IPSWICH INSCRIPTIONS.
ANCIENT BURYING GROUND.

The original part of this burial place was instituted when the town was laid out in 1634. It was enlarged by the purchase, for thirty pounds, from Shoreborne Willson of Ipswich, cooper, of three-eighths of an acre of land, being a part of his house lot, May 8, 1707.* This addition was four rods wide on the street. The second addition was made by the purchase of a part of a house and three acres of land, for seventy pounds, of Jeremiah Day of Ipswich, yeoman, Jan. 26, 1795.† This included land on the west and rear sides of the original burying ground. Other and large additions were made subsequently. The following are all the inscriptions to be found there bearing dates prior to 1800.

Of COLO, ISAAC DODGE, who was Born March 9th 1733, died June 27th 1785,
And of Mrs ELISABETH his Wife, who Was born March 10th 1730; & died Sept 22d 1785,
In the 56th year of her age.
His mind was open, ardent and enterprising:
He was a kind husband, a tender indulgent father:
In his house he was liberal & hospitable:
Faithful to his trust, upright in his intentions,
In his operations
Active, persevering and extensive;
By which he afforded
Employment and subsistence
To the industrious and the indigent;
Contributed to the benefit of the publick,
And merited the Character of a Useful and valuable member of society—
His Wife was moral,
Thoughtful, and, so far as her slender health would permit,
Attentive to the benefit & happiness of her Family.
Deeply affected by the death of her husband,
And the increasing infirmities of her feeble constitution,
She languid & three months after him,
Expir'd.
Short was their repARATION; soon rejoin'd
In the dark grave, to native dust consign'd,
They sleep, till death his human prey restore,
And earth & skies & time shall be no more.

In Memory
of Mrs. Rebecca Dodge, Virtuous consort
of Mr. William Dodge, who departed this Life Octr 15th 1794, in the 85th year of her age.
She was a kind wife and tender mother.
Blest are the dead which die in the Lord, for theirs is the Kingdom of Heaven.

In Memory
of MR. WILLIAM DODGE Merchant,
who died April 11th
A. D. 1777, in the 72d year of his age.
He was a kind Husband,
and a tender Father.

FRESH in the morn the summer’s rose
Hangs withering ere its noon:
We scarce enjoy the balmy gift,
But mourn the pleasure gone,
How short’s the date of human things,
How transient are their joys!
The flower that in the morning springs
The evening blast destroys.

This humble stone, but tells in numbers
Here lies the ashes of the fair & good.

Salem Court Records and Files.

Court, 30:9:1658.

Present: Worshipful Mr. Simond Brod-street, Mr. Symonds, Danyell Denyson, major-general, and Major Hathorne, associate.

Mr. Simond Bradstreet v. Mr. Anthony Stoddard. Debt, to be paid in England.

Hezekiah Usher testified that he sold goods to Anthony Stodder and others on adventure, etc. Dated at Boston, 29:9:1658.

William Payne of Boston deposed that about October, 1657, “my cosin Anthony Stoddard” asked if I purposed to send my ketch for England. I told him that I did; whereupon he entreated me to let him two tons freight in her, whereof Mr. Stephen Talby was master; and withall he told me it was for Mr. Symon Brod-street. Sworn before Mr. Richard Parker, commissioner, 26:9:1658.

Thomas Broughton, aged forty-four, deposed that in the year 1657, about the time of Captain Garrat’s and Captain Peirce’s ships sailed for England, and while at anchor in Boston harbor, Anthony Stoddard desired of me a parcel of sugar shipped on the ketch Adventure for adventure of Simon Brodstreet for London, said sugars by bills of exchange to pay sixty pounds for account of Brad-street. Invoice dated Dec. 17, 1657, and consigned to Mr. Peter Cole of Leadenhall street, London, merchant, whom Broughton called his “cosen.” Being advised that said money was to be paid to Mr. Hezekiah Usher or Mr. John Harwood for the account of Mr. Brad-street, I drew at the order of Mr. Stoddard four bills of exchange dated Dec. 17. Sworn before Nath Dunca n, 24:9:1658.

Invoice, £82, 12s. rd. Copy sent by ketch Rebecca, Christopher Clarke, master, the original being sent by Mr. Talby.

[Writ: William Cortes, blacksmith, v. John Williams of Salem, cooper; for withholding some land bought of him, said Williams, and refusing to give possession; to be returned 13:9:1658; Salem court, by Hillyard Veren.—Files.]

George Gardener assigned time of his servant Baldwin House to John Sothwick. Allowed.

Joa Marstone v. Capt. Tho: Clarke. Case, for freight of six pipes of wine, containing three tuns, from Barbadooes to Boston.

Mr. John Ruck v. Timothy Prout. Case; adventure to Newfoundland. [Writ: for three hundred and ninety pounds of sugar which was adventured by him to Newfoundland for Ruck in 1654; dated 8: 8: 1658; served by Richard Wayte, marshal for Suffolk. Bond of Timothy Prout.*

Mr. John Ruck v. Agustine Lyndon. Case; about ye ship Lords Increase, afterward called ye Recovery, belonging to said Ruck.

Ipswich court, Sept. 28, 1658, Jonathan Wade v. John Fuller, for testifying upon oath what was not true, admonished, and court abated ten shillings of his fine. This copy of Ipswich court record made 29 (9), 1558.

Daniell Epps deposed that he was present at Ipswich court when goodman Fuller testified against Mr. Wade about a yard of linen cloth (same as in previous case).

Testimony of William Averell in regard to measure of John Fullar's grindstone.

Robert Lord testified that last September, when court was sitting at Ipswich, Mr. Wade came to him several times and manifested himself troubled at John Fuller for his testimony about the cloth.

Deposition of Edward Browne, Richard Brabrooke and Robert Lord (same as before), also Thomas Clarke testified same concerning John Fuller's oath, except the grindstones, 9 br. 29: 1658. Sworn before Daniel Denison.—Files.

Jo Killum chosen and sworn constable of Wenham.

Tho: Pittman chosen and sworn constable of Marblehead.

Samuel Bennett of Rumney Marsh promised to pay to Henry Webb of Boston fifty pounds, one-half in bar iron and one-half in iron polls at price current, if it shall appear that said Bennet is indebted to Mr. John Becks & Co. of undertakers for the iron works in Lynn, Oct. 20, 1658. Signed by Samuell Benet, Samuell Archard and John Hathorne. Witness: Thomas Bligh.

Account of iron weighed for Samuel Bennet according to arbitrators in Captain Hutchinson's warehouse, Sept. 2, 1657. Signed by Henry Webb.*

Assignee's bond, dated Salem, July 2. 1657; witnessed by Oliver Purchis and William Browne. Edward Mitchell, jr., and Mr. Wiswall of Dorchester added to list of arbitrators.

Wm. Hathorne, aged about fifty-one, deposed that in the last general court, Benet, Archer and Hathorne came to Boston to demand fifty pounds of Mr. Webb, according to arbitration, and when they could not obtain it they came to me, desiring me to speak with Mr. Hutchinson about it. Sworn at Salem court, 2: 19: 1658.

Edmund Batter, aged about fifty, heard Mr. Henry Webb, 2: 7: 1657, tender Bennet and others the iron, and if Mr. Webb would be pleased to get it weighed they would trust him for the weighing of it. Sworn in Salem court, 2:10:1658.

Richard Cook, aged about forty-eight, deposed that he heard Mr. Samuel Archer acknowledge that he refused to sign the bond tendered to him by Mr. Webb or any other security, as expressed by Captain Hutchinson and Samuell Archer, etc. They heard that there were forty pounds due from the company to Bennet by an account of Major Hawthorne and Captain Marshall. Sworn at Salem court 2:10:1658.

Edward Hutchinson deposed that he was at Mr. Webb's house when John Hathorne and Sam Benet and Samuel Archer were there, and they demanded of Webb the iron that was to be paid upon arbitration. Mr. Webb answered either in these words or to this effect, that he heard there had been an arbitration made between Mr. Geffards and Saml Benet, and if he might see that there was due which he was liable to pay he would pay it, otherwise thought there was no reason for him now to pay it after the accounts were made up. Sworn 2:10:1658.

Thomas Bligh, aged about thirty-one, deposed as to witnessing bond. Sworn 27:9:1658, before John Endecott, gov.

Elisha Hutchinson, aged about seventeen, deposed that he weighed the iron, Sept. 2, 1657, for Samuel Benet's account which was for Mr. Henry Webb, and Samuel Robinson and John Marshall assisted him, and the iron was laid aside in my father's warehouse for Mr. Bennet. Sworn 29:9:1658, before Nathaniel Dun-Can, commissioner.

Thomas Clarke deposed that "I being at Goodman Cowdree house at Reading when Joseph Cooke came for warrant, I told Mr. Cook this colt was non of his. said Cooke to me, there is a colt I know in the woods would put an end to this business which I believe said he is Hartts colt. I told Cook again If it had bin my case as it was his I would a gott up the colt whatever it cost me." Sworn 2:10:1658.

John Hauks bill of costs, £4, 15s., 4d.

Thomas Hutchinson deposed that my father-in-law Adam Hakes gave his son John Hakes a colt & he put it to Isaacke Hartes to keep. Sworn at Ipswich court March 30, 1658. Copy.

Adam Hakes, aged about fifty, deposed that a man may swear a colt to be the same colt after it is gone out of his sight any time, so far I can swear this colt to be the colt I gave my son John Hakes for it hath a black list down the back; so had that. It hath a piece cut out of the left ear; so had that. It hath a scar in the right ear which to me shows the hole which was made with a small sharp iron before it went up to Isaac Hart's. I asked Joseph Cooke who marked his colt in the ear, and he said, "I cut a piece in his ear, but not quite off." Sworn 30 (I) 1658. Copy.

Elizabeth Hart, aged about thirty-five, deposed that she had known the colt since it was a fortnight old, and since I have known it by the marks, and, this colt being lost, my husband went out to find, expecting to be out three days, but he came within two or three hours, and left at our house, and I knew before he told me it was the colt. Sworn r:26:1657-8, before Edward Johnson, commissioner of Woburn. Copy.

Samuel Hutchinson deposed that he cut a piece out of the colt's left ear when it was eight months old, and was put to Isaac Hart. About a year after Isaac Hart brought a young mare to the farm where I was and asked me if this was the colt I marked. I told him it was; and about the next spring, being at Reading, I heard Mr. Cooke had attached John Hauks colt, and looked and saw it was the same colt I marked for John Hawks. Sworn 2: 10: 1658.

Isaac Harte, aged about forty, deposed that it was the same colt. Sworn 29: 1: 1658, before Edward Johnson, commissioner of Woburn. Copy.

Francis Hutchinson deposed that he saw Isaac Hart and Samuel Hutchinson mark John Hawkes colt, and it was the same colt. Sworn 29: 1: 1658, before Edward Johnson, commissioner of Woburn. Copy.

Samuel Hutchinson, aged about forty, testified that he helped mark the colt. Sworn 23: 7: 1658, before Thomas Marshall, commissioner.

Gregory Stone of Cambridge, aged about sixty-seven, deposed that November last I had a black mare colt in our pound, and Joseph Cooke of Cambridge claimed it, and it had no mark; but to same day it had a slit given it on the top of one ear and a shred on the middle of the ear cut off, and the pound keeper told me Mr. Cook did it, and I fetched away the colt. Cooke followed me to my house and told me he made it. Sworn 18: 7: 1658, before Richard Russell, commissioner of Charlestown; Copy.

Thomas Clark deposed when Joseph Cook brought the colt from Reading to Cambridge, etc. Sworn 2: 10: 1658.

Mathew Edwards, aged twenty-five, deposed that he had often seen the colt sometimes four days in the week, and in my conscience this is the colt. Sworn 30 (1) 1658. Copy.

Adam Hauks and Samuel Hutchinson deposed that Mr. Epps of Ipswich, being attorney for Joseph Cooke at the Ipswich court, said after the trial, "I would wish my cousin Cooke not to meddle any more about this colt, for I believe this is not my cousin Cooke's colt, for he did not mark with such an ear mark, but with a slit on the ear." Sworn 2: 10: 1658.

Edward Collins deposed that he sold the colt about one and a half years ago, with dam, to Cooke, and when it strayed away he sent for him and his servant to testify if it was the same colt, and deposed that it was. Sworn at Salem 2: 10: 1658.

Elizabeth Hutt deposed that a while after Joseph Cooke brought this colt back from Cambridge, I hear Cooke say that if your brother had come instead of your father, he that could show best proof should have the colt; nay, said Cook, rather than have it go to court I would have drawn lots for it. Sworn in Salem court, 2: 10: 1658.

Zacheus Cortes v. Mr. Will Bartholomew. Case, to getting plaintiff to come from Redding and drawing him to Gloucester. [Writ: Zacheus Cortes, late of Reading, v. Wm. Bartholomew of Gloucester; dated Nov. 4, 1658; for getting plaintiff to go from Reading, where he was settled, to Gloucester, and non-performance of agreement, to his utter undoing and exposing himself and family to great straights; served by Wm. Vincent, constable of Gloucester, Nov. 6, 1658.

Wm. Bartholomew of Ipswich requests the court to make his friend Edmund Batter of Salem his attorney, he not being able to attend court, and his wife being near confinement.

The following letter is on file:—
Goodman Curtes I did expect you at Cape Ann the last week But I heard nothing of you. I wish you had sent word or left word with Mr. Batter if you intend not to come. I am to send purpose to desire you to send an answer what your mind is, if you be of the same mind as when we parted I pray you send your answer p'th this bearer and when you can come to C. Ann: I shall be here god willing all the latter part of y^e week but y^e next week at Ipswich. I heard of a young man that came to Ipswich to have gone to C Ann as by y^e persuasion but he came not to C Ann. if he be a man that can do carpenter work or handle an axe he shall be employed if he pleast to as good purpose for himselfe as anywhere else so desiring your answer

24: 7: 58
from Salem your friend
William Bartholomew

The plaintiff's declaration was as follows:

I being settled at Reding upon some land of John Goulds having six years to continue thereon, where I might have provided for family. Mr. Wm Bartholomew being directed by Mr Batter to me to go to Gloucester I promised to go to Gloucester to see the business & agree if I liked it. About the middle of Aug. last the second day of the week, went & waiting Mr. Bartholomews coming home, agreed to go. The expense of moving being 42s in English corne to bring his goods to Salem & waiting there a fortnight with my famaly for the boat & 2 bushel corne it cost for store house room for goods, the loss of a swine at my hasty coming away from Reding & a sow with pig at Salem, damaged corne to some extent, & was forced to live in a wet & cold house. Mr. Bartholomew no employing him, & winter approaching, the is put to great straits.

