large house in 1785, at which Washington was a guest in his New England tour in 1789.

There was an inherited love of learning in the Phillips' family; and Judge Phillips gave his support to all schools, both public and private, in the town. He finally projected the plan for the academy which since that time has flourished in his parish and called by his name.

He was not only its projector but chief patron. The establishment of this institution was the favorite work of his life.

He persuaded his father and uncle to endow the school as joint founders. They had both been teachers, and gradually became interested in the plan, finally consenting to it. It was at first designed as a private school, under his personal supervision; and the entire endowment, lands, buildings and funds was to be made over to him alone in trust; and the founders with seven others were to be trustees. This was in 1777, before he had removed to the South parish, and a suitable site was sought in the North parish near his own and his father's home. In January, of that year, the first purchase of land for the academy was made, but in the South parish. The second tract, bought in March following, had upon it an old house, and to this house Mr. Phillips removed from his home in the North parish.

An old carpenter's shop on the first lot of land purchased was immediately fitted up for a schoolhouse. It was one-story high, thirty-five feet long and twenty wide, and would accommodate thirty or forty scholars. It stood on the corner of Main and Phillips streets. The school was opened in 1778. A new building was opened in 1786.

As his years glided away, with increasing debility, Judge Phillips seemed to redouble his activity. His chronic asthma was ominous of consumption. He preferred to live fast rather than long; to work while it was today. In the summer of 1801, his health was very poor; and he died, at his home in Andover, Feb. 10, 1802, at fifty years of age. His funeral was largely attended by prominent men of Massachusetts and New Hampshire. He met death as he ever met his duty, with Christian hope and faith. His loss was deplored and lamented. He had been one of the sterling able patriots of his time,—a time which seemed to produce an unprecedented number of great men of character, ability, activity and reputation.

LEGAL QUALIFICATIONS OF VOTERS IN MASSACHUSETTS.

In the charter granted, March 4, 1628, by King Charles I to John Humphrey, John Endecott, Sir Richard Saltonstall, Matthew Cradock, Richard Bellingham, John Browne, Samuel Browne and their associates, "and all such others as shall hereafter be admitted and made free of the Colony and Society hereafter men- coed, shall, from tyme to tyme, and at all tymes for ever hereafter, be ... one body corporate and politic in fact and name, by the name of the Governor and Company of the Massachusetts Bay in Newe England: ... and graunte, That, from henceforth for ever, there shalbe one Governor, one Deputy Governor, and eighteene Assistants of the same Company, to be from tyme to tyme constituted, elected, and chosen out of the freemen of the saied Company, for the tyme being, in such manner and forme as hereafter in these presents is expressed. ... And ... wee ... constitute ... Mathew Cradocke to be the first and present Governor ... Thomas Goffe to be Deputy Governor ... and Sir Richard Saltonstall ... John Endecott, ... John Browne ... [and others named] to be the present Assistants ... the Governor or Deputie Governor and six of the Assistants, ... shall have full power and authoritie to choose, nominate, and appointe such and soe many others as they shall thinke fit, and that shall be willing to accept the same, to be free of the said Company and Body, and them into the same to admitt."

Accordingly, the original associates chose, from time to time, various persons as freemen, and early fixed upon certain qualifications and the form of an oath. The following is a copy of the original oath:

"I, A, B, &c, being, by the Almightie most wise disposicon, become a memb' of this body, consisting of the Goun't, Deputy Goun't, Assistants, and a com'ity of the Mattachusets in Newe England, doe freely & sincerely acknowledge that I am iustly & lawfully subject to the goun't of the same, & doe accordingly submitt my psone & estate to be ptected, ordered, & gouned by the lawes & constitucions thereof, & doe faithfully pmise to be from time to time obedient & conformable thereunto, & to the authie of the said Goun't & Assistants & their suc- cess's, & to all such lawes, orders, sentences, & decrees as shalbe lawfully made & published by them or their successors; and I will alwaies indeav'r (as in duty I am bound) to advance the peace & welfare of this bodie or commonwealth to my utmost skill & abilitie; & I will, to my best power and meanes, seeke to devert & prevent whatsoeuer may tend to the ruyne or damage thereof, or of any of the said Goun't, Deputy Goun't, or Assistants, or any of them, or their successor's, and will giue speedy notice to them, or some of them, of any sedicon, violence, treachery, or other hurt or euill which I shall knowe, heare, or vehem'tly suspecte to be plotted or intended against the said commonwealth, or the said goun't established; and I will not att any time suffer or giue consent to any counsell or any attempt that shalbe [done.] given, or attempted for the impeacm't of the said goun't, or makeing any change or alteracon of the same, contrary to the laws & ordinances thereof, but shall doe my utmost endeav'r to discover, oppose, & hinder all & euy such counsell & attempt. Soe helpe me God."