Mr. Bartholomew's answer to Mr. Curtis' declaration was as follows:—

whereas he speaks of his being so well settled at Reding we answer the defendt did nothing to force him to remove but was voluntary in it, 2ly it concerned him first to consider how he should have bettered himself before he removed what great estate he had there we know not but so far as it appears to us it did not exceed the paymt of his rent

whereas he saith he came to Gloucesther the middle of August & liked the acomodations and came near to a close the differance there not being considerable whither the difference were so small or not let these things be considered first noe tyme spoken of when he should enter upon it. 2ly no agreement about the haye & straw. 3ly no agreement about repayre of houses and fences. 4ly about the maner of his working or how he should pay his rent nothing spoken unto nor how the cattell should be ordered 5ly nothing spoken unto who should pay rates & beare common charges with diverse other considerations not to have been omitted.

Duly this much was fully agreed on both pts that the sayd Zacheous should come a fortnight upon tryall wCh is proved in court upon oath his failing therein hath been the occasion of all the trouble that hath followed and wch is mentioned in his declaration to be referred to me was never performed but instead thereof a vexatious suit commenced pretending great damages & attaching the defendant in £100 action; while defendant was busily imployed to acomodate the pltife for his coming thither.

Wm Bartholomew

Bernard Thorne, aged about twenty-four, servant to Wm. Bartholomew, deposed that his master said he feared Curtis was too weak to manage the house and lands at Cape Ann. Sworn 27: 9: 1658, before Daniel Denison.

John Newmach of Ipswich testified that Wm. Bartholomew agreed with him for his bark about beginning of October last to fetch his goods from Cape Ann. Thomas Harris also testified to same.

John Fitch testified that Curtis did not come when he agreed. Sworn as above.
Rowland Powell of Gloucester testified that he saw Curtis at Bartholomew's house, speaking with Bartholomew's wife about going to Gloucester & seemed to be much troubled about the moving. His family were then at Salem. Sworn 10:10:1658, before Daniel Denison.

Walter Price, aged forty-five, deposed that, being at Mr. Gedney's house one month past and desired by Bartholomew to have some agitation betwixt him and Edmund Batter, said that he disliked to find fault, but Curtis was not fit for his employment and was a sickly person, and that the town would not receive him unless Bartholomew would discharge the town, and Curtis' wife was froward woman. He would not employ him unless upon day labor. Bartholomew said that he wondered that Mr. Batter would commend such a man to him. Sworn 10:10:1658.

Hillyard Veren, aged about thirty-seven, was at Mr. Batter's house one evening when Zacheus Cortes came in, he said, from Gloucester with a letter directed to Mr. Batter from Mr. Bartholomew, mentioning terms of agreement, the house, land and team for seventeen pounds per year, the hay and tackling to be paid for by Cortes. Sworn at Salem court 2:10:1658, before Daniel Denison.

Mordecay Hunton, aged about seventeen, servant of Wm. Bartholomew, deposed that Curtis on his second coming had said he had had but words with Mrs. Bartholomew, and he thought he should not come at all. Sworn 27:9:1658, before Daniel Denison.

Thomas Whitredge testified to hearing Curtis talking at Bartholomew's house in Gloucester. Sworn in Salem court 2:10:1658.

Thomas Rigg testified that Curtis did not come according to his promise. Sworn in court.

Sarah Batter, aged about forty-eight, testified that Bartholomew, coming to the house of her husband, asked if Curtis were coming, and she made answer that he was not. Mr. Bartholomew answered, You should have hired a messenger, and desired that one might be sent. Deponent's husband got a messenger, and the next morning John Oliver and this deponent's husband sent him to Mr. Hen: Bartholomew's house, where Wm. Bartholomew lodged when Mr. Bartholomew was at our house. Sworn 3:10:1658, before Wm. Hathorne.

Edmund Batter, aged about fifty, deposed that coming from Boston in company with Wm. Bartholomew, he desired me to tell him of a man to manage his farm and draw logs to his saw-mill at Gloucester. I sent him to Zacheus Cortes of Reading, who was at Thomas Antrum's farm at work.

Tho: Hale fined for absence from trial jury, and fine remitted.

Joa Smale, wife of Henry Traske, Danyell Sothwick, wife of Anthony Needham and Thomas Brackitt fined for absence from meeting.

1:10 mo: 1658.

SALEM IN 1700. NO. 34.
BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

The map on page 36 represents that part of Salem lying to the south of the State Normal school building. It is based on actual surveys and title deeds, and is drawn on a scale of six hundred feet to an inch. The line with the dashes across it shows where the Marblehead branch of the Boston & Maine Railroad now runs. The dotted lines show where the road to Marblehead was laid out in 1737, an account of which was given in a former article. It is now a part of Lafayette street.

Loring avenue was the old way to Marblehead, having been laid out in 1666, as described in a former article. Its location is marked on the map, “Highway to Marblehead.” It was called the highway as it goes toward Marblehead in 1676; highway to Marblehead, 1713; ye country road leading to Marblehead, 1719; ye road leading through South field to Marblehead, 1734; the old road so called to Marblehead, 1773; the road leading to Forest river bridge, so called, and Salem hospital, 1777; and Loring avenue since 1881.

The water on the east was called the salt water or Salem harbor in 1725; Forest river, 1734; ye harbor, 1737; and ye cove or river, 1791.

There were apparently no houses standing upon this section of Salem in 1700.

John Robinson Lot. This was a part of the original Elias Mason lot as early as 1666. George Cox, jr., of Salem, for twenty-three pounds, conveyed it to John Robinson, sr., of Salem, tailor, Jan. 4, 1692.* For forty pounds, Mr. Robinson conveyed it to William Ropes of Salem, ship carpenter, March 7, 1708-9.†

Mannasseh Marston Lot. This was a part of the original Elias Mason lot, and was owned next by Hilliard Veren, who conveyed it to William Ropes of Salem before 1672. Mr. Flint died the next year, having devised it to John Hathorne of Salem. It was then valued at two pounds. Mr. Hathorne was a merchant, and, for five pounds and ten shillings, conveyed it to Mannasseh Marston of Salem, blacksmith, May 27, 1678.‡ Mr. Marston owned it in 1700.

Edward Flint Lot. This lot was conveyed by Henry Cooke of Salem, butcher, for three pounds, to William Flint of Salem July 23, 1652.§ Mr. Flint died, possessed of the lot, in 1673, having devised it to his son Edward Flint, who owned it in 1700.

Estate of John Pickering Lot. That part of this lot lying south of the dashes belonged to Lt. John Pickering as early as 1678.

That part of the lot lying north of the dashes early belonged to Richard Waters of Salem, gunsmith, and Richard Adams of Salem. Mr. Waters, for six pounds, sold his half to John Talby of Salem, but no deed ever passed between them probably; and Mr. Waters conveyed it to

Walter Price of Salem, shopkeeper, to whom Mr. Talby had sold it, 25: 11: 1653.* Mr. Price, for six pounds and fifteen shillings, conveyed the same interest to Richard Adams, the owner of the other half interest, 19: 12: 1657.† This deed states that a part of this half was at one time the property of William King, sr. For fifty pounds, Mr. Adams conveyed the whole of this part of the lot to John Pickering of Salem, yeoman, who owned the other part, Nov. 16, 1670.‡ Mr. Pickering died in May, 1694, possessed of the entire lot, having devised it to his sons Benjamin and William. They held it undivided until 1701. Benjamin Pickering, who was a mariner, and lived in Salem, for fourteen pounds, four shillings and four pence, conveyed his half of the lot to Deliverance Parkman of Salem, merchant, May 21, 1696;§ and on the same day, for a similar consideration, Mr. Parkman reconveyed it to Benjamin.||

Jeremiah Neale and Lydia Hart Lot. This lot of swamp land was the property of John Neale, sr., of Salem, who died in 1672, possessed of it. In his will he devised it to his "son Jeremiah and his son's son, and to his sons John, Jonathan and Joseph and his daughter Lydia equally." It was then appraised at thirty pounds. John died possessed of his part 11: 9: 1679. Joseph lived in Salem, being a joiner, and conveyed his interest in the lot to his brother Jeremiah Neale of Salem Feb. 8, 1681-2.¶ Jeremiah Neale apparently purchased the interests of all the others except his sister Lydia, and they owned the lot together in 1700.

Alice Pickering Lot. This lot early belonged to Thomas James of Salem, husbandman, who conveyed it to William Flint of Salem July 23, 1652. Mr. Flint died in 1673, possessed of the lot, and his widow, Alice Flint, for love, conveyed it to her daughter Alice Pickering Aug. 22, 1696.* Mrs. Pickering owned it in 1700.

Nicholas Manning Lot. A part of this lot of upland was called very early "Friends lot"; and Elias Mason is said to have owned it in 1666. William Lord, sr., of Salem, for twenty-five pounds, conveyed the lot to Nicholas Manning of Salem, gunsmith, Feb. 20, 1667.† Captain Manning removed to Staten Island, N. Y., and, for thirty pounds, conveyed the lot to Jacob Manning of Salem, gunsmith, June 30, 1709.‡

John Ruck Lot. John Ruck owned this lot of ten acres as late as 1719.

John Browne Lot. This lot of marsh was early the property of William Lord. In 1700, it belonged to John Browne, esq., of Salem, merchant.

Benjamin Holmes Lot. This lot of marsh early belonged to William Lord; and to Benjamin Holmes of Salem, husbandman, in 1719.

Thomas Flint Lot. This half-acre of marsh belonged to Alexander Field of Salem, shoemaker, 14: 2: 1652, when he conveyed it to William Flint.|| Mr. Flint died, possessed of it, in 1673, having devised it to his son Thomas Flint. It was then valued at five pounds. Thomas Flint owned it in 1700.

Jonathan Archer Lot. This lot of marsh early belonged to William Lord; and to Jonathan Archer in 1733.

REV. JOHN CHIPMAN.

Rev. John Chipman was born in Barnstable, Mass., Feb. 16, 1690-1. His father was Dea. Samuel Chipman, proprietor of the tavern called by his name in that town, and his mother was Sarah, daughter of Elder Henry Cobb. He graduated at Harvard college in 1711; and subsequently preached the gospel to a gathering of people in Salem and Beverly near Wenham lake. A parish was organized and incorporated there in October, 1713, and a meeting-house was erected immediately after the incorporation of the parish. Dec. 28, 1715, a church, of which he was one of the original members, was instituted, and he was ordained to the ministry and installed as the pastor of the new church and society. The parish was called The Precinct of Salem and Beverly, and has always been known popularly as the North Beverly society and church.

The invitation to Mr. Chipman to settle as the pastor of the church was brought about by the attendance and vote of Mrs. Mary Woodberry, the vote being but a bare majority for him.

His annual salary was fixed at sixty pounds, with an annual increase after his marriage of five pounds for four years. He also received one hundred pounds as a settlement, and one acre of land absolutely and the "strangers' money."*

Mr. Chipman married, first, Rebecca, daughter of Rev. Robert Hale of Beverly Feb. 12, 1719; and she died July 4, 1751, at the age of forty-nine. He married, second, Hannah Warren Nov. 20, 1751; and she died June 24, 1769, at the age of sixty-two.

Mr. Chipman was a man five feet and eight inches in height; of fine personal dignity and grace. He had superior natural ability, both mental and physical, and was a student, theology being his principal subject of investigation. He was distinguished for his knowledge of the contents of the Bible; and it has been said that he was partial to the science of medical astrology.

In his pulpit exercises he was energetic, pungent and serious; and in the performance of the other functions of his office he was able, watchful, faithful, just and successful. He loved the gospel, and exemplified it in his life, especially socially and in benevolence. He manifested every Christian duty in his family, which was called, even in his lifetime, a school of useful knowledge and virtue. In times of adversity he had great patience, and when prosperity came he was glad, but not boastful.

He was not only a great blessing and influential in his own church and parish, but his influence was felt throughout New England, assisting frequently in ordinations and settlement of difficulties in other churches.

Age began to develop infirmities, and at his request Rev. Enos Hitchcock of Truro was installed as Mr. Chipman's associate in the ministry May 1, 1771. In the latter years of his life and ministry, the kindliness and esteem of his people were shown to him in many special ways; and in the firm hope of a happy immortality Mr. Chipman passed to his rest March 23, 1775, in the eighty-fifth year of his age and sixtieth of his ministry. His remains repose in the ancient and secluded North Beverly burying ground. On either side lies one of his wives. Slate slabs rise above their graves; and at the top of his stone is engraved in relief the half-length representation of a clergyman,

* A box was placed near the entrance to the meeting-house, into which strangers put contributions on the Sabbath. Usually such money was given to the minister in addition to his salary.—History of Beverly.
wearing gown and bands, the inscription being in Latin.*

Broad in his sympathies with men, he heartily embraced the good of all religious sects; and his life alone was a powerful restraint upon the vicious and an incentive to the virtuous. During his pastorate three hundred and eighty-four persons were added to the church, twenty-five of whom were admitted immediately after the great earthquake of 1727. He administered the rite of baptism to eight hundred and sixty-eight children and adults, married three hundred and three couples, and attended six hundred and thirty-one funerals. He performed the marriage ceremony of six clergymen, Rev. Pain Wingate of Amesbury, Rev. William Balch of Bradford, Rev. Joseph Champney of Beverly, Rev. John Warren of Wenham, Rev. Nehemiah Porter of Ipswich and Rev. Joseph Swain of Wenham.

Mr. Chipman published very little. In 1746, with Rev. Samuel Wigglesworth of Ipswich, he published a controversial pamphlet of forty-four pages, directed against Rev. William Balch of Bradford, who was accused of propagating Arminian tenets. He printed a thanksgiving sermon, and another on the close of the year.

Mr. Chipman had fifteen children, namely: Elizabeth, who married, first, Rev. John Warren of Wenham, and, second, Rev. Joseph Swain of Wenham; Sarah, who died in infancy; John, who was a leading lawyer of Marblehead and Falmouth (now in Maine); Sarah, who married John Leach, jr., of Salem; Samuel, a shipmaster, who lived in Ipswich and Salem; Rebecca, who married Rev. Nehemiah Porter of Chebacco parish, in Ipswich, Yarmouth, N. S., and Ashfield, Mass.; Robert, who died in childhood; Henry, who lived in Newburyport; Byley, who died in Boston at the age of eighteen; Robert Hale, who died at sea in his youth; Joseph, who lived in Salem and Beverly; Mary, who married Timothy Leach of Beverly; Hannah, who married Miles Ward, 3d, of Salem; Abigail, who married Capt. William Groves of Beverly; and Benjamin, who lived in Salem, being a sea captain. He educated his large family of children with great wisdom and prudence, and many prominent people who are his descendants cherish his memory.

The frontispiece of this number of The Essex Antiquarian has been engraved from the ancient portrait of Mr. Chipman.

UNTENANTED.

BY MATTIE WINFIELD TORREY.

It stands alone, in all its grimness there,
Withdrawn a space from off the village street;
Its halls are empty, and its walls are bare,
And from the broad, uncurtained window-seat
The garish day looks in with curious eyes,
That neither wink nor close till daylight dies.

The wind's loud wail, the sighing of the breeze,
The ceaseless patter of the autumn rain,
The winter's storm, which bows the leafless trees,
And drives its sleet against the window-pane,
Each in its turn; and o'er the bare, brown walls,
Sometimes the sunshine, sometimes shadow, falls.

But, ah! from out the mansion life is fled;
There are no sounds to break the silence here;
The quiet city of the pulseless dead
Is not more still, more desolate, more drear;
No sound, no motion, dust and stillness all;
And e'en the echoes shudder, break and fall.

How many times this threshold has been crossed
By bounding footsteps! Eager hearts have come,
Aweary of the strife, and tempest-tossed,
To the safe harbor of the early home,
And from its shadow, girded up anew,
Gone forth to fight life's battle bravely through.

And these old walls have looked on many a night
Of revelry and mirth; and music's note
Has roused pale echo from her slumbers light,
That fair, young forms within the dance might float;
Brave youth, and manly port, and maiden grace,
Bloom out once more within the olden place.

Mr. HALL, By inferting the following in your Paper, you will oblige some of your Marblehead Readers.

As giving Praife to Virtue, and doing Justice to Merit, may tend to excite a principle in the Mind, that shall be attended with beneficent Consequences; so when there is an Opportunity of f showing a Town the Loss it has sustained, by the Death of any young Person, who was remarkable for a good Behaviour, it ought to be embraced, for Reasons that are obvious to every confiderate Mind.—Mifs BETSEY STEVENS, who was interred here this Evening, and who is now a striking Instance of the Frailty of human Life, has exhibited a Pattern worthy of Imitation; for notwithstanding she left her Parents before she could be sensible of the Loss, she preferved in all her Actions a Decorum of Behaviour that right Reason approves, and a Fondness for Virtue that good Sense always dictates. It is allowed by her Acquaintance, that she had the Wisdom and Discretion of a Matron, joined with youthful Sweetness and virgin Modesty.—Wisdom is to be revered, wherever it may be found; for her Ways are Ways of Pleasantness, and all her Paths are Peace.

ANSWERS.

501. Henry, son of Eliphalet and Lydia (Adams) Jaques was born in Newbury March 18, 1738; and died there Jan. 13, 1792, at the age of "fifty-three years ten months and four days." His wife Hannah survived him, and died the same year. Henry Jaques' mother, Lydia Adams, was No. 88, on page 21, of volume II, of The Essex Antiquarian.—Ed.

502. Amos Follansbee was born in Newbury May 7, 1752, being son of Francis and Mary Follansbee. His wife Martha was probably a Newman, as they had a son Newman Follansbee. She died in Newburyport March 21, 1797, at the age of forty-one.—Ed.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

A Genealogical Quest. By Wm. G. Low. New York, 1908. In this pamphlet of twenty-one pages Mr. Low gives an account of his unsuccessful attempt to find evidence that Thomas Low of Ipswich was son of Capt. John Low, commander of the ship Ambrose of Winthrop's fleet in 1630.

Wyoming Commemorative Association. Proceedings July 3rd, 1908. Wilkes-Barre, Pa., 1908. This pamphlet of thirty-six pages contains an account of the exercises of the 130th anniversary of the battle and massacre of Wyoming, with the lists of officers and members of the association and the address of Henry Budd, esq., of Philadelphia.

Vital Records of Hamilton, Massachusetts, to the end of the year 1849. Salem, Mass., 1908. This is a book of one hundred and twelve octavo pages, bound in cloth, compiled and published under the provisions of the statute. It includes all records of births, marriages and deaths in the town records and from the cemetery inscriptions, supplemented by church records and private data found in Bibles, etc. The price, postage prepaid, is $1.20. Address the publisher, The Essex Institute, Salem, Mass.

Transactions of the Kansas State Historical Society, 1907-1908. Volume X. Topeka, Kansas, 1908. This great volume of 767 octavo pages of fine type should be commended to every historical society as a specimen of what might and ought to be accomplished. It contains vital records, local sketches, exercises at celebrations, biographies, many articles on the Indians in Kansas, the Wakarusa war, floods, buffalo hunts, passing of cattle trails, personal reminiscences, pioneer merchants, etc. The maps and other illustrations are many,—monuments, portraits, buildings, villages, documents, etc. Both articles and illustrations are too numerous to be specifically mentioned here. The index is exhaustive.

The True Story of the American Flag. By John H. Fow. Philadelphia, 1908. This book of fifty-four pages is the result of an exhaustive study of the subject, and is presented in an array of historical statements. Mr. Fow says: "I have gathered these facts as one would flowers for a bouquet, and have tied them together with a string of my own." It is an interesting and concise history of the evolution of our national emblem, and its first use on land and sea. It is beautifully illustrated with eight full-page plates in color, and gives in all nineteen early American flags. The price is fifty cents in paper and seventy-five, in cloth. THE OLD POUND IN SOUTH PEABODY.
DOMESTIC ANIMALS IN THE EARLY DAYS.

One of the most important subjects connected with the early settlement of Essex county is that of the domestic animals, which furnished so large a part of the food and clothing of the first settlers. From them were procured various meats, as beef, veal, pork, ham, bacon, lamb, mutton and chicken, and other foods, as milk, cheese, butter and eggs. For clothing, the wool of the sheep was in great demand, and sheep and goat skins were useful in many ways. The hides of oxen, cows and horses were tanned, and the leather used for boots, shoes, saddles, harnesses and many other purposes. For draft uses, oxen and horses, and not infrequently cows, singly in the yoke, were used.

The fishermen at Cape Ann had cattle, and when the removal was made to Naumkeag, in 1626, the cattle were undoubtedly taken with them. In the ship Lion’s Whelp, which arrived from England in the spring of 1629, twenty cows and bulls and ten mares and horses were brought.*

In the first general letter of the governor and deputy of the New England company to the governor and council of London’s plantation in the Massachusetts Bay, dated at Gravesend April 17, 1629, the writers say: “Such cattle, both horses, mares, cows, bulls, and goats, as are shipped by Mr Craddock, are to be divided in equal halves twixt him & the Companie, wth was omitted to be done heere for avoyding partiallitie; so yo”.

must doe it equally there.”* The second general letter of the company, dated at London May 28, 1629, states that “The cattle now and formerly sent haue bin all pyd by the Gouno† excepting 3 mares that came out of Lecestershire; but as well those as all the rest are agreed upon to bee shipt, the one halfe at the charge and upon the adventure of the genall Company, the other ½ for the Gouno‡ and his ptners. And because all occasions shalbe avoyded of just excepcions in their devision, it is agreed, the devision shalbe made after the arrival there, that soe whatsoever it shall please God to send thither in safety, a devision may bee then made thereof by lott,” etc.:‡

Sept. 29, 1629, there were twelve cows, three calves, two mares, and two foals belonging to the company, and it was decided that they should be sold rather than kept through the winter.§

July 8, 1635, the general court ordered that a convenient quantity of land be set out in Newbury for the keeping of the sheep and cattle that came over in the Dutch ships that year, to belong to the owners of the cattle.¶

Domestic animals were carried over the early ferries; and the usual fees therefor...

were sixpence each for horses and great cattle, and two pence each for swine, goats, yearling cattle and calves.

The first law relative to damages done in trespass of animals was passed by the general court May 3, 1631. It provided that the owner of cows, horses and goats that trespass and damage the corn of any person other than their owners shall make full satisfaction therefor. Salem was excepted from the operation of the law.*

It was ordered, Nov. 20, 1637, that whoever takes up stray animals shall within three days thereafter give notice to the constable.† In the volumes of town records and county registries of deeds are many entries of estrays.

March 12, 1637–8, it was ordered that all great cattle be herded, and planters of corn must look out for it during the day, but if cattle injure it in the night the owner of the cattle must pay the damage.‡ This law remained in force until Sept. 9, 1639, when it was repealed.§

June 14, 1642, the general court ordered that the corn fields and grass lands be fenced against cattle, that their increase, especially of cows and calves and horses, be not hindered, having greater freedom in roving about, there being so few, and provided for the limitation of liability for damage done to corn or grass by great cattle in corn fields or meadows inclosed in common or otherwise, the person responsible for the weak fence to pay the damage; if the fences were sufficient, the owner of the cattle must answer the damages; and the former law was repealed. The act further provided that if the person injured found the cattle in the act of trespass he could impound them or keep them in his own close or yard till he gave notice to their owner, etc.* Horses, cows and other domestic animals greatly increased during the next five years, and many of them were running about with great freedom, doing much damage in corn fields, etc., notwithstanding fences, so unruly that they could not be caught, or placed in custody, whereby their owners might be compelled to answer for the damages, if, indeed, the owners were known. May 26, 1647, it was provided that each town and peculiar shall have a distinct mark,—a letter or other mark, placed, by means of pitch, etc., on every one of their cattle which feed in the open without a constant keeper, so that it can be known to what place the animals belong. The following were the marks of the towns in Essex county agreed upon with the general court:

*Salem.
$Salfburie.
#Rowle.
\%Wenham.
\LLin.
\FIpswich.
\NNuberie.
\HHaverill.
\Gloster.
\Manchester.
\AAndover.†

Later, owners of animals pastured on the commons, had their distinctive marks, made by branding or cutting the hair or slitting or notching one of the ears. These were recorded by the town clerk, usually, in a book kept for that purpose. If animals bearing no such mark trespassed, double damages were collectable. Moreover, if the owner of an animal knew or had been notified that it was "unreason-ble in respect of fences," and allowed it to go upon the common, or against corn fields or other enclosed grounds without sufficient shackles or fetters as might prevent their trespassing, or if a horse or other beast trespassed in corn or other enclosure, which was securely fenced against cows, oxen and orderly cattle, the person damaged must procure two inhabitants of the town of good report and credit to view and determine the amount of the damage, which the owner of the animal must pay, etc.*

Pound. These laws necessitated the establishment in each town of the ancient pound, or, in the Anglo-Saxon, "pund," a public enclosure for the safe custody of animals found straying or doing damage as trespassers. Several of the towns built pounds without delay, but others were backward. In towns they are still maintained, though little use is made of them. The frontispiece shows the pound in South Peabody, which is one of the best in the county. They were about forty feet square, and fenced with stone wall. Many of the modern pounds have a high wooden fence around them.

A pound keeper, as he was called, was chosen by the town to have charge of the pound and the animals impounded, feeding and watering them. This was usually some man living in the vicinity.

To prevent resistance in taking and driving animals to the pound and "pund breche," as the Anglo-Saxons called it, that is, taking them out of the pound, the general court, Nov 11, 1647, made it a criminal offence, punishable by fine or whipping. If the owner of the animals was an abettor, he was punished as a principal.*

Field drivers and haywards were chosen later.

Oxen, Cows, etc. The cattle of the Dorchester company at Cape Ann, 1623-1626, were probably cows, bulls, heifers and calves, and they were undoubtedly taken, either by water or land, to Naumkeag, in the latter year. Others were sent over in 1629. The twenty cows and bulls, which came in the ship Lion's Whelp, were valued at four pounds each.*

Oxen were used for draft purposes, in the field and forest and on the road.

In the early days, cows were pastured on the common, generally in charge of a cowherd, who was appointed by the town. He drove them to the grazing ground in the morning, returning with them at night to the "pen," where each owner could receive his animals and drive them home.

Horses. These animals were taken from England to the new land as early as 1629, the ten mares and horses on the ship Lion's Whelp, that year, being valued at six pounds each.* Some of the mares that were brought over that year came from Leicester, in England. There were, also, colts among them.

In 1649, the general court forbade the exportation of mares, upon penalty of forfeiture, one-half to the informer and one-half to the public;† but, Oct. 14, 1656, the law was repealed, as the other colonies allowed it.‡

Horses were used, in the earliest days, principally for horseback riding.

Generally, one horse only would be found on an ordinary place. In the inventory of the estate of John Ward of Ipswich, dated March 21, 1656, are named one old bay mare with a foal, one young mare with a foal, two two-year-old mares, one year-old colt, the bald horse and the bay horse, and no other animals, except two cows. John Porter, sr., of Salem had a large farm; and at his death, in 1676, he was possessed of eight oxen, two three-year-old steers, bull, fifteen cows, nine two-year-old cattle, eight yearlings, eleven calves, five horses, six mares, two colts, fourteen swine, eleven young shoats, forty-six ewe sheep and wethers and fourteen lambs.