May 14, 1634, the form of the oath was revised, the following being agreed upon:—

"I, A, B, &c, being by Gods evidence an inhabitant & freeman within the jurisdiction of this common weale, doe freely acknowledge my selfe to be subject to the goument thereof, & therefore doe here swear by the greate and dreadfull name of the euer lyuing God that I wilbe true & faithful to the same, & will accordingly yeild assistance & support thereunto, with my pson & estate, as in equitie I am bound, & will also truely indeav'r to mayntaine & preserue all the liberties & previlidges thereof, submitting my selfe to the wholesome lawes made & established by the same; and further, that I will not plot nor practise any euill against it, nor consent to any that shall soe doe, but will tymely discouer & reveale the same to lawfull aucthority nowe here established for the speedy preventing thereof. Moreover, I doe solemnly bind my selfe in the sight of God, that when I shalbe called to giue my voyce touching any such matter of this state, wherein freemen are to deale, I will giue my vote & suffrage as I shall in my owne conscience judge best to conduce & tend to the publique weale of the body, without respect of psons or fav'r of any man Soe helpe mee God in the Lord Jesus Christ."*

May 18, 1631, the general court, "to the end the body of the comons may be preserved of honest & good men, it was likewise ordered and agreed that for time to come noe man shalbe admitted to the freedome of this body politick, but such as are members of some of the churches within the lymitts of the same."*

At first, under the charter, the associates chose freemen, but, May 14, 1634, the general court voted "that none but the Gen'all Court hath power to chuse and admit freemen."*

The age limit was extended to sixteen years, except for the election of magistrates, March 4, 1634-5, when the general court "ordered, that the freemens oath shalbe gyven to euy man of or above the age of 16 years, the clause for elecon of magistrates onely excepted."†

Men in the settlements were not strongly desirous of becoming freemen, and with that position to assume the obligations of citizenship. It was easier to receive the benefits of the government without the bounden duty to the commonwealth, than to perform and be responsible for the oft-times onerous duties of office-holding, as many still think. To emphasize the law that no one but freemen had the right of suffrage, the general court, Sept. 3, 1635, "ordered, that none but freemen shall haue any vote in any towne, in any accon of aucthoritie, or necessity, or that which belongs to them by vertue of their freedome, as receaving inhabitants, & layeing out of lots," etc.§

Several years went by and still men were slow to become freemen. May 10, 1643, the general court "ordered, concerning members that refuse to take their freedom, the churches should bee writ unto, to deale wth them."‖

Freemen were needed everywhere for jury duties, and in every town to serve as town officials; and the authorities were compelled to extend a limited right of suffrage to many who were not freemen.

May 26, 1647, the general court, "taking into consideration ye usefull ptes & abilities of div's inhabitants amongst us, wtho if impvd to publike vse, ye affairs of this comon wealth may be ye easier carried an end, in ye several townes of this jurisdiction, doth hereby declare yt henceforth it shall & may be lawfull for ye freemen wthin any of ye said townes to make choyce of such inhabitants, though non freemen, who have taken or shall take ye oath of fidelity to this govern't to be jury men, & to have their vote in ye choyce of ye select men for townes affaires, asseasmt of rates, & other prudentials pp to ye select men of ye several townes, pvided still ye major pt of all companies (of selectmen be freemen) from time to time yt shall make any valide act, as also where no select men are to have their vote in ord'ing of schooles, hearing of cattle, laying out of high ways, & distributing of lands, any law, usage, or custome to ye contrary notw'thstanding; pvided, also, yt no non freeman shall have his vote untill he have attained ye age of 24 yeares; pvided, also, yt none ye are or shall be detected & convicted in any Co'te of any evil carriage against the govern't, or comonwealth, or churches, (it being intended to be immediately done,) shalbe capable to vote untill ye Co'te where he was convicted or sentenced hath restored him to his former liberty."*