Swine. The presence of swine was provocative of more laws and contentions than any other animal. They were here as early as 1631, and probably two or three years earlier. May 3, 1631, the general court ordered that all swine found in the corn of any man other than the owner of the animals shall be forfeited to the public, and be applied to the payment of the damages they have done in such fields; and if the damages exceed the value of the swine, their owner must pay the balance.*

Later, it was ordered that, after March 1, 1632-3, the owner of swine which has damaged the corn of another shall pay such damage himself.†

Not only were they injurious in corn fields, but among the fish flakes on which fish were drying at the stages they were equally harmful. In the spring of 1633, it was ordered that if any swine shall, in fishing time, come within a quarter of a mile of the stage of Marble Harbor, they shall be forfeited to the owners of the stage, and the same law applied to all other stages in the colony.‡

July 2, of that summer, it was ordered that any man might kill any swine that came into his corn, the owner of the animal to have its body, first paying for the damage to the corn.§

Nov. 5, 1633, corn that was fit for human consumption was forbidden to be fed to swine; and it was also ordered that each plantation shall agree upon the number of swine any person may keep, winter or summer, about the plantation.||

All laws relating to swine were repealed May 14, 1634, when it was ordered that each town make their own rules about swine, as they judge best for themselves; but owners of swine remained responsible for damages done by their animals in another town.*

June 3, 1635, it was ordered that no person shall keep pigs more than a month between the last of July and the first of January, under penalty of ten shillings for each pig, half to the informer and half to the public treasury; and no corn could be fed to swine between those dates, except refuse corn and corn brought from other parts, the constable to decide questions about it.†

It was ordered, July 8, 1635, that a pound be made in every plantation, in which to impound swine found in any corn field. Notice of such impounding was to be given to the owner of the animals, if he can be known, or otherwise to be made known at the next lecture. If the swine were not claimed within three days after such notice, the owner of the corn had the animals appraised by two of his neighbors, after which he could sell them, paying himself from the proceeds double damages, which had been determined by two indifferent men. Like recompense was to be made for swine claimed by their owner. The order extended to farms, but not to unfenced parcels of corn of an acre or less, planted remote from town. It was lawful for the owner of the corn to kill the swine, if they could not be impounded, and pay himself the damage, returning the balance to the owner of the animals. If swine escaped from the pound, the owner became liable to pay the damages.‡

Sept. 3, 1635, it was ordered that after the last of the succeeding March, twelve pence a piece must be paid (besides damages and charges of keeping) for each swine taken without a keeper within a mile of any plantation, or farms improved by tillage, by the owner of the animals to any one who should impound them. Swine so impounded were cried at the next two lectures, and if not claimed within three days thereafter, it was lawful for the impounder to have them appraised and to sell them, delivering the overplus of the money into the next court.*

Notwithstanding all these laws and regulations, great damage was sustained every year by swine going at liberty; and it was ordered, Oct. 26, 1636, that if any swine be found abroad out of its owner's yard, or other inclosure, or out of some island, unless some person have them in restraint, by a line or otherwise, they shall be accounted wild swine, and any man can take them, alive or dead. Each town was obliged to choose yearly a discreet person, "who shall be called the hog-reeve," who shall have power to seize all such swine, and to account of all that shall be seized by any person. Every swine so seized had to be valued by two neighbors and sold, one-half of the proceeds being payable to the colony and the other half to the person seizing them; and the hogreeve had one-tenth of each swine that he notified the treasurer had been seized by any other person. All former laws relating to swine were repealed.† December 13, following, the order was suspended for six months for such swine as were found ringed.‡ A ring in the snout of a hog prevented it from rooting, which was apparently one of the principal objectionable features of a stray.

March 9, 1636-7, it was ordered that all swine shall be kept in yards or islands, or committed to keepers, under penalty of ten shillings for each animal not so disposed of, or found at large, and if it be taken in corn or in a meadow five shillings apiece shall be forfeited to the impounder, and the owner of the animal shall pay double damages for the harm done by it. If the swine could not be impounded, it was lawful to kill it; and five shillings for each animal was paid to the person so killing it, and the remainder to the owner, if known, otherwise to the treasurer for the public.*

All existing laws relating to swine were repealed Nov. 20, 1637; afterward each town was to make orders for preventing harm done by swine in corn, meadow, pasture, or garden, and were given power to impose penalties to any reasonable value. In the matter of damages the whole procedure was changed. Thereafter the town should pay, recovering from the owner the amount of the damage, etc. If swine in one town trespassed into another town, through want of ringing or yoking, the town to which they belonged must make satisfaction and answer the fine; but if the animals were ringed, the town where the trespass was done, because of want of sufficient fencing, was liable, such town to collect from the owner.† Sept. 6, 1638, all former swine laws were repealed, and it was ordered that any swine found within two miles of any meeting house (except the premises of its owner), without a sufficient keeper, or found within another's corn field, garden, or pasture, its owner shall forfeit it; and whoever killed it or took it alive had to have it appraised by two freemen of the same town, and the damages being first satisfied, the rest went, one-half to the party and half to a common stock for the good of the town where it was taken. Reproaching or finding fault with any person for seizing or killing any swine, according to law, was made a criminal offence.‡ Men in those days spoke freely, and appeared in court from time to time to answer to complaints of this sort.

The yoking of swine was to prevent them from getting through or over fences.
The forfeiture of swine, provided for as above, became inoperative by an order of the general court March 13, 1638-9.*
Swineherds were appointed by towns to take swine to feeding grounds and have the care of them. The animals fed upon acorns, grubs, roots, etc. Those near the flats, where clams were found, after they had learned to root for and eat clams, waited for the tide to recede that they might go upon the flats and feed upon the clams.

Sheep. Some of these desirable animals were brought to Newbury in Dutch ships in 1635, and others probably were imported earlier.
The number of sheep was limited, and wool was consequently scarce and dear.
It was very much wanted for winter clothing; and for this reason the general court sought to increase the production of these animals. May 14, 1645, they desired all towns to preserve and enlarge their flocks. Each town was requested to appoint a man to learn what persons would purchase ewes and the number they would take, reporting to the court, which would send abroad for them; also to write to friends in England who thought of emigrating to Massachusetts Bay to bring as many sheep as they could.†

To still further promote this branch of husbandry, Oct. 18, 1648, it was ordered that any man may keep sheep on any common, whether it is cow, ox or other common, belonging to the town where such person lives, or where at that time he has a right to common, without limitation in unrestricted commons and in restricted commons to keep his proportion of five sheep to one great animal. If a dog killed a sheep, the owner must hang his dog forthwith or pay double damages; and if such owner had had notice that the dog had been seen to course or bite sheep before, he must hang his dog and pay for the sheep. If the owner refuses to hang his dog, the constable must forthwith cause it to be done.*

Aug. 22, 1654, sheep were forbidden to be exported.‡
Shepherds were not unknown here in the early days.

Goats. These animals were brought over in 1629. They were much more common in Essex county in the first setttlement than they have been since. Invventories of the earlier estates frequently mention them.

March 9, 1636-7, the general court ordered that double damages shall be allowed for injury done by goats; and any goat taken in corn or gardens may be kept and used by the person damaged till full satisfaction be made by the owner of the animal.:

Goats were driven out to pasture and tended by the goatherd, who was appointed by the town, owners of the animals paying him so much per head for his sersices.

Dogs. These companions of men came very early to New England. They were in Salem in 1635, and probably from the first English settlement.

For the destruction of wolves, the town of Salem voted, Nov. 10, 1645, that four or half-a-dozen braches or hounds be brought from England at the expense of the town.§ Oct. 18, 1648, the general court ordered that the selectmen of every town shall procure as many hounds as they think meet, and impose the keeping of them on such as they think fittest, for destruction of wolves; and no other dogs shall be kept in any town except with the permission of its selectmen.||

Poultry. Poultry is rarely mentioned in the early records, though hens were here in the early settlement, being the subject of a town order in Salem in 1635; and, in 1637, Peter Palfrey's servant, Jane Wheat, was convicted of killing his neighbor's poultry.*

Memory of The Rev. Nathaniel Rogers; who was more than 47 years, a faithful & beloved Pastor of the first Church & Congregation in this place: Colleague the first 18 years, with his venerable Father, the Rev. John Rogers of precious memory, whose dust lies near: Alone in office after, until death translated him to the high reward of his labors. He slept in Jesus, May 10th A. D. 1775. Æt. 74.

A mind profoundly great; a heart that felt The ties of nature, friendship & humanity; Distinguish'd wisdom, dignity of manners, These mark'd the Man: but with superior grace The Christian throne, in faith & heav'nly zeal, Sweet peace, true goodness, and prevailing pray'r,

Dear Man of God! with what strong agonies He wrestled for his flock—and for the world! And like Apollos mighty in the scriptures, Open'd the mysteries of love divine And the great name of Jesus!

Warm from his lips the heavenly doctrine fell; And numbers receiv'd from the jaws of hell, Shall hail him blest in realms of light unknown, And add immortal laurels to his crown.

Farewell surviving friends,

Prepare yourselves for death
For you must follow soon.

HERE lies interr'd the Body of Mrs Susanna Smith wife of Capt. John Smith, who departed this Life
Decem' 26th 1781 : aged 82.

Why should we mourn departed friends?
Or thake at death's alarms?
'Tis but the voice that Jesus sends
To call them to his arms.
Are we not tending upward too
As fast as time can move?
Nor would we wish the hours more flow
To keep us from our Love.

Why should we tremble to convey
Their bodies to the tomb?
There the dear flesh of Jesus lay
And left a long perfume.
The graves of all his saints be blest:
And softn'd every bed:
Where should the dying members rest
But with their dying Head?

SALEM IN 1700. NO. 35.
BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

The map on the opposite page represents that part of Salem lying between Loring avenue and the bay and from Forest river northwesterly about a third of a mile. It is based on actual surveys and title deeds, and is drawn on a scale of six hundred feet to an inch. It shows the location of the only house that was standing there in 1700. The dotted lines show where Lafayette street now runs. It was the road to Marblehead which was laid out in 1737; accounts of which have been given. Originally, it ran along the shore around the point in front of the residence of Hon. John M. Raymond. The land damages occasioned by the laying out of this road were met by the grant of the South field hill, shown on the map, to the owners of the several lots of land through which it passed. The line with the dashes across it show where the Marblehead branch of the Boston & Maine Railroad now runs.

Loring avenue was the old way to Marblehead, having been laid out in 1666, as described in a former article. It was called the highway as it goes toward Marblehead in 1676; highway to Marblehead, 1713; ye country road leading to Marblehead, 1719; ye road leading through South field to Marblehead, 1734; the old road so called to Marblehead, 1773; the road leading to Forest river bridge so called and Salem hospital, 1777; and Loring avenue since 1881.

The water on the east was called Forest river as early as 1666; ye water or harbor, 1669; the river, 1692; ye sea or salt water, 1708; cove or river, 1791; Salem harbor, 1812; and the harbor, 1829.

Forest river has been so called since 1636, at least. Its Indian name was Massabequash.

The creek running out of Forest river was called Mouser’s cove in 1656, probably because John Mouser owned land upon it very early; and was called creek or branch of Forest river in 1730.

William Reeves Lot. This was a part of the lot of Daniel Baxter. It subsequently belonged to John Reeves of Salem as early as 1652. Mr. Reeves died in 1681, having devised this part of his lot to his son William Reeves, who owned it in 1700.

Ephraim Kempton Lot. This was a part of the five-acre lot of Daniel Baxter. It subsequently belonged to John Reeves of Salem, as early as 1652. Mr. Reeves died in 1681, having devised this portion to his daughter Mary’s husband, Ephraim Kempton of Salem, a locksmith. He owned it in 1700.

Edward Flint Lot. This lot belonged to Daniel Baxter of Salem, seaman, before 1645, when the half-acre of marsh at the north end of it was granted to him. He conveyed the whole lot to William Flint of Salem 12: 3 mo: 1653.* Mr. Flint died, possessed of it, Feb. 2, 1672-3, having devised it to his son Edward Flint. It was then appraised at twelve pounds. It belonged to Edward Flint in 1700.

Samuel Gardner Lot. Henry True owned this lot very early. He owned it in 1653; and probably conveyed that part of it lying easterly of the dashes soon after. It came into the possession of Samuel Gardner. Mr. True died in 165—, possessed of that part of the lot lying westerly of the dashes; and his administratrix conveyed it to George Gardner of Salem, merchant, 22: 9: 1659.* Lieutenant Gardner died Aug. 20, 1679, having devised this part of the lot to his son Samuel, who owned the other part.

PART OF SALEM IN 1700. NO. 35.

There were three small lots at the southern corner of this lot, shown on the map within the dashes. Henry True owned the middle one, and it was conveyed by the administratrix of his estate in the deed above-mentioned. The other lots were owned at that time (1659) by Samuel Archer and Goodman Skerry.

Samuel Gardner owned the entire lot in 1700.

Benjamin Browne Lot. This lot of meadow or marsh land early belonged to William Lord. He owned it probably as early as 1659. It belonged to Benjamin Browne in 1700.

John Holmes Lot. This lot was early known as "Mowser's," having probably belonged to John Mousar, and perhaps granted to him in 1639. Thomas Browning died, possessed of it, in the spring of 1671, having devised his land to his sons-in-law Joseph Williams and Isaac Meachum. They divided the estate 17: 2: 1675, and this lot was assigned to Mr. Meachum.† Mr. Meachum lived in Endfield, Mass., Nov. 14, 1693, when he conveyed this lot to Samuel Gardner of Salem.‡ For twenty-seven pounds Mr. Gardner conveyed it to John Holmes of Salem April 9, 1694;§ and Mr. Holmes died, possessed of it, in 1718.

Southfield Hill. This hill was reserved by the Southfield proprietors when the lands in this section were divided in the early days. When the new highway (now Lafayette street) was laid out from the present Normal school to the lead mills on Forest river, in 1737, the proprietors granted this hill to the owners of land over which the new road was laid out.* This hill was hired for many years of the Southfield proprietors by John Holmes and after his death by his son Benjamin Holmes, before its grant in 1737.

John Holmes House. John Holmes was a yeoman and lived in Salem on this lot about 1676. When the house that stood here in 1700 was built is not known, but probably about 1676. Mr. Holmes died in 1718, and the house and land descended to his son Benjamin Holmes, who was a husbandman, and lived here. The house was probably taken down before 1750.

Edward Flint Lot. This lot was owned by William Flint very early. He died Feb. 2, 1672-3, possessed of it. His sons, Edward and Thomas Flint, divided the estate Dec. 3, 1694; and this lot was assigned to Edward.† Edward Flint owned it in 1700.

Thomas Flint Lot. This lot was owned by William Flint very early. He died Feb. 2, 1672-3, possessed of it. His sons, Edward and Thomas Flint, divided the estate Dec. 3, 1694; and this lot was assigned to Thomas,† who owned it in 1700.

THE GRAVES OF THE PATRIOTS.

BY J. G. PERCIVAL.

Here rest the great and good—here they repose After their generous toil. A sacred band, They take their sleep together, while the year Comes with its early flowers to deck their graves, And gather them again, as Winter frowns. Theirs is no vulgar sepulchre; green sods Are all their monument; and yet it tells A nobler history than pillared piles, Or the eternal pyramids. They need No statue nor inscription to reveal Their greatness. It is round them; and the joy With which their children tread the hallowed ground That holds their venerated bones, the peace That smiles on all they fought for, and the wealth That clothes the land they rescued,—these, though mute, As feeling ever is when deepest,—these Are monuments more lasting than the fanes Reared to the kings and demigods of old.

ANSWERS.

354. In the Spofford Genealogy Hannah, daughter of Samuel and Jemima (Freethe) Spofford, born in Rowley Dec. 22, 1716, is said to have married “—— Wood, of Bradford.” This is evidently a mistake, for the Spofford that married a Wood belonged to another family. The estate of Samuel Spofford was not settled in the probate court, and positive evidence of her husband’s name is not therefore attainable from that source; and, indeed, if the estate had been administered in court, probably Hannah would not have been mentioned, if she is the Hannah Spofford who married Robert Craig (or more properly Grag or Gragg) in Bradford Dec. 4, 1735, both being of Rowley, as she and her child died on the same day, Jan. 2, 1737-8. This is the only Hannah who is qualified to be this Hannah. Robert Grag was a witness to the will of her uncle, John Spofford of Rowley, in the year of his marriage to Hannah. The home of all of these people was the west parish of Rowley, which was incorporated as the town of Georgetown in 1838.—Ed.