Nov. 11, 1647, "There being wthin this jurisdiction many memb's of churches, who, to exempt ye churches from all publike service in ye comon wealth, will not come in to be made freemen," it was therefore ordered by the general court, "ye all such memb's of churches in ye severall townes wthin this jurisdiction shall not be exempted from such publike service as they are chosen to by ye freemen to ye severall townes, as constables, iurers, selectmen, & survey's of high ways; & if any person shall refuse to serve such office, he shall pay for ev'y such refusall, being legally chosen thereunto, such fine as ye townes shall impose, not exceed 20s, as freemen are liable unto in such cases."*

May 26, 1658, the general court repealed the above two laws "& inacted, that for time to come all Englishmen that are settled inhabitants & house holders in any town of the age of twenty fouer years, & of honest & good conversation, being rated at twenty pounds estate in a single countrje rate, that hath taken the oath of fidelitje to this government, & no other, except freemen, maybe chosen jury men or constables, and have therev vote in the choyce of the select men for the town affairs, assessments of rates, & other prudentials propper to the select men of the severall townes, provided still that the major part of all companies of selectmen be freemen from time to time that shall make a valid act, as also where no selectmen are to have their vote in ordering of schooles, hearing of cattle, laying out of highways, & distributing of lands, any lawe, vse, or custome to the contrary notw'thstanding, & the former laws, so farre as they relate to the liberty of such as are non freemen, are hereby repealed."†

May 31, 1660, the general court declared that freemen must be members of some church of Christ, and in full communion.‡

From the first, the intention of the legislators in making and interpreting the law was directed to keeping the government within the control of the Congregational church. This of course effected the exclusion of the Episcopalians. When the Commonwealth terminated and Charles II came to the throne, his Episcopalian friends in Massachusetts Bay Colony sought his assistance to enable them to secure the right of suffrage to themselves. Accordingly, June 28, 1662, the king sent a letter to the colony asking that the letter and construction of the law be modified. Apparently, little attention was paid to this letter, and nothing was positively done about it until Aug. 3, 1664, when the general court repealed the existing law that made it necessary that freemen be members of some church; and in its place ordered “that from henceforth all Englishmen presenting a certificat, under the hands of the ministers or minister of the place where they dwell, that they are orthodox in religion; & not vitious in there lies, and also a certificat, under the hands of the selectmen of the place, or of the major part of them, that they are freeholders, & are for their oune proper estate (with out heads of persons) rateable to the country in a single country rate, after the usual manner of valuation, in the place where they liue, to be full value of tenne shillings,* or that they are in full communion with some church amongst vs, it shallbe in the liberty of all & euery such person or persons, being twenty four yeares of age, householders and settled inhabitants in this jurisdiccion, from time to time, to present themselves & their desires to this Court for their admittance to the freedome of this comonwealth, and shallbe the priuiledge to have such their desire propounded & put to vote in the General Court for acceptance to the free-dome of the body politicke by the suffrage of the major pte, according to the rules of our pattent.”†

His majesty’s commissioners feared that the passage of this law would offend the king;‡ but the authorities here re-responded by stating that the colony stood upon its charter rights.* This is the last that is apparent on the records relating to the matter of suffrage in this colony, except the recall of the charter a score of years later.

Oct. 19, 1664, the general court ordered that, for convenience, the county courts may administer the oath of freedom to all persons approved of by the general court.†

A change in the character of suffrage seems to have begun at the time at which the king interposed in behalf of his Episcopalians. Until that time the government and nature of the colony was like that of a business corporation. By the enforced broadening of the right of suffrage, it came to have the character of a political government, where every inhabitant of sufficient ability had a right as such inhabitant to suffrage. Whether the reason of the change lay in the interposition of the king or not is not known.
It was, probably, however, the natural outcome of the situation. In spite of the restricted character of the practical methods of government at first adopted in regard to their successors, other and broader views of the leaders of the colony were evolved. The truth was that they were instituting a democratic government, and suffrage therefore must be inevitably as extensive as the inhabitants, who were capable of exercising the right of suffrage.
The reason for requiring qualification is to secure the people from the power of persons who have not sufficient will and interest. Slaves, persons under guardianship, infants, and, in earlier times than ours, paupers and women, were deemed either to have no will of their own or to be so much under the influence of others that they could not exercise it independently.

In early English times the government was in the hands of the landed proprietors; but in the passing of the centuries it became apparent that such a course was inconsistent with general welfare. On general principles of liberty, the poor man as well as the rich should have the right of suffrage, for to the voters is committed, to a great extent, not only the disposal of property, but of liberty and life.

We have seen that religion had entered into qualification, but only as a precaution, and had been abandoned. Also, that a property qualification had been begun. It early became law in England that suffrage should extend to all male freemen, above twenty-one years of age, who were not guilty of perjury or subornation of perjury. Such was the law of England when the charter of the Province of Massachusetts Bay was received. All through both colonial and provincial periods, this right of suffrage was somewhat guarded by the government supervision of new inhabitants.

The charter of the province provided that no freeholder or other person shall have a vote in the election of members of the general court, unless he has "an estate of Freehold in Land within Our said Province or Territory to the value of Forty Shillings per Annu at the least or other estate to the value of Forty pounds Sterling."

Immediately following the institution of the provincial government, in 1692-3, the general court enacted a law that freeholders and other inhabitants of each town who are rateable at twenty pounds estate, to one single rate besides the poll, may vote for town officers.*

In 1735, the general court voted that "No person shall be deemed qualified or be admitted to vote in the choice of officers, or in the other affairs to be transacted at any meeting of the town, precinct or parish where he dwells, but such only who have a rateable estate in such town or district (besides the poll) amounting to the value of twenty pounds."† But, for the choice of representatives any person may vote who is qualified "according to the royal charter."* This act was to continue for three years,† and it was renewed repeatedly until 1775.‖

The state constitution provided that state senators and representatives should be elected by the vote of male inhabitants in their respective districts, of twenty-one years of age and upwards, having a freehold estate within the commonwealth, "of the annual income of three pounds, or any estate of the value of sixty pounds,"§ and in case of a representative election a voter must have a freehold estate of that value within the town of which he was a resident.‖

Feb. 20, 1782, the general court enacted a law that every person who is an inhabitant within any town who shall pay to one single tax, besides the poll or polls, a sum equal to two-thirds of a single poll tax, shall be entitled to all the privileges of voting in town affairs.

By an act of the general court passed March 7, 1801, voters must be duly registered before they can vote. This has been the law ever since that time.

By an amendment of the constitution, numbered three, which was ratified by the people April 9, 1821, paupers¶ and persons under guardianship were denied the right to vote for governor, lieutenant governor, senators or representatives, and it also provided that in order to vote in such elections voters must be citizens and have resided in the commonwealth one year, and within the town or district, in which they shall claim a right to vote, six calendar months next preceding any such election.

election;* also, they must have paid, by themselves or their parents, masters or guardians a state or county tax, which, within two years next preceding such election, was assessed upon them, in any town or district of the state, unless he was by law exempt from taxation. The provision requiring the possession of a freehold of the annual income of three pounds or of any estate of the value of sixty pounds was annulled.

The qualifications as fixed by this amendment were by chapter 104, section 1, of the Acts of 1823, made applicable to all voters in elections of representatives to congress and state, county and municipal offices, and in all meetings of municipalities; † and by Acts of 1832, chapter 169, section 1, to elections for electors of president and vice president of the United States.

By amendment to the state constitution numbered twenty, which was ratified by the people May 1, 1857, provided that a voter must "be able to read the constitution in the English language and write his name: provided, however, that the provisions of this amendment shall not apply to any person prevented by a physical disability from complying with its requisitions, nor to any person who now has the right to vote, nor to any persons who shall be sixty years of age or upwards at the time" the amendment took effect.

The twenty-third amendment of the state constitution, ratified by the people May 1, 1859, provided that "No person of foreign birth possessed at the time of the adoption thereof; and, provided, further, that it shall not effect the rights of any child of a citizen of the United States, born during the temporary absence of the parent therefrom." The amendment was repealed by amendment twenty-six, which was ratified by the people April 6, 1863.

The twenty-eighth amendment of the state constitution, ratified by the people Nov. 8, 1881, provided that "No person having served in the army or navy of the United States in time of war, and having been honorably discharged from such service, if otherwise qualified to vote, shall be disqualified therefor on account of being a pauper; or, if a pauper, because of the non-payment of a poll tax." This amendment was superseded by amendment thirty-one, which was ratified by the people Nov. 4, 1890. The new amendment is the same except that the word "pauper" is eliminated and in its place is the following: "receiving or having received aid from any city or town."