384. Mary Martin of Marblehead who married Richard Whittemore Dec. 23, 1792, was a daughter of Capt. Knott Martin, jr., of Marblehead. Her mother was Elizabeth Bowen, daughter of Nathan Bowen, esq., of Marblehead, whose family record is given in The Essex Antiquarian, volume X, page 57. Mary Martin was baptized in Marblehead, in St. Michael's (Episcopal) church, Dec. 1, 1765. Her father was a coaster. Her mother died in Marblehead July 28, 1809, at the age of seventy-four; and Captain Martin married, secondly, Mercy (Brooks), widow of John Martin, Jan. 20, 1810. Capt. Knott Martin died in Marblehead July 7, 1822, at the age of eighty-seven years and six months. His wife Mercy survived him, and died, his widow, April 21, 1832, aged "eighty-three."—Ed.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

VITAL RECORDS OF ESSEX, MASSACHUSETTS, to the end of the year 1849. Salem, Mass., 1908. This is a book of eighty-six octavo pages, bound in cloth, and compiled and published under the provisions of the statute. It includes all records of births, marriages and deaths in the town records and from the cemetery inscriptions and private records. The price, postage prepaid, is ninety five cents. Address the publisher, The Essex Institute, Salem, Mass.

INSCRIPTIONS FROM THE ANCIENT GRAVESTONES OF ACWORTH, N. H. Claremont, N. H., 1908. This is a transcript of the records in the old cemetery of Acworth, N. H., which was settled in 1769, principally by descendants of the Scotch-Irish colony of Londonderry, N. H. The copies were made by Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Spofford of Claremont. Mr. Spofford has printed them, together with a list of the Acworth soldiers in the Revolution, in a pamphlet of twenty-four octavo pages, which he will send to any one on receipt of fifty cents.

EXERCISES AT THE DEDICATION OF THE PETERS' HILL MEMORIAL AT WENHAM LAKE OCTOBER 25, 1908. Wenham, Mass., 1908. Rev. Hugh Peters, pastor of the church in Salem, preached a sermon on a little hill at Wenham lake about 1638, being the first religious service ever conducted in that part of Salem called Enon in 1643, when it became a town. The hill has been dug away, and near its site a boulder was placed, on which is a bronze tablet stating the fact of the sermon.

THE MERCHANTS NATIONAL BANK, SALEM, MASS. An Historical Sketch. By Albert W. Dennis. Salem, Mass., 1908. This is a history of the old bank, which has been engaged in business in Salem since 1811, and never more flourishing than it is to-day. This volume of sixty-five quarto pages, artistically bound, gives its history in detail. There are many plates, of its home-buildings, inside and out, its past and present corporate seals, its various issues of bills and checks, portraits of its nine presidents and other officers, past and present. The book is unique and well prepared, and gives tone to the bank, which it illustrates so well.

HISTORICAL COLLECTIONS OF THE TOPSFIELD HISTORICAL SOCIETY. Volume XIII. Topsfield, Mass., 1908. This, the thirteenth volume of printed books of the Topsfield Historical Society, contains one hundred and sixty-eight octavo pages. The leading article is a history of the post-office in Topsfield and of its post-masters; and among the number of other papers, Topsfield in the Witchcraft Delusion and Descendants of John French of Topsfield are particularly valuable. Of the four portraits contained in the volume.
the most important is that of Dr. Nehemiah Cleaveland, which constitutes the frontispiece.

The Taverns and Turnpikes of Blandford, 1733-1833. By Rev. Sumner Gilbert Wood. Blandford, Mass., 1908. This is an attractive volume, bound in buckram, and contains three hundred and fifty small octavo pages. The author is the pastor of the Congregational church in that town, and in love with the antiquities of his locality.

The town was settled in 1735 by a colony of Scotch-Irish, and was located on the main highway of the province between Boston and Albany; and so has a richer store of tavern and stage-coach lore than most towns. Probably no branch of local history is more attractive than that relating to staging and tavern life; and Mr. Wood tells the story in such a manner that the book is interesting to the reader, who may never have seen Blandford.

The volume is finely illustrated. There is a map of the original layout of the town, but most of the remaining fifty engravings are in half-tone printed in brown ink in an artistic manner. They include landscapes, old roads, taverns and residences, inside and out, meeting-house, views of the village, etc.

The mechanical part of the book is of the best kind; and in every part of the volume taste is happily displayed. A good index is not its least useful feature.

The price is two dollars. Address the author at Blandford, Mass.

A History of the United States and its People from their Earliest Records to the Present Time. By Elroy Mc-Kendree Avery. Volume V. Cleveland, O., 1908. Another volume of this beautiful work has been issued. In many ways this is the best of the five. The mechanical excellence and especially its typographical superiority is not surpassed by the previous volumes.

This section begins with the period succeeding the French and Indian war, and ends with the beginning of the Revolution, in 1776. The principal subjects are the stamp act, the tea episode, the provincial and continental congresses, beleaguered Boston, the Northern campaign, early months of the war, and the Declaration of Independence.

The illustrations increase in number in each successive volume apparently, and this contains several hundred. The frontispiece is a color portrait of Samuel Adams, and in fact this volume contains more color prints than either of the earlier issues. There are engravings of many houses, advertisements, documents and wall paper. Many of the articles in the Essex Institute at Salem are illustrated, as the wooden plow used at Boxford on the morning of April 19, 1775, axe used about 1750, a boy's shoe worn previous to the Revolution, loom, reel, saddle bags in which Mrs. Ruth Curtis of Boxford carried food and powder to her husband at the battle of Bunker hill, watch and chain, spectacles, foot-stove, warming pan, steelyards, old panniers, one horse chaise, candle-mold, pre-Revolutionary pistol, etc. Among the portraits are those of Gov. Joseph Wanton of Rhode Island, Gov. Francis Bernard, James Otis, Peter Faneuil, Isaac Barre, Patrick Henry, John Dickinson, George III., Queen Charlotte, Lord North, Thomas Hutchinson, Lord Mansfield, Earl of Dartmouth, Thomas Cushing, Benjamin Franklin, Lord Dunmore, Joseph Warren, Earl Percy, Paul Revere, Edmund Burke, Ethan Allen, Israel Putnam, John Burgoyne, Benedict Arnold, Thomas Paine and John Hancock. There are also many autographs, title-pages, revenue stamps, maps and plans, furniture and household utensils, coats-of-arms, apparel, money, etc.

This volume contains four hundred and thirty-two pages, having at its end the usual bibliography of the period. Sixteen volumes in all are promised by the publishers, The Burrows Brothers Company, Cleveland, O.

THE PRE-HISTORIC RELICS OF ESSEX COUNTY.

BY JOHN ROBINSON.

The age and origin of the thousands of pre-historic implements, commonly known as Indian relics, which are found in all parts of Essex county, in graves, in shellheaps and just beneath the surface of the fields, are questions often asked and variously answered. This article was prepared for a meeting of the Essex Institute and is based on the study of the large collection of pre-historic relics of Essex county in the Peabody museum in Salem and upon the accounts of early local writers and recent works on the pre-historic races of north-eastern America.

The original peopling of this country must remain a matter of speculation. The most reasonable theory would seem to be that the primitive man came from Europe through the northern regions in remotely early time, before the glacial period. That these early inhabitants were then forced southward by the progress of the ice sheet; that those who pushed far to the south became more highly developed in the arts and in culture generally, while those who remained in the northern and mountain regions retained their primitive ways. With the recession of the ice the north gradually became repopled from the immediate south, the stream of population spreading out in several directions. Of course, local gatherings or tribes began to develop distinctive characters; there were continual oscillations, back and forth over the land, migrations and wars,—and the comingling again of once separated tribes.

A study of the so-called shellheaps of Essex county is of much interest and offers opportunity for many speculations as to the people who left us these waste piles, the only relic of their domestic life.

It has been thought by some writers that the ancient Eskimo at one time occupied this region and were living even farther south and that we had here the relics of two races or groups of pre-historic people. This theory is now generally held and, therefore, it is probable that all of the pre-historic objects found here were the handiwork of one race and that the ruder and more highly finished objects found intermingled in surface collections merely indicate a different condition of the development of this race or, possibly, of different individuals of that race at practically the same period. Of the greatest importance, therefore, is the study of the shellheaps and graves, for only by the study of these may any estimate be made of the age of most of the objects found. The objects found in great quantities in the fields and by the shores of ponds and streams are interesting solely as forms of implements and cannot be assigned to any period except by comparison with the objects from graves and shellheaps.

The shellheaps, found more frequently at Ipswich than in any other part of the county, and, of course, near the salt flats, are generally composed of clam shells thrown in piles near some permanent or temporary camping ground and with these are mingled the refuse, broken implements, pottery, meat bones, etc., of the household, precisely as would be found in our own ash piles. Occasionally oyster shells are found with the clam shells and in a few instances the heaps are composed almost wholly of oyster shells.

It is probable that these latter are the oldest, one very interesting example of which was opened on Perkins island at the mouth of the Ipswich river and is described in the Bulletin of the Essex Institute at page 158 of volume fourteen. It was composed entirely of oyster shells and some very old forms of clam shells and, also, included human bones broken up and found in a compact mass as if turned out of a pot, indicating, as stated by Prof. F. W. Putnam, that cannibalism was practised by the natives at that remote period.

Passing on to the time when the prehistoric merges into the historical period we find, about the year 1500, that the Algonkin tribes extended from the Savannah river to the straits of Belle Isle and west to Lake Superior. The Algonkins surrounded the Iroquois who were at Montreal and in central New York, with a branch, the Hurons, at Georgian bay. The Iroquois built communal houses, were more cultured and had some ideas of government, as shown by the Hiawatha confederation. The Algonkins on the other hand were more primitive in their ways, lived in huts surrounded by palisades and made ruder implements; they surrounded the Iroquois and were in contact with them on either side.

The Algonkins worshipped light and the four winds and their totems in animal form represented personal gods who could, through the animal, do the owner some good turn. To another person or tribe this same animal might not be sacred. A carved head of wood was sometimes carried by an individual and this and possibly a carved post were their only idols. Carved stone faces from two to five inches long have been found in New Hampshire, New York, New Jersey and elsewhere and carved stone representations of animals have also been found in graves and among the surface relics in several parts of Essex county. At death these primitive people believed that they would go to the realms of eternal bliss by the route of the milky-way.

Until this time, about the year 1500, or the time of the discovery by Columbus, —the distribution of the races in North America was purely a natural one, unaffected by outside influences. But now comes the first European voyagers and in an ever-increasing stream, forming a period extending over a little more than a century to the time of the permanent settlement of the country,—from Cabot to the Mayflower.

The coming of the Norsemen need not be considered as an influence in the condition of the native races in this part of the country,—if anywhere in North America. Eric was in Greenland in 982 and in 985 that country was settled by Norwegians. In the year 1000 Norsemen sailed southward along the Atlantic coast. The most eminent students who have written on this subject, historians and archaeologists,—Windsor, Fiske, MacLean of Illinois, Reeves of Cincinnati, L. G. Power of Nova Scotia and others consider, even accepting the legends of the Norse sagas as facts, although they are quite generally looked upon as largely romantic,—that the most southerly point which could have been reached was Labrador or New Foundland. The whole length and breadth of the North Atlantic coast from Maine to Virginia have been dug over and re-dug for nearly three centuries and not a single authentic Scandinavian relic has ever been found. The old stone mill at Newport, heralded as a Norse baptistry, was undoubtedly built by Governor Arnold about 1676, a close copy of one near his old home in Chesterton, England. Dighton rock and the rocks in Rhode Island and Newbury, Mass., once thought to have Norse legends carved upon them are now known to simply bear Algonkian inscriptions. The "skeleton in armor," found near Fall River, was the exaggerated story of a few pieces of copper found with the skeleton of an ordinary Algonkin native, buried within the historic period, and similar burials with pieces.

of copper have been unearthed at Manchester and Revere, Mass. The Greenland settlement had been entirely wiped out of existence by 1642. The only possible connection between the Norsemen and Eskimo may be found in the influence of Norse legends in Eskimo tales.

But the influence of the early voyagers upon the material life of the natives was very great. John Cabot discovered New Foundland in 1497. Cortereal came there in 1517 and the fishermen in 1517, for there were fifty vessels of various nationalities in New Foundland waters at that date. In 1522, New Foundland probably had a settlement of fifty houses of the fishermen. In 1535, Jacques Cartier sailed up the St. Lawrence river and discovered the Iroquois town of Hocheloga and named it Montreal. A French settlement was attempted in 1542-1543. In 1557, there were engaged in the New Foundland fisheries one hundred vessels from Spain, fifty from Portugal, one hundred and fifty from France and fifty from England, while thirty ships were near Iceland looking for whales. In 1579, a trading ship of three hundred tons came from England and made a profitable voyage—a ship much larger than many of the famous old Salem craft which two centuries later carried our name and the American flag to the most distant ports. Sir Humphrey Gilbert found thirty-six vessels in St. John harbor in 1583, and the French had renewed their trade with Canada two years before. Virginia Dare, the first child of English parents born in northeastern America, saw the light at Roanoke, Virginia, August 18, 1587. Vessels were plying continually along the whole coast. Gosnold named Cape Cod and Martha's Vineyard in 1602, Martin Pring was at New England in 1603 for sassafras and, in the same year, Champlain gave us the map of Gloucester harbor with "the wigwams of the savages" drawn in the sketch and so inscribed. John Smith explored this region in 1614, the permanent settlement quickly followed and the white man was at Virginia, Plymouth, Salem, Boston and elsewhere to New Foundland and Montreal. And the white man found the Algonkins of this region practically exterminated.

Looking over this list of voyagers who had for a century sailed about the waters of the north Atlantic, continually meeting and trading with the natives, it does not require much imagination to determine from whom the natives obtained the copper ship kettles, iron tools, brass, the so-called copper armor, pipes, beads, etc., of European make which we find in ancient graves and in the shellheaps. It is quite safe to say that all such objects are from two hundred and sixty to three hundred and fifty years old, in individual cases, from certain data we may guess more nearly their exact age.

For a region occupied by a nomadic people, up to 1615 this part of the country was densely populated. There were more inhabitants at Agawam (Ipswich) than at Naumkeag (Salem),—a statement verified by the fact that many more prehistoric relics are found at Ipswich than in the neighborhood of Salem, thus giving silent endorsement to tradition and the stories of the early voyagers. There were, it is said, multitudes of people seen on the shores while abundant corn fields waved their tassels through the late summer. It is estimated that there were forty thousand inhabitants in New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, mostly located near the coast, the more readily to obtain food,—fish and clams as well as woodland game,—and because it is supposed that they were contracted to defend themselves from the five nations of Iroquois with whom they were at war.

The Algonkin tribes from Maine were also in the habit of making raids in this direction to obtain supplies. They were fierce warriors and did not cultivate the land so extensively as the tribes of this region. In 1615, they made a terrible onslaught killing great numbers of the Massachusetts Indians. In 1617-1618, thousands more died of a pestilence which followed the war and in 1619 the relentless Tarrentines again came down finishing the work of destruction already nearly completed. It was during this last raid that Nanepashemet, the ruler of the Massachusetts tribes was killed in his stronghold at Medford on the Mystic. Thus, so say the Plymouth colonial records, “Almighty God in his goodness prepared the country for the whites.” The leaders among the early settlers looked upon this wholesale slaughter of the natives by war and pestilence as a beneficent interposition of a divine providence to provide them with the land needed for their occupation without cost or trouble. Although there were some who felt a certain responsibility for the christian treatment of the natives, this belief of divine interposition held for two hundred years. It was taught in our schools and finally became the key note of our unjust national Indian policy.

After the death of Nanepashemet, Montowampate ruled over Lynn, Salem and Marblehead, then known as Saugus, Naumkeag and Masabequash. He married a daughter of Pasaconaway, the old high priest of the tribes of the region, and after some domestic difficulties, similar to those we read about in our modern court reports, he died in 1633. Later, Wenepoyken, the youngest son of Nanepashemet, appears to have claimed this territory. He died in 1684. Poquanum, a contemporary of Nanepashemet, was the local ruler at Nahant, followed by Manatahqua. These names are variously spelt and each chief received some name from the English, such as Black Will, Sagamore George, James Runney-marsh, etc. Masconomo ruled at Agawam (Ipswich) in the early days of the settlement.

In the city hall at Salem hangs an ancient parchment, the deed of the land the city occupies, purchased from the descendants of Nanepashemet in 1686 for twenty pounds. On the lower margin of the deed are the signatures of ten of his grandchildren and great-grandchildren or their representatives, and one son of the great chief. We may see here the handwriting of some of the native Indians who may have handled or even possible made some of the objects preserved in our museum collections, objects which we may ourselves handle. It is quite possible that some of the wampum in the museum collection may have come from the grave of one of the signers of this old Salem Indian deed. As late as 1633, John Wonoquaquaham, a son of Nanepashemet, dying in Chelsea, left his lands at Powderhorn hill to his son, or to his brother George (Wenepoyken) if his son should be dead, and much wampum to the governor and to his people. He was a good man and bequeathed his son to the care of the Rev. Mr. Wilson of Boston. Of course, some wampum was buried with him and it is quite possible that the specimens of wampum referred to in the museum collection may have belonged to him for they were found in a grave very near Powderhorn hill, just beyond the Essex county line.

In conclusion: It is most probable, since the natives had very largely disappeared when this part of the country was settled, that all objects, included as prehistoric relics, found in Essex county, ante-date the year 1620,—the year after the last Tarrentine invasion. As a primitive race gives up its implements of stone almost immediately on coming in contact with a race more advanced for implements of iron or copper, it is probable that comparatively few stone implements were made by natives of this region after the year 1550. But little mention is made of stone implements in early colonial accounts of the natives notwithstanding so many are found in graves and in the fields throughout the county. These stone implements must generally be three hundred and fifty years old; many may be very much older.

The oldest shellheaps,—those composed principally of oyster shells,—undoubtedly contain the remains of the earliest and most primitive inhabitants and may be Novr 5th 1797. Aet. 71.

When I can read my title clear
To mansions in the skies,
I bid farewell to ev’ry fear,
And wipe my weeping eyes.
Should earth against my soul engage,
And hellish darts be hurl’d,
Then I can smile at Satan’s rage,
And face a frowning world.
Let cares, like a wild deluge come,
And storms of sorrow fall;
May I but safely reach my home,
My God, my heav’n, my all,
There I shall bathe my weary soul
In seas of heav’nly rest
And not a wave of trouble roll

BOWDEN NOTES.

BY CHARLES E. BANKS, M. D.

The several genealogies of the Bowden family, as given in this magazine, volume X, pages 38-45, are susceptible of some consolidation. They are all, doubtless, descendants of one or more of the name who lived early in the Province of Maine, Ambrose and John being two known to have had families there. These two may have been brothers, living in adjoining towns.

Ambrose, of Scarboro, a master mariner, was captain of the vessel which brought over Thomas Cammock in 1632, and received a lot of land in Scarboro as pay for the passage; on coroner’s jury, 1646; submitted to Massachusetts jurisdiction, 1658; ferryman, 1658; blind in 1670; and died Feb. 8, 1675. Walter Gendall administered upon his estate. He had one son, probably,

Ambrose, born about 1637 or earlier, as he was made a freeman in 1658, with his father, at Scarboro, when Massachusetts usurped jurisdiction of the Province of Maine. He was living in 1686, but the date of his death is unknown. He had three sons, probably: Ambrose, born in 1666; Andrew, petitioned the king in 1680; nothing further known of him; and John3, born in 1670, “at Spur-winke River” [Scarboro].

Ambrose, born in 1666. This family appears in The Antiquarian, volume X, page 45.

John, born in 1670, resided at Scarboro for twenty-seven years, according to a deposition, when he removed, perhaps directly to Marblehead. He may be the “John Boden of Marblehead” who married Rebecca Fowl of Boston May 26, 1713 (Boston marriages). That he was the son of Ambrose Bowden of Scarboro is conclusively proven by York Deeds, volume XII, pages 79 and 178. It appears by the genealogy (page 38), that he had lived in Dartmouth, Mass., where he married, in 1721, Joanna Colman. His last (third?) wife was widow Sarah Oakman, whom he married in 1732. He died in 1743, being “aged” about seventy-three, according to the year of his birth. This seems to fit his case, but his marriages were all late in life, the first when he was forty-three years old.

PARTS OF SALEM AND MARBLEHEAD IN 1700.
BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

The map on page 135 shows that part of Salem next Marblehead line and the western portion of Marblehead, as it was in the year 1700. It represents about seven hundred acres. All of these lots, except those marked William Sanders, Thomas Pitman and John Blaney comprised the grant made to John Humphreys, and those marked James Darling, Estate of Richard Rowland and Ambrose Gale were the fifty acres of land which Mr. Humphreys conveyed to Emmanuel Downing out of his five hundred acres, and known as the Coy pond lands. The map is drawn on a scale of seventy-two rods or twelve hundred feet to an inch; and shows the location of the only house then standing on the territory.

"Humphreys' farm" was a tract of five hundred acres of land running entirely across the westerly end of the town of Marblehead. Three hundred acres of this tract had been granted to Thomas Scruggs in the year 1635 in the following words:

This is void by ii of the 11th moneth 1635
Granted by the free men of Salem the day and yeare above written vnto Thomas Scrugs of the fame his heires and assignes for ever a farme conteyning three hundred acres of land whereof thirty acres are fit to be mowed cituing lying and being in the outmost bounds of Salem towards m' Humphries* and is from the Sea where the frehe water runs out, west and by North is the farme next to m' Humphries bounded by the Comon by the North west end & east End Pvided alwayes & in Case of Sale, the towne of Salem haue the first pfer before any other

This lot of Mr. Scruggs was regarded as an excellent site for the college which was about to be established in New England, and it was offered for that purpose. The offer was not accepted, however, as Newtown, now Cambridge, was nearer the seat of government and deemed more fitting, and Mr. Scruggs relinquished his right to the land to the town. John Humphreys desired a grant of the same land and two hundred acres additional, and it was granted him in the following words:

At a genall Court or towne meeting of Salem held the second of the third moneth caled May A° 1636
Imp® after the reading of former orders; In the reading of an order for the division of Marble Head neck; A motion was brought in by C° Endicott in behalfe of m' John Humphries for some land beyond forest River, moved by spetiall arguments one whereof was, Least yt should hinder the building of a Colledge, wth would be manie m losse It was agreed vpon this motion that six men should be nominated by the towne to view these lands and to Consider of the pmis, and for that end was named m' Thomas Scrugs, C° Trafeke m' Roger Conant m' TownsenBishop John woodbery Peter Palfrey

Itm yt was ordered that whereas m' Scrugs had a farme of three hundred acres beyond forest River, And that C° Traike had one of tooe hundred acres beyond Baffe River, The C° Trafeke frely relinquishing his farme of toxe hundred acres. It was granted vnto m' Thomas Scrugs and he there uppon frely relinquished his farme of three hundred acres that foe m' Humphreyes might the better be accomodated.*

Mr. Humphreys lived in Salem, and was called "esquire." Sept. 6, 1638, he conveyed to Emanuel Downing of Salem, esquire, "the two ponds and so much high ground about the ponds as is needful to keepe the duck coye private from the disturbance of plowmen hearldsmen or others passing by that way wth he may enclose so as he take in above fifty acres of the upland round aboute the same."† Mr. Downing was a brother-in-law of Governor Winthrop, and had brought over from England, "at great charges, all things fitting for taking wild fowl by way of Duck Coy." He obtained leave of the general court to set his decoys in these ponds. It was ordered that no man "should shooe in any gunn within a half mile of the ponds, nor use any other means for the disturbance of the fowle there," Mr. Downing returned to England, and died probably about 1657, having granted this fifty acres of land to his grandson Solomon Stoddard of Boston, gentleman, "fellow of ye College of Cambridge." For fifty pounds, Mr. Stoddard conveyed the land to Moses Maverick and Richard Rowland, both of Marblehead, May 1, 1667.‡ This tract of land comprised the lots on the map marked James Darling, Estate of Richard Rowland and Ambrose Gale.

Messrs. Maverick and Rowland conveyed to John Peach, sr., one-fourth, to John Peach, jr., one-eighth and to Samuel Ward one-eighth of this fifty acres Jan. 20, 1667.§ Some division of the land was made apparently, and Mr. Maverick and "one of the Peaches" conveyed the lot marked James Darling to George Darling, sr., of Salem, yeoman, in the seventies.¶

The lot marked Estate of Richard Rowland was Richard Rowland's portion of the Coy pond lands as probably divided. The lot marked Ambrose Gale was the one-eighth of these lands conveyed by Messrs. Maverick and Richard Rowland to Capt. Samuel Ward of Marblehead, vintner, Jan. 20, 1667.*

The remainder of Mr. Humphreys' farm, about four hundred and fifty acres, was owned by him at the time of his decease. By her attorney, William Hathorne of Salem, Mrs. Lydia Bankes, late of Salem, for one hundred and thirty-three pounds, conveyed to Moses Maverick, David Corwithen, Arthur Sandin, William Charles, John Peach, the elder, and "others the inhabitants of Marblehead, all that farm called ye Playnes farme ling in Salem, being 400 acres, with all ye housing, &c., excepting 50 acres & 2 ponds formerly granted to Mr. Downing," 24: 7: 1645.† The list of grantees, and the amount each one paid toward the purchase is only partially known. The tract of land was subsequently divided among the purchasers in proportion to the amount each one paid.

The long line on the south western side of the map was the eastern line of the farm of eight hundred acres granted to John Humphreys by the general court, which became the property of Daniel King before 1700. The long strip of territory, lying between the two Humphreys grants, and marked John Blaney on the map, belonged to Salem until 1667, when the legislature annexed it to Swampscott, which was the King farm,† having been called Swampscott by Lady Deborah Moody probably.

Forest river was so called from the earliest settlement. Above the little bridge at Legg's hill the stream was called Frostfish brook in 1681 and 1711.

The ocean off this territory was called ye sea from 1674 onward.

*Salem Town Records (Grants), page 9.
†Essex Registry of Deeds, book 1, leaf 1.
The road running near the Coy ponds, as shown on the map, was the ancient road leading from Salem to Marblehead. Its course in Salem was through the great pastures to the head of Broad street. Upon the laying out of the road above mentioned, in 1666, through the South fields of Salem, this fell into disuse, and was used principally to go to the Darling farm. It was called, in 1677, ye highway yt goes to George Darlin's; in 1728, Boston road; and, in 1731, ye country road.

Where this road left the town was the "Marblehead gate," which was there as late as 1703. In the early settlement, each town was fenced, and at the highways gates in the fence were maintained.

The bridge over Forest river, near the present pumping station, was probably built by John Humphreys at a very early date, years before 1666, when it was in use, and has been used ever since.

The road passing over this bridge was also in use very early, and was laid out as a common way, four rods wide, in 1666.* After the new road, leading by the present lead mills, was laid out in 1737, this was called the old road to Forest river. Years later the road running around Legg's hill to the Lynn road was laid out, and that part of the old road leading easterly of Legg's hill, through "the dungeons", went out of use.

The southern highway shown on the map, is that over which electric cars now run between Marblehead and Lynn, was called ye old waye yt went to Mr. King's in 1677; ye old highway, 1682; the old country road, 1687; the old path and road which was to Lynn, 1691; ye old path and road which was formerly to Lynn, 1701; the old path, 1710; ye old highway yt formerly led from Marblehead to Lynn, 1715; highway that leads to Lynn, 1719; the old path and road which was sometimes to Lynn, 1724; ye road leading to King's farm, 1728; ye way yt leads to Reddans, 1734; and ye country road, 1739.

William Sanders Lot. This farm of one hundred acres was owned by Nathaniel Pickman, sr., of Salem, house-carpenter, as early as 1654;* and he conveyed it to his son-in-law John Sanders of Salem, mariner, Oct. 29, 1681.† Mr. Sanders died possessed of it June 9, 1694, having, by his will, devised it to his wife, Hannah Sanders, for her life, and then to his son William Sanders in fee.

Samuel Archer, aged about seventy-one and Jonathan Ager, aged about sixty-five, both of Salem, testified Feb. 12, 1704-5, that they well knew this farm that is now Mrs. Hannah Sanders, and that they wrought upon it for Nathaniel Pickman upwards of fifty years before.*

Mrs. Sanders died March 18, 1706-7; and William Sanders, who was then of Boston, shopkeeper, conveyed the farm to Maj. Samuel Browne, esquire, of Salem, "with ye new house", April 26, 1711.‡

James Darling House. George Darling, sr., of Salem, yeoman, bought this lot of about twenty acres of "Moses Maverick and one of the Peaches" in the seventies.§ Mr. Darling erected a house on the lot, and lived there. He died in the summer of 1693, having, in his will, given his estate to his wife Katherine for her widowhood, and the house and this lot of land to his son James Darling. The house, garden, orchard and remainder of the lot were appraised at ninety-five pounds. James Darling was a shoreman and lived here. He owned the lot in 1716, the house having probably been gone fifteen years.