The provision of the third amendment of the constitution, requiring the payment of a tax, as a qualification for voting, was annulled by amendment thirty-two, which was ratified by the people Nov. 3, 1891. The assessment is still necessary, however.

Because of the change in reference to coverture of married women, enlarging their rights and making them more independent of their husbands, and the demand for the right of suffrage, the legislature of Massachusetts, in 1879, passed an act granting to women the right to vote for school committee.* It provided that "Every woman who is a citizen of this commonwealth, of twenty-one years of age and upwards, and has the educational qualifications required by the twentieth article of the amendments to the constitution, excepting paupers and persons under guardianship, who shall have resided within this commonwealth

*For national, state, district and county officers a voter, who is otherwise qualified, may vote for six months in the place of his former residence after he has removed to another place within the state. Acts of 1891, chapter 286, §1.

†This repealed the act passed Feb. 20, 1782, previously mentioned.

Acts of 1881, chapter 191, section 1, added that such woman's tax may be paid by her trustee and that it may also be a city or town tax, and that it may be assessed upon her trustee. Section 2 of the last-mentioned act fixes the poll tax of women at a sum not exceeding fifty cents, and section three provides that they must be registered on a list of voters separate from the list of male voters.

HAVERHILL INSCRIPTIONS.

WALNUT CEMETERY.

Walnut cemetery, in the East parish of Haverhill, where repose so many of the early inhabitants who were closely identified with its settlement, is a beautiful spot on the so called middle road, not far from Whittier's birthplace and the old Congregational church.

The history of this old burying ground dates back one hundred and sixty years, and in the quiet enclosure generations sleep their long last sleep, and families who were neighbors in life dwell side by side in peaceful harmony in the quiet spot so dear to them.

Chase's History of Haverhill gives the date of 1748 as the year in which the yard was laid out, and this is doubtless authentic, for an examination of the old parish book reveals the following entry:

"March 29 1747-8 at the Leagul town meeting of East Parish, it was voted to see if Parrish will chuse a committee to find out and Procure a burying place for sd Parrish."

At the same meeting, Jacob Chase, Nathaniel Peaslee, and Jonathan Marsh were chosen for the above committee.

At the town meeting held in the parish November 7, 1748, the committee chosen on the preceding March reported "that considering the hardness of digging in other places, the most suitable and convenient place is by the Country road, between Jonathan Marsh's barn, and a place called Gravel Shoot, where ye highway that leads from the G. Pond, joyns ye Country Road."

As Jonathan Marsh resided on what is now the old Nichols homestead, the location of the yard is clearly defined.

Tradition has handed down the statement that the original yard was given by a Peaslee, and it is possible the above mentioned Nathaniel Peaslee was the donor.

In this plot, scarcely half an acre in size, members of the parish could bury at will, each one being allowed to determine the locality.

The oldest stone in the burying ground, now moss covered and almost illegible, is that of Moses Grele, dated in 1750.

Tradition states that more than a century ago many East Parish residents became victims to the dreaded small pox, and were laid to rest in this old burying ground, thus stopping interments there for years.

From time to time the yard has been enlarged, and in 1896 its size was materially increased by the laying out of nearly an acre of land, entitled Walnut annex.*

The following are all the inscriptions now to be found in this burial ground bearing dates prior to 1800.

REV. JOHN MURRAY.

Rowley, 24th August, 1769.

Mr. Hall,

Your this week's Gazette gives us from Newbury-Port, an advertisement of Mr. Murray's preaching to vast numbers of people, for ten days together; and then going out of town with parade. Please to publish what here follows, and you will oblige, at least, one of your Customers.

The Newbury Port intelligence will lead strangers to think, that the ministers in this neighbourhood pay Mr. Murray all that regard, which is due to a minister of the gospel, of the first abilities, and the most unblemished character:

That they set aside the censure of a presbytery, and of a Synod in Ireland, and again of a presbytery in America, that he is under, and the faithful notice given of this, by Boston ministers, as not worth regarding: And that they accept Mr. Murray's own testimony in opposition to these ecclesiastic bodies, as his full discharge from the Crime. I am sorry that I must allow, six ministers in the county have opened to him, while he stands condemned, by his proper judges; and we not able to say,—the judgment is not just. The conduct of four of those ministers towards Itinerants has been such, that none will wonder at their receiving him. The other two are men of prudence: One of them yielded to his people: so that they, rather than he, opened: The other of these two gentlemen had not full information on one side, and misinformation on the other, respecting Mr. Murray. The numbers that flocked to hear him, doubtless, were great; but, I suppose, exaggerated, especially that at Mr. Leslie's parish, where the meeting-house is so small, that half of the lowest number fixed upon, would, I guess, crowd it full. But had there been double the numbers to follow this gentleman, I believe it would not amount to an evidence of love to Christ, to his gospel, or to his ministers; nor would it prove that Mr. Murray is a gentlemen of good morals. To what good end then it serves to publish it, I am at a loss.

Mr. Hall,

Please to insert the following piece in your next, and you'll oblige not a few of your Customers.

In a paper of last week the public were favoured with a very pompous account of one Mr. John Murray, who for some time hath been abundant in labours at Newbury-Port, and a few other places. This account, like others of the fame fort, and published for like ends, appears to be partly true, partly false, and partly doubtful; and in some other respects, defective.
That he left Newbury-Port August 8, as the account says, and went to Haverhill, intending from thence to Boston, &c. may be true; but that he was accompanied to Haverhill by a number of gentlemen is thought to be doubtful, the truth hereof depending very much on the definition of a gentleman’s character, for, besides the Rev’d. Mr. Parsons of Newbury-Port, I have been particularly informed only of one Mr. M——n, who keeps a public house at Lynn, as attending him; tho’ ’tis not improbable there might be others of less note, and so not particularly mentioned, to make up the usual rout on such occasions. That he “preached every day for ten days,” as declared, may be true; but that he “preached to vast numbers of people, from five to ten thousand at a time,” as asserted, is supposed to be false, it being much questioned whether, at any one time, he had even five thousand to hear him:—Nor does his preaching in the open field, at Mr. Leilie’s, at all prove what is asserted, as Mr. Leilie’s is a small meeting-house, designed to accommodate a very small parish: And this part of the account would, I apprehend, have appeared more perfect, if the places where he preached had been particularly mentioned; which so far as I can learn, were Portsmouth, at the Rev. Dr. Langdon’s, Rev. Mr. Haven’s, and Mr. Drown’s. Newbury-Port, at the Rev. Messrs. Parson’s and Marsh’s: Newbury, Hale’s: Linebrook, Leilie’s, and Chebacco, Cleaveland’s.

The account says, “A considerable number of the clergy attended his preaching,”—I know not who attended at other places, but, on enquiry, can hear of none but the following gentlemen, among his hearers at Newbury-Port, whose names, I think, should have been published, for the honor of Mr. Murray, viz. Rev. Messrs. Parsons and Marsh, of Newbury-Port: Hale and Noble, of Newbury: Hibbert of Amefbury: Noyes, of South-Hampton; and Perley, of Hampton-Falls.

’Tis added, “And perhaps no one was ever more universally approved of in this country.”—This I conceive, must be understood only of his hearers, who are but a very small part of the country; and only, I would presume, with respect to his preaching, abstracted from his moral character. It is said farther, “prejudice, bigotry, and uncharitableness, seemed to be wholly laid aside.” Whether this is meant of Mr. Murray, or his admirers, I am uncertain, but shall be glad if it proves true, of both, or either of them. This pompous account concludes in the following manner. “As to any reports being propagated, that this gentleman forces himself into other men’s labours, it is far otherwise; he rather has a happy talent, at healing, than making divisions.”—I do not think Mr. Murray has entered the pulpit of any minister by force and arms, but ’tis supposed he, or his friends, have really forced him into some, if his being introduced against the free choice of the minister of the place, may be looked upon in that light.

And whatever his talent is, at making or healing divisions, it is well known, his preaching in the manner he has done, has already occasioned much uneasiness and disorder. In some places where the minister has invited him, either freely, or thro’ constraint, some of his people have been highly offended thereat. Other ministers, who, on account of his suspicious character, have refused him, against the importunate clamours of some of their people, have been blamed therefor, and large numbers of their stated assemblies, have left their own meetings, and gone out of town to hear him, travelling many miles on the Lord’s day, to the breach of order, and the offence and grief of their neighbours.

Whether his conduct, productive of such things as these, tends rather to heal than to make divisions, every one must judge; and many perhaps, will be at no loss in a short time. I really think, it would be more for the interest of true ramble thro' the country, in order to preach and be applauded, wherever he, or his admirers, can get admittance for him.