Estate of Richard Rowland Lot. Richard Rowland died possessed of this lot in the summer of 1685, his will, dated April 24, 1685, being proved June 30, 1685. He devised this land to his son John Rowland and his children. It was then appraised at thirty pounds. John Rowland died, leaving no issue, before Dec. 4, 1693, when administration was granted upon his estate to his widow, Abigail Rowland. The land was then appraised at twenty-four pounds. It remained a portion of the estate of his father, Richard Rowland, until 1716.

Ambrose Gale Lot. This lot comprised one-eighth of the Coy pond lands, which were conveyed by John Humphreys to Emanuel Downing in 1638, this one-eighth part having been conveyed by Moses Maverick and Richard Rowland to Capt. Samuel Ward of Marblehead, vintner, Jan. 20, 1667.* For twelve pounds, Captain Ward conveyed it to Ambrose Gale of Marblehead, merchant, Jan. 10, 1685;† and Mr. Gale owned it until his death, which occurred in the summer of 1708.

Thomas Pitman Lot. That part of this lot lying easterly of the dashes belonged to Samuel Archard of Salem, carpenter, June 8, 1661, when, for four pounds, he conveyed it to Thomas Pitman.‡

That part of the lot lying westerly of the dashes belonged to Henry Harwood as early as 1661, and soon after to Thomas Moore, who sold it to Mr. Stileman, sr. It belonged to Capt. James Smith of Marblehead, mariner, Aug. 26, 1668, when he sold it to William Flint of Salem, husbandman.§ Mr. Flint conveyed it to Thomas Pitman March 16, 1669||

Thus Mr. Pitman became the owner of the whole lot, of which he died possessed in the summer of 1694. It belonged to his heirs in 1700.

Mr. Pitman’s children, Joseph Pitman, Sarah Dod and Mary Fortune, survived him, and his daughter Elizabeth Knight and son John Pitman died before himself. Mrs. Knight’s son, Thomas Russell of Marblehead, mariner, as trustee for his mother’s children, conveyed one-fifth of this part of the lot to his uncle Thomas Pitman, jr., executor of the will of the father of the latter, Oct. 22, 1696.* John Pitman, the son, left widow Charity and children, Joseph, John, Abiel and Mary Pitman. As trustee for her children, Mrs. Charity Pitman conveyed one-fifth of this part of the lot to said Thomas Pitman Dec. 26, 1696.†

Joseph Doliber Lot. Joseph Doliber owned this lot in 1677, and died possessed of it in 1688. His estate owned it in 1700.

John Holmes Lot. This lot was part of the plain farm, being all that Henry Stacy, sr., of Salem, husbandman, bought in said farm. For fifteen pounds, he conveyed it to John Holmes June 9, 1677;‡ and Mr. Holmes died possessed of it in 1718.

Thomas Pitman Lot. This lot is supposed to include, on its western side, the lot conveyed by Francis Johnson of Boston, merchant, to Edward Hoeman of Marblehead before May 12, 1677.

The remainder of the lot belonged to Nathaniel Walton in 1677. Francis Johnson of Boston, merchant, and wife Hannah, conveyed it to Thomas Pitman, sr., of Marblehead May 12, 1677.§

Mr. Pitman died possessed of the whole lot in the summer of 1694. It was then appraised at thirty pounds. Under the will of Mr. Pitman, his grandson, Thomas Russell, was trustee for his brothers and sisters. Mr. Russell died, and his brother-in-law, Amos Dennis (husband of Elizabeth Russell), was executor of his will. For six pounds, Mr. Dennis, in his capacity of said executor, conveyed one-fifth of the lot to his wife’s uncle, Thomas Pitman, jr., July 19, 1697.|| The remainder of the heirs continued to own their interests in 1700.

Ambrose Gale Lot. This was one-eighth of the land laid out to Nicholas Merritt in the plain farm, which descended to his son John Merritt of Marblehead, mariner, who sold it to Ambrose Gale of Marblehead, merchant, some years before 1701. Mr. Gale, for six pounds, conveyed it to John Palmer of Marblehead, fisherman, August 5, 1701.*

John Merritt conveyed another eighth part of this lot to John Legg of Marblehead, merchant, Jan. 22, 1691.†

John Codner Lot. John Codner of Marblehead, fisherman, owned this lot in 1699; and died possessed of it in the early spring of 1710.

* Nathaniel Norden Lot. This part of the plain farm, containing thirty-nine acres and one hundred and thirty-five rods, belonged to Moses Maverick of Marblehead, having been assigned to him, in the division, for fifteen pounds. He died Jan. 28, 1685-6; and, by agreement of the heirs, Archibald Ferguson of Marblehead, mariner, and Moses Hawke of Lynn, planter, as their attorneys, for sixty-five pounds, conveyed this lot to Nathaniel Norden, esq., of Marblehead Sept. 4, 1699.‡ Mr. Norden died, possessed of it, March 1, 1727-8.

John Legg and Samuel Legg Lot. John Legg of Marblehead owned this lot very early; and died, possessed of it, in the early part of 1674. This eight acres of the plain farm was devised to his three sons, Samuel, John, and youngest son Daniel. It was then valued at seventeen pounds. Daniel died, unmarried, before March 16, 1690, when his brothers, Capt. Samuel Legg of Boston, mariner, the eldest son, and John Legg of Marblehead, merchant, made a division of it, Samuel taking the northeastern part and John the southwestern part;§ and they owned their respective portions in 1700.

James Smith Lot. This was a lot from ninety to one hundred acres in extent, and a part of Mr. Humphreys' farm. It belonged to Capt. James Smith of Marblehead, mariner, Feb. 4, 1674, when he conveyed it to Symond Lynde of Boston, merchant. At that time there was "housing" upon the lot, and it was in the occupation of Micha Bowds, sometime of Salem, husbandman.* This was probably a mortgage, as Captain Smith owned the lot in 1700.

James Dennis, Amos Dennis and Annis Trevie Lot. This was the share of William Charles of Marblehead in the Humphreys farm; and he died, possessed of the lot, in 1672 (?), having devised it, in his will, to James Dennis, blacksmith, Amos Dennis, fisherman, and Thomas Trefey (or Trevie), shoreman, in right of his wife Annis, all of Marblehead. The several parties owned it in 1700.

Jonathan Norman Lot. This lot belonged to Richard Norman in 1687, and to Jonathan Norman of Marblehead in 1700.

Mrs. Mary Woods Lot. John Peach of Marblehead, planter, owned this part of the plain farm early, and, with his wife Alice, conveyed it to his natural daughter Mary, wife of William Woods of Marblehead, spinster, Dec. 30, 1687.† Her son, John Woods of Marblehead, owned it with her in 1710.

Robert Bartlett Lot. That part of the lot lying westerly of the dashes belonged to William Bartoll, jr., of Salem, mariner, Dec. 11, 1682, when he conveyed it to Capt. Robert Bartlett of Marblehead, yeoman.‡

That part lying easterly of the dashes also belonged to Mr. Bartlett in 1682.

Mr. Bartlett was deceased in 1719.

Samuel Reed Lot. This lot belonged to Richard Rowland before 1680. He died in 1685, having devised this lot to his daughter Abigail Reed. The lot was then valued at seventy pounds. In 1689, it belonged to Samuel Reed, and in 1718 to Ester Reed of Marblehead, spinster.

Benjamin Ireson Lot. This lot belonged to John and Parnall Bartoll, who were both deceased Feb. 4, 1688-9, when their eldest son, heir-at-law and administrator, William Bartoll (wife Mary), for thirty-three pounds, conveyed it to Benjamin Ireson of Lynn, planter.* Mr. Ireson died possessed of it in 1705.

THE BLEACHER.
BY ZITELLA COCKE.

‘Neath morning ray and starry light,
The bleacher toils through day and night.
‘As white as snow my work must be!'

Upon the warp and woof new-spun,
Falls chill of frost and fire of sun,
The gentle dew and nursing rain,
The while the bleacher's watchful eye
Each spot and blemish doth descry.

Unwearied plies his skilful hand,
Fulfilling all his thought had planned.
Nor doth the promised flax complain,
Unquestion aught he may ordain.

FIRST QUAKER MEETING HOUSE IN SALEM
Sketched by James H. Emerton in 1861.
The Quakers gained converts in Salem as early as in any locality in America. The first missionaries to arrive in New England came in the summer of 1656, and appeared in Salem soon after their landing. In spite of the terrible persecution by the Congregationalists that followed a society was established, and, although the membership has been small, it is continued.

At first, for more than thirty years, services were held in the dwelling houses of the members, an ordinary room accommodating the attendants.

In his time, the Friends of Salem had no stauncher friend than Thomas Maule. He did much to defend the tenets of his sect as well as to render material assistance to the society. He was an Englishman, and arrived in Salem about 1669, at the age of twenty-four. He suffered at the hands of the magistrates with other of his associates in the faith. He was a man of broad interests, active and influential. At first a tailor, he later became a merchant dealing in hardware, dry goods, medicines, groceries, country produce, furs, staves, tobacco, grain, hay and liquors. He had much to do with building and changing over of buildings, and of buying and selling real estate, at different times owning various properties.

In the autumn of 1688, he erected a small building in which the Friends could hold religious services, upon the northwestern corner of his six-acre lot of land. This site is what is now the open space between the house of Nathan P. Gifford and Grace church, at about 377 Essex street. According to an agreement on record in the registry of deeds, he was building the meeting house Sept. 14, 1688. Evidently, the building was constructed of such old timber as Mr. Maule had taken from other buildings. It measured about twenty-one feet in length, eighteen feet in breadth and nine and one-half feet in height. For forty-five pounds, Oct. 13, 1690, he conveyed the meeting house and land upon which it stood to Josiah and Daniel Southwick, Samuel Gaskin, Caleb Buffum, Christopher Foster and Sarah Stone, all of Salem, "Sam" Collins of Lynn & several others of ye people called Quakers in ye County." In this building the Friends held their services for nearly thirty years.

Though the number of attendants was very small the meeting house was found to be inadequate, and in 1714 steps were taken to erect a building forty feet long, thirty-four feet wide and eighteen feet post. Subsequently, the Monthly Meeting of the Friends apparently deemed that a smaller building would be amply sufficient and voted that it should be forty feet long but only thirty feet wide. Oct. 3, 1716, the Friends agreed to sell the old meeting house to Mr. Maule for twenty-five pounds. The deed of the meeting house and land belonging to it to Mr. Maule was given by Daniel Southwick, Samuel Gaskin, Caleb Buffum and Samuel Collins, "being all that are Surviving of ye nominated purchasers for & on behalf of Themselues thier hiers Executors & adminitrators as well as on behalf of their friends as before described that are any wayes intrested in ye old house & Land within mentioned . . as its now fenced in with ye old housing Thereupon," Nov. 18, 1718.*

The old meeting house then became the western portion of a dwelling house, having been added to, and was occupied by various tenants. One of them was Enos Pope, a Quaker.

Mr. Maule died in 1724, and his widow and children released to his son Joseph Maule of Salem, mariner, their interest in the premises July 13, 1747.†

William Browne, esq., of Salem brought a suit at law against Joseph Maule, recovered judgment, and had the execution levied upon this house and land Nov. 17, 1750.‡

In 1752, the house was occupied by Richard Maiberry, blacksmith, and Abraham Fowler, mariner.§

While Mr. Browne owned the estate, soon after that date, the meeting house part of this dwelling house was removed from this site; and about 1756 appears upon the David Nichols farm, under Gallows hill. This farm was owned and occupied at that time by Thorndike Proctor, also a Quaker. His son Robert was married about that time, and lived in this little house for many years. In it his son Benjamin was born in 1775 and daughter Sarah in 1787. The farm descended to Thorndike Proctor's son Thorndike Proctor, who occupied the Nichols house until his death, in 1792. The farm was devised by the will of Thorndike Proctor, jr., to his brother Robert, who probably at that time discarded the little house and moved into his father's house. From that time the little house was used as a barn, and finally a cow barn, hen house and wood shed. It was standing there in 1860, when it was sketched with pencil by James H. Emerton. A small window with diamond panes of glass, set in lead, had remained in the building through all its vicissitudes. Mr. Emerton’s drawing is reproduced in the frontispiece of this number of The Essex Antiquarian.

The Friends always spoke of the little building as the “first meeting house,” and because of that reference, some persons deemed it to be the first meeting house of the Congregationalists, and brought about its removal to the grounds of the Essex Institute, where for nearly fifty years it has been preserved. The height of the building was increased two and one-half feet at the time of its removal to the Institute, because of an erroneous interpretation of a record having reference to the first meeting house in Salem, and a new covering put upon the old frame.

This is probably the oldest meeting house of the Friends in existence, and it is hoped that the Institute will preserve it not only for its antiquity and historical associations, but in memory of the silent worshippers who have done so much for the elevation of woman and elimination of war and litigation.

South Cemetery.

The South parish of Ipswich chose a commiteee to confer with a committee of the First parish about purchasing land on the south side of Ipswich river for a burying ground May 21, 1773. An agreement was immediately effected, and the two parishes united in purchasing ninety-eight square rods of land for the use of both parishes for this purpose. The land was bought of Nathaniel Dutch of Ipswich, yeoman, for thirty-two pounds, thirteen shillings and four pence, the deed being dated Aug. 20, 1773.* The lot measured seven rods next the street and was thirteen and one-half rods deep. An addition of about the same size was made, in the rear of the old part, May 22, 1795, by the purchase of some land of John Manning, esq., of Ipswich, for thirty-two pounds, six shillings and eight pence.† The DESCENDANTS OF WILLIAM BROWNE OF SALEM.

HON. WILLIAM BROWNE, born in England March 1, 1608, came to Salem, Mass., in 1635. He was of great respectability and influence, very wealthy, a merchant, a commissioner to end small causes and a judge of the county court. He also represented Salem in the general court, was an assistant and one of Governor Andros' council. He paid one-tenth of the cost of the meeting house in Salem, built in 1673. He married, first, Mary Young, who immigrated with him to Salem, and died in 1638. He married, second, Sarah Smith of Wenham; and she died Feb. 10, 1668. He died in Salem Jan. 20, 1687-8. In his will he bequeathed to Rev. John Higginson, pastor of the Salem church, twenty pounds, to Rev. Mr. Noyes ten pounds, to the church ten pounds, to the poor in the town fifty pounds, to the school in Salem fifty pounds and to Harvard college one hundred pounds for poor scholars. He had already given a hundred pounds toward founding the college. He was a large land-holder. His wife Sarah was living in 1667, and probably died before him.

William Browne is said to have descended as follows:

Simon Browne of Browne Hall, Lancashire, England, A. D. 1540; barrister; removed to Brundish, Suffolk.

REV. RICHARD BROWN,⁴ born in Newbury Sept. 12, 1675. He graduated at Harvard college in 1697, and lived at first in his native town, where he was town clerk five years and schoolmaster eleven years. When about to remove from Newbury he wrote the following upon a fly-leaf of the town book:—

"I have served Newbury as schoolmaster eleven years and as town clerk five years and a half, and have been repaid with abuse, contempt and ingratitude. I have sent nigh as many to College as all the masters before me since the reverend and learned Parker. Those that I have bred think themselves better than their master (God make them better still), and yet they may remember the foundation of all their growing greatness was laid in the sweat of my brows. I pray that poor unacknowledging Newbury may get them that may serve them better and find thanks when they have done. If, to find a house for the school when the town had none; if, to take the scholars to my own fire when there was no wood at school, as frequently; if, to give records to the poor, and record their births and deaths gratis, deserves acknowledgement, then it is my due, but hard to come by."

"Est alia in graito meritum exprobare voluptas Hoc fruar hoc de te gandia sola feram."

Mr. Brown had a farm in Haverhill, which he probably carried on to some extent.

In a journal Mr. Brown wrote as follows some years later:—

I Richard Brown was born in Newbury Sept. 12, Anno 1675 and educated under the wing of my parence, especially my mother, who was a pious and prudent woman, and endeavored to instill into this her son the principals of Religion and holiness; yea she traveled in Birth with me again to have formed in me, and was upon all opportunities discoursing to me Life and Death, sin and holiness, Heaven and hell, to raise in me a Love, a Licking and Longing after the one, and a hatred and abhorrence of the other; she was unwearied in her watchings, instructions, admonitions, warnings, reproofs & exhortations, that she might bring up this her son in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, and continued she to train me up betimes, and when she had caused me to read well at home, she sent me to school under an ingenious and learned master, Mr. Edward Tompson, under whom I profited much and went on with delight in Gramer, Sententiae and Cato. But then I was deprived of my master, who, being called to the ministry, Left the school to his pupils grt damage. After came Mr Shove, to whom I went yet profited little; then came another who tarried not long; then came Mr John Clark of Exeter, a worthy man under whom I studied one year, by whom I was sent to, tho not well fitted for, the Colledge; for by this change of masters I suffered grt damage. I went to Collège 1693 and then I spent 4 years under the care & inspection of that worthy man Mr William Brattle, then fellow; we being in the heat of youth and active, I spent too much time in play & pastime, we I after g4ly bewailed. When those 4 years we expired July Anno 1697 I had given me with the rest of my class the Degree of B. B of Arts. My Parence not being well able to keep me longer at Collège, I was forced much against my will to leave the Coll: and to return home, we was much to my disadvantage; for being at home I wanted books, and more, money to buy them; so was forced to Borrow here and there as I could. By this, then I lost much time & contracted a listlessness to study, yet read over all the volumes of Foxes Acts and Monuments, we I much delighted in, and know much of especially the two last volumes, we I read over diverse times, where, in my young years, I showed a tender heart, y could not forbeare melting into tears, when I read of the cruelty showed against the Masters and Blessed servants of Jesus Christ. Thus continued I, sometimes Reading History and sometimes Divinity for two years, we being near expired, tho much against my mind, yet being overpowered with importunity, I was prevailed with to preach in June ’99, and when I came into the pulpit, being naturally bashfull, and seeing a great throngue and crowd of people before me, my spirit was overwhelmed.

“Feb. 27, 1700—I was called to Teach the Gramr school in Newbury, which I accepted, and went on with delight to train up youth in Learning and the knowledge and fear of God and teaching them to reverence yr Superiors.

“I continued in the school and preached sometimes as occasions presented for helping one and another.”

Mr. Brown married Miss Martha Whipple of Ipswich April 22, 1703; and, being called to a pastorate in Reading, removed thither. In his journal he wrote of this as follows:—

“Sept 17, 1711. I laid down ye school in Newbury in order to go to Redding to preach ye gospel there, at yr frequent and earnest request. Nov. 7, I brought my goods from Newbury to Ipswich; Nov. 9, from Ipswich to Redding, and Nov. 15, moved my wife and family to Redding.”

He was ordained pastor of the church at Reading June 25, 1712; and died there Oct. 29, 1732, aged fifty-seven. His wife survived him, and with the children returned to Newbury.

PART OF MARBLEHEAD IN 1700.
BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

The map on the opposite page is of a part of Marblehead, and represents, within the space marked “Robert Devereaux”, about three hundred and fifty acres. The scale of the map is twelve hundred feet to an inch. This tract of land was granted to Rev. Hugh Peter by the town of Salem in 163--; and when he went to England he gave his property into the care of one of his deacons in Salem, Charles Gott. For one hundred pounds sterling, Mr. Gott, who had removed to Wenham, conveyed the land to John Devereaux of Marblehead, fisherman, July 1, 1659.*

The road to the neck as shown on the map was laid out in 1721, and the old road ran from a point in the main road about twenty-five rods westerly from the junction of the two roads down to the western end of the beach and the neck. See plan on file in the office of the county commissioners, at Salem, discovered by Mr. Buck since this map was made.

In 1660, Mr. Peter was executed. Mr. Devereaux continued in possession of the property, having built a house upon the eastern part of the lot.

Mr. Devereaux died in the spring of 1695, his will dated Sept. 4, 1693, being proved May 20, 1695. He provided as follows: “I give and bequeath unto my son Robert Devereaux two thirds of all my land within the Stonnwall now lying in marblehead being three hundred Acres more or less with my now dwelling house and Barne, only I give unto my son Roberts son Joseph twenty Acres of land within ye Stonnwall which is out of the two thirds of my son Roberts land before mentioned which land lying next to marblehead comon jyning to my land without the stonn wall, when he shall be 21 years of age, . . . to remaine in the family and name of the Devereuxes from generation to generation in way of intale forever and ever.” The other third was devised to the three sons of the testator’s deceased son Humphrey Devereaux,—Joseph (one-half), Humphrey (one-quarter) and Ralph (one-quarter).

After the decease of Mr. Devereaux, the daughter and heir of Hugh Peter claimed title to the land, alleging that Deacon Gott had insufficient authority to execute the deed. The widow, Mrs. Ann Devereaux, one of the executors of the will of Mr. Devereaux, of whom the demand for possession was made, consulted the children and friends, who advised her not to contest the claim, and she did not. The son, Robert Devereaux, to whom the two-thirds were given, obtained a deed from Elizabeth Barker of London, England, “only daughter and heiress of Hugh Peters sometime heretofore of Salem, clerk,” deceased, June 29, 1704.*

Robert Devereaux lived here, being a tanner, and died many years afterward. How long the house stood after 1704 is uncertain.

Grounds of John Baker's appeal.

Walter Roper, in behalf of the town of Ipswich v. Francis Pabody and Richard Walker. For felling several white oak trees upon Ipswich town commons. Verdict for plaintiff.

[3:10 mo:1642, Samuell Symonds grant of five hundred acres toward west end of the town commonly called Olivers, he to be constantly supplied with timber and firewood off the commons. Extract from town book; Robert Lord, clerk, March 24, 1658.

John Perley deposed that he asked Richard Walker who felled the white oaks that lay against his master Pabody's meadow, and he replied that he did, six of them, in Ipswich commons, according to the bounds of said Francis Pabody's farm shown him by the lot layer, Corporal Gage. Sworn in court at Ipswich March 29, 1659.

Samuell Perley deposed that he went with his brother John. Sworn as above.

John Baker, jr., deposed. Sworn as above.

Copy of town orders regarding felling of trees, dated Aug. 31, 1649 and Jan. 11, 1649.

Copy of town order that Walter Roper and Richard Shatswell be chosen to prevent persons from cutting trees on the north side of the river, and William Story and Thomas Bishop on the south side, Jan. 17, 1656.
Nathaniell Perlye deposed that coming from Topsfield he saw Richard Walker and Joseph Pebodye felling trees; "For rails", Walker said. I said, "I scarelie se any whit okes felled for railes." This was on the bottom of the hill called Mr. Wintrop's hill next to Goodman Pebody's cove of meadow. Sworn in court at Ipswich March 29, 1659.

Walter Roper's bill of costs.

William Buckley's bill of charges.

Joseph Jewett, attorney to John Hasseltine v. Symon Tuttle. Trespass, for taking and riding away his mare without his knowledge or consent. Verdict for plaintiff.

[Writ: Joseph Jewett, attorney to John Hasseltine v. Symon Tuttle; dated March 3, 1658; by the court, Robert Lord; served by Edward Browne, marshall.

Robert Smith, aged thirty-three or thereabout, deposed that I living with Simon Tuttle's mother, Mrs. Tuttle, about eight or nine years ago, I heard her say that the young mare colt then in her keeping, which I was informed came of that stray mare that was challenged and had away by Lieutenant Lowtroope, and which she said was her son Simon's. This was when her husband, Mr. Tutle, was in England. It was branded with the letter E. Sworn in court at Ipswich March 29, 1659.

Edward Hecock, aged twenty, testified that about four or five years ago, I heard Mrs. Tuttle say that the gray mare and foal that was in my master John Tuttell's keeping at Romlie marsh was her son Symon's, and that Tho Bornom, etc. I heard his brother John Tuttell say, etc. Sworn 21:1:1658-9, before Thomas Marshall.

George Gidding, aged about forty, and Thomas Burnam, aged about forty, testified that we being with our brother Simon Tuttell, etc. Sworn in court at Ipswich March 29, 1659.

Humpey Grifing, aged fifty-three, testified that before Mrs. Tuttle went to Ireland I heard her say that it was her son Symon's mare in Tho Bornom's keeping. Sworn as above.

Thomas Gidings, aged twenty-five, testified that when my grandmother Tuttell dwelt at Ipswige I heard her say, etc. The mare had been called Symon's by my uncle John Tutle and my aunt Hanah Tuttell. Sworn as above.

ANSWERS.

513. John Wardwell, born in 1719, died in 1799. He married Jane Campbell of Haverhill for his first wife; and second, Lydia Hardy of Bradford. The latter died in November, 1774, having come from the Second church in Bradford to the church in Andover in 1760. John was a tanner, and lived, first, on the estate in the rear of Draper building, now called Newman estate, and later in Frye village, near Donald's ink mill. His children were apparently all by his first wife Lydia and three of their names were Lydia, Dorothy and John. It would seem that the desired line was through Jacob Hardy and his wife Lydia Eaton. She was born in 1662, and she died in 1737. Jacob died in 1713. He had a son Joseph Hardy, born Oct. 20, 1692, who had, first, a wife Sarah, whom he lost in April, 1730. Oct. 2, 1730, he took a second wife, Ruth Kimball; and among his children was a Lydia born in 1696, Ruth, born in 1699, and Eunice, born in 1701, who became the wife of John Foster of Hardwick, Mass., head of the Weare line. This family lacks records, and it is very difficult to get information. In the division of the estate of Jacob Hardy, an uncle Joseph is mentioned. The latter died, unmarried, leaving an estate which was undivided in 1737. Moreover, this family used the name of Lydia extensively, and a grandson of Lydia was named Asa Kimball Wardwell, and his mother, Sarah Trussell, on her side had no reason for giving him that name.—Charlotte H. Abbott, Andover.

515. A chain in land measurements is four rods, equal to sixty-six feet in length, and is made up of one hundred links. Thus three chains and sixty-seven links is equivalent to three and sixty-three hundredths chains, or two hundred and forty-two and twenty-two hundredths feet.—T. H. Loomis, Stedcnvillc, O.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

John Hood of Lynn, Massachusetts, and Some of His Descendants. By Mrs. Jennie (Hood) Bosson. Salem, Mass., 1909. This is a reprint from the Historical Collections of the Essex Institute. It contains forty-four octavo pages, and gives the early generations completely. Price, in paper, fifty cents; in boards, seventy-five cents. Address the Essex Institute, Salem, Mass.

New England's Plantation. By Rev. Francis Higginson. London, 1630. The Essex Book and Print Club has reprinted this valuable and interesting ancient book in fac-simile. With it is included the author's General Considerations for the planting of New England; his agreement with the New England Company; his True Relation of the voyage to New England in 1629; and the letter that he sent to his friends at Leicester. An index adds value to the edition.

NOTICE OF DISCONTINUANCE.

The termination of the publication of The Essex Antiquarian has been in contemplation for two or three years. It has been continued, however, in spite of physical difficulties and lack of time. Ninety-five per cent. of its contents has been the product of the labor of the editor, principally from research in original records. The constant demand upon his time and strength in this labor of love ought not to be indulged further.

The publishers thank the public for its oft-repeated words of commendation and generous support, there having been no period when funds were lacking. This is extraordinary, as magazines of this class usually live from three to five years, and are discontinued because of non-support.

The interest of the publishers is unabated after the lapse of thirteen years, during which period the issues of the work have appeared on time; and the discontinuance is regretted exceedingly.

The Essex Antiquarian was purposed to fill a want. It was designed to be a leader in scientific historical research; and to present copies or abstracts of records and compilations in an exhaustive and systematic manner, so that as far as the publication extended further investigation along those lines would be needless. Repeated examinations of records tend to their destruction, and thousands of dollars have been spent locally upon the same records for the same purpose by various persons who were ignorant of costly examinations made by others. This purpose, if prosecuted, would preserve the records and make further expenditure of money and labor unnecessary. This has been the particular reason of the appearance of the genealogies in alphabetical order, the gravestone inscriptions, abstracts of the Salem and Ipswich quarterly court records and files, old Norfolk county records, all wills in the order of their probate, Essex Gazette notes, abstracts of titles to land, etc., as shown in Salem, Haverhill, Ipswich and Marblehead in 1700, and in Georgetown and Topsfield in 1800.

During the thirteen years of its existence there have been published in The Essex Antiquarian genealogies of all families from Abbe to Brown; all gravestone inscriptions dated prior to the year 1800 in Amesbury, Andover, Beverly, Boxford, Bradford, Danvers, Essex, Georgetown, Gloucester, Groveland, Hamilton, Haverhill and Ipswich; all wills proved in the county prior to June, 1666; the record of the Essex county Revolutionary soldiers and sailors alphabetically to Brown; abstracts of the old Norfolk records to 1675; Salem and Ipswich quarterly court records and files to 1659; and abstracts of all records in the first ten volumes of the Suffolk county registry of deeds relating to Essex county persons and property, where parties resided or property was located in Essex county, covering the period prior to 1678.