ANCIENT PEARL HOUSE.

Cornelius Browne of Reading, a farmer, for seventy pounds, purchased of Joseph Dowding of Boston, merchant, a tract of two hundred acres of land in Boxford Sept. 10, 1703. Upon this lot Mr. Browne built the house known as the old Pearl house, probably in the following spring, as he took up his residence here at that time. His wife Susanna died in 1734, at the age of seventy-four; and, March 3, 1737-8, Mr. Browne sold one hundred and forty acres of the land and the eastern half of the house to Richard Pearl, a housewright, of Bradford. Mr. Pearl subsequently became possessed of the remainder of the house and land adjoining.

About the time of his purchase of the estate, Mr. Pearl built in the rear of the house the first grist mill in that parish.

Mr. Pearl died Dec. 20, 1793, at the age of ninety-one; and his son John Pearl succeeded him upon the farm.

John Pearl died Dec. 19, 1825, at the age of eighty-seven; and his son John Pearl then owned and occupied the house.

John Pearl, jr., died here, in old age; and he was succeeded on the farm by his son George Pearl. When the old meeting house in that parish, which was erected in 1774, was taken down in 1843, Mr. Pearl purchased the two-story porch, and annexed it to the east end of his house (at the left in the engraving of the house). This still retains the door and window. Mr. Pearl was a prominent man, representing the town in the legislature in 1857, the last under the town district system. He died in 1878, at the age of eighty, and his widow survived him several years. Several of his daughters remained upon the homestead; Ruth, wife of James H. Webster, and her family being the present owners and occupants.

The view of the house presented in the frontispiece is that of its back side. The house was built to face the south, which was generally the case when houses were erected before roads were established, and it fronts upon a field. The highway was laid out at the rear of the house, and that side of the house practically became its front. It is apparent that the house was constructed at two periods. The rooms are large and the ceiling low. It is a specimen of early New England architecture worth visiting.

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

The portion of Salem included in the map shown on page 176 is that known as Castle Hill neck. The plan is based on the ancient deeds, but the result of the investigation of this neck is not as satisfactory as the other sections have been on account of the absence of many deeds and the fact that Hon. Benjamin Lynde purchased the entire tract about 1730, and obliterated the division lines. However, the map is substantially accurate, and is drawn on a scale of six hundred feet to an inch.

The stream of water to the north of Castle hill became a mill pond upon the building of the mill in 1664, and ever since that date has been so called. In 1709, it was called the South river mill pond. The branch on the eastern side was called mill creek in 1695, and mill creek pond in 1698. The branch on the western side was called ye river in 1672.

Castle hill was so called as early as 1636.

There were apparently no houses standing upon this section of Salem in 1700.

John Turner Lot. This lot was granted to Elias Stileman of Salem before 1636; and, for fifty-two pounds, he conveyed it to James Smith of Marblehead Dec. 13, 1652.* Mr. Smith built a house and barn upon the lot, and conveyed the estate to his only son, James Smith, then residing at Bristol, in England, June 13, 1656.† Samuel Cutler then lived in the house. The son apparently came to America, as James Smith of Marblehead, mariner, for fifty pounds, conveyed the lot, the buildings probably being gone, to John Turner of Salem, mariner, May 11, 1672.‡ The lot belonged to John Turner in 1700.

Erasmus James and Mary James Lots. These lots were laid out to Richard Rowland July 23, 1667; and at that time it was agreed that a highway of one and one-half rods wide should be laid out, from the meadow of Mr. Rowland that he had of Mr. Gott, over land of Capt. James Smith, "& is to ly along under ye hill by the barne, to ye land of Mr. Rowland & from thence to go so far as the dwelling house, one half on said Richard Rowland's and one half on sd James Smith's land, till it come over the land of ye sd Smith, by the house to the bridge, wch bridge is to be maintained by said Rowland and Smith proportionable to their land on Castle hill."* Mr. Rowland lived in Marblehead, being a husbandman; and died in 1685, having devised his land at Castle hill to his son Richard Rowland and daughter Mary wife of Erasmus James. Subsequently, William Charles died possessed of an undivided half of it, having devised his interest to his grandchildren, James Dennis, jr., Amos Dennis, and Agnes, wife of Thomas Trefry, all of Marblehead. These grandchildren conveyed their in-

Buffum of Salem, yeoman, June 27, 1698; and Mr. Reed's eldest son and heir, Samuel Reed of Marblehead, released the interest to Mr. Buffum on the same day.

Mr. Robinson and Mr. Buffum owned the lot together in 1700.

ently belonged to Edward Flint in 1700.
He owned a part of it and probably the

THE OLD SPINET.

By James Buckham.

It is slim and trim and spare,
Like the slender Lady Claire
In the gowns they used to wear,
Long ago;
And it stands there in the gloom
Of the gabled attic room,
Like a ghost whose vacant tomb
None may know.

I can see the lady's hands
White as lilies, as she stands
Strumming fragments of Durand's
On the keys;
And I hear the thin, sweet strain
Of the Plymouth hymns again,
Like the sob of windless rain
In the trees.

She would play the minuet
For the stately-stepping set,
While the ardent dancers met,
Hands and hearts;
Did the old-time spinet care
If Dan Cupid unaware Pricked the breasts of brave and fair
With his darts?

Now the spiders with their floss
Up and down the keyboard cross,
And the strings are dull as dross,
Once so bright;
No one cares to touch the keys—
Stained old yellow ivories—
Save the ghosts some dreamer sees
In the night.

Boston, Sept. 11.

"The following Instance, among many others, may serve to shew, the great Detestation in which the infamous importers are held in by all Ranks of People. ——-
The Widow Atkins of Newbury-Port had a Chest of Tea shipped on board the Sloop Woodbridge, David Stickney, Master, bound to that Place; a few Days after the Captain discovered it was purchased of Messrs. Hutchinsfons, and nobly disdaining to be in any Ways instrumental in promoting such a Scandalous Commerce, immediately sent it on Shore to the Shipper; it still remains in a Shop in this Town, and, we are informed no Coaster can be prevailed with to transport it.

"Last Friday Noon came on a very violent N. E. Storm, attended with Rain, which lasted till next Morning; and it is said several Vessels are drove ashore at different Parts in our Bay, but as yet we have no particulars."

"S A L E M, September 12, "

"Last Thursday died, in the 54th Year of his Age, Mr. Edward Norice, of this Town, Postmaster.—His Remains were decently interred last Saturday."

Precinct of Salem and Beverly, Sept. 3, 1769.

On Tuesday the 5th Instant, forty-one young Women of this Place, moved perhaps by the many late Examples of others, who have in a similar Way testified their high Esteem of their Pastors, for their Work's Sake, viz. by seeking Wool and Flax, and working willingly for them with their Hands,—having provided themselves with these Materials, met early in the Morning at the House of the Reverend Mr. Chipman, and in the Evening presented him with seventy Run of well-wrought Yarn.—A Run is a Skein of twenty Knots; the number of Knots in the whole being 1396. Mr. Chipman had no Knowledge of this Work and Labour of Love, till the Day was appointed and near at Hand; but although he desired not the Gift, yet he always rejoices to see Fruit abounding to their Account; and the repeated Kindnesses of his People to him, in his advanced Age, as well as their living in the Exercise of social Virtues each toward the other, excited his Gratitude.

"N. B. The young Gentlewomen were not moved in the least by political Principles in the Affair above, yet they are cordial Lovers of Liberty, particularly of the Liberty of drinking Tea with their Bread and Butter, to which their Pastor conveys."

Miles Ward advertised for sale at his store near his dwelling house best Philadelphia stone lime, sole "leaver," neats leather, calves skins, bran by the hogshead or smaller quantity, and rice.

William Pool advertised for sale, a little below the Bell tavern, in Danvers, "Gloves of our own Manufacture, done in the neatest Manner, such as are generally made use of for Funerals by such Persons as are esteemed Friends to America;" also breeches leather, buck-skin breeches ready made; also moose-skin breeches, for which good cord wood will be taken as pay.

Of Marblehead.

Hereby informs the Public that he has lately opened a House of Public Entertainment, at the Sign of the Green Dragon, near the Wharf of the Hon. Robert Hooper, Esq; where all Gentlemen, Strangers and others, may depend upon meeting with good Attendance and Entertainment.

Marblehead, Sept. 11, 1769.

Samuel Fisk, clerk, advertised to be let to a small family the south end of the dwelling house wherein he lives, consisting of one large lower room, with a large closet, chamber over the same, with a light closet, and a garret over the whole, cellar, garden and well; or the whole house and land.
